WAR ON GANGS UP TO STATES, HOOVER HOLDS

Denies Report He Will Ask More Criminal Laws of Congress.

RAPS NEGLIGENCE OF LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

Rigid Enforcement Held Need, Rather Than Added Statutes.

MITCHELL CONCURS IN VIEWS ON GANG ISSUE

Secretary Says Department Does Not Plan to Take Exclusive Control.

The Federal Government may help, but it should not be expected to wipe out racketeers and racketeering; that is a job for the States.

This, in effect, was President Hoover's answer yesterday to the reports that the Federal Government was about to launch a "drive" against Al Capone and his ilk, and to break up their vast and manifold rackets.

"The report that I am proposing to Congress any extension of the Federal criminal laws to cover racketeering is untrue," the President said.

Says Laws Ample.

"Every single State has ample laws that cover such criminality. What is needed is the enforcement of those laws and not more laws. Any suggestion of [illegible] the Federal criminal laws in general is a reflection on the sovereignty and the stamina of State government.

"The Federal Government is assisting local authorities to overcome a hideous gangster and corrupt control of some local governments, but I get no satisfaction from the reflection that the only way that this can be done is for the Federal Government to convict men for failing to pay income taxes on the financial product of crime against State laws.

"What we need is a more widespread awakening to the failure of some local governments to protect their citizens from murder, racketeering, corruption and other crimes, and their rallying of support to the men of these localities that are today making a courageous battle to clean up these places."

Efforts of Federals.

The Federal Government's share in the fight is represented by the efforts of the Department of Justice and the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Recently, Attorney General Mitchell announced that one of his assistants and additional agents were being sent to Chicago to operate against gangs that were violating the narcotic, white slave and immigration laws.

At about the same time, the Internal Revenue Bureau announced that it was out to get Al Capone and other racketeers who were believed to be evading the income tax law.

Statement by Mitchell.

Yesterday Attorney General Mitchell said:

"It is a fact that our laws are not being enforced. Nevertheless, the control of racketeering is primarily a state function, and we are merely offering assistance, such as attempting to break up labor rackets, which we can reach in a backhanded way. We have no intention of taking over the whole affair."

Three Killed by Blast Of Dynamite in Mine

Plattsburg, N. Y., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Three men were instantly killed by an explosion of dynamite in a mine of the Chateaugay Ore & Iron Co., at Lyon Mountain today. The three, all from Lyon Mountain, were storing the explosive on the 300-foot level when it exploded. The cause was not determined.

The dead are Ray Ducharme, 45; Mike Rabitch, 50, and Felix Kasky, 20.

Yacht Rowena Aground Off Coast of Florida

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Coast Guard headquarters here received a message today, saying the yacht Rowena, bound from Miami on a cruise with a party of fishermen, went aground on Featherbed Bank, off the Florida coast, last night, and remained helpless.

The U. S. Ranger, a Geodetic Survey boat, was described as standing by unable to aid the yacht because of shallow water on the bank. Two Coast Guard boats of light draft were sent from Fort Lauderdale today and were expected to reach the Rowena this afternoon.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Europe is always so much interested in having some agreement whereby the United States will undertake to assume Europe's burdens that any rumor to that effect is widely circulated and credited. The proposal for a consultative pact to supplement the peace and naval limitation treaties is again receiving foreign attention. We supposed it was made clear at the London conference that this Government was not inclined to make such a commitment. Our people do not have the imperialist mind. We have no desire to interfere in European affairs. Certainly it would be difficult to secure an agreement from us to become involved in their disputes. Our citizens go there only from a sense of duty to help when they are invited. Our Government does not do that.

The world peace treaty is self-enforcing. To agree to go to war under it would be to nullify it. Europe has the League of Nations which it can always consult in case of danger. Our ambassadors are at Geneva and at the other capitals. In case of danger we can join in any consultation that seems necessary to us when it arises. No agreement about it in advance is necessary or desirable.

NIGHT OF DISORDER IN DANVILLE STRIKE

Crowds Parade Settlement at Will and Attack Workers' Homes.

TROOPS MAY BE CALLED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 25.—C. W. Bolick, organizer of the local textile union, today issued a statement denying that more than 900 workers are employed in the Danville cotton mills and asserting that the blowing of the whistles yesterday was "an effort to break the strike" and that "all it resulted in was the lowering of the boiler pressure and was a complete fiasco."

Yesterday it was reported from workers within the mill that about 2,000 hands were employed but the mill management declined to discuss this, as it has any other development in the strike.

The mill village of Schoolfield last night experienced disorders unequaled since the labor dispute began with the authorities admitting that crowds of textile workers parading the streets jeering and shouting imprecations at the alleged foes of the labor union were "too big to be handled." The situation was controlled by a cold drenching rain which broke up the disorders.

Half a dozen homes of nonunion workers were visited and the windows broken by stones. One small outbuilding was destroyed by fire and the lurid glare from Newtown, an adjoining mill settlement, betokened an unoccupied house being burned.

This morning union crowds gathered at the gates and resumed jeering at nonunion workers. The police made no effort to interfere, notwithstanding the official view that this conduct constitutes a violation of the antipicketing injunction now in force. Speculation was rife as to whether troops would be called, in view of continued disorders.

In Danville, Henry Slade, a Negro nonunion worker, last night was felled by a blow from behind and was found unconscious by police. Normal James was arrested for the offense, identified and sentenced to 30 days in jail. R. I. Cook and Dan Setliff, identified in connection with a dynamiting attempt, near Schoolfield today, gave bonds of $4,000 and $1,000, respectively, furnished by relatives.

SUMMERALL URGES WAR PREPAREDNESS

Advocates Potential Army of 2,000,000 Men in Farewell Report.

CITES DROP IN STRENGTH

(Associated Press.)

A potential army of 2,000,000 available within a year if the United States should become involved in another war was held yesterday by Gen. Charles P. Summerall to be necessary for reasonable security.

This statement was made in the annual report of Gen. Summerall, who recently retired as Army chief of staff. The general described the report as his "farewell to the Army" after 42 years of service.

The report reviewed in detail the wars in which the United States has participated and stressed the importance of adequate preparation.

"The American effort in the World War," he said, "must always stand out as the most remarkable example of the improvisation of an army in the course of a war recorded in the military history of the world."

He pointed out, however, the assistance rendered by the allies in supplying shortages of military equipment and in protecting the United States from hostile disturbances which contributed to the raising of the American organized force from only 85,000 men to a force of nearly 4,000,000 within 18 months.

"We can not base our future defense upon the assumption that the armies of allies will assure us the time required for the preparation of our military effort," he added. "We must keep abreast of developments in the material of war and not allow ourselves to become dependent on foreign nations for the supply of modern equipment. Nor should we lose sight of the fact that in the World War we approached very close to the time limit within which our effort would be made effective."

The general said the 1920 national defense act was a distinct advance over all previous measures of that nature, but that "its failure to provide a trained reserve immediately available on the development of an emergency leaves the units of our regular Army in the same inexpansive condition that impaired their effectiveness at the outbreak of all our previous wars."

Since 1921, he added, the strength of the Army provided for in the national defense act has been successively reduced in annual appropriation acts from 280,000 to 118,750.

11 Jurors for Smith Trial Are Tentatively Selected

Many Talesmen Are Believed to Be Disqualifying Themselves to Prevent Being Locked Up Over Thanksgiving Holiday; New Venire Called.

Stoutly held opinions on the part of talesmen again yesterday defeated efforts of attorneys in the $5,000,000 F. H. Smith Co. trial to secure a jury satisfactory to both sides. When Justice William Hitz, presiding, adjourned court shortly after 2 o'clock, eleven tentative jurors, two women and nine men, were in the box, the Government had exhausted all of its peremptory challenges, and the defense all but one.

The situation, so far as the jury itself was concerned, remained exactly as it had been when court was adjourned Monday. Yesterday some change in the personnel of the eleven tentative jurors occurred, but in numbers and general make-up it remained the same.

The announcement Monday by Justice Hitz that the jury would be locked up throughout the trial, after Government and defense had agreed on a jury, apparently will make selection of the twelfth juror a difficult matter.

Unless selection of a jury is delayed in some manner again today or special provision is made, the jury will be locked up over Thanksgiving while the court is in adjournment for the holidays. This fact is seen

ITALO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE SEEN, TO SPUR TRADE

Parley Held by Litvinoff and Grandi Quickens Pulse of Europe.

SURPLUS OF WHEAT IS ONLY DRAWBACK

Italy Otherwise Willing for Russia to "Dump" Raw Materials.

BOTH NATIONS STAND TO BENEFIT GREATLY

Market Regained for Soviet, Italian Industries Due for Rush of Orders.

Rome, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Fascist Italy and Communist Russia, marching hand in hand to new international commercial heights by a combination of vast supplies of raw materials with modern manufacturing machinery, was foreseen by observers here today. They predict this as the probable outcome of the conference at Milan yesterday between Foreign Ministers Dino Grandi and Maxim Litvinoff, Russian commissar of foreign relations.

These observers hold Italy is not afraid of dumping; in fact, is anxious for cheap materials. Russia, which last August had entered into an agreement with Italy for the purchase of $10,000,000 worth of Italian-manufactured goods in 1930-31, is seen now as preparing to use Italy as an outlet for raw materials.

Economists point out that receipt of Russian orders will keep the factories of Italy busy while she is preparing for the development of a Latin-American trade, on which she is said to have her eye. These economists hold that only by a rebirth of Italian trade and industry can she regain a sound financial standing.

Only One Snag Seen.

The only possible snag to cooperation between the two countries is the wheat situation. Italy has been making every effort to build up her own wheat production and probably would look askance at any increase in grain importation.

At present levels, however, Russian wheat is so much cheaper, and the Italian-grown supply still so small, that it is considered possible Italy might reserve restrictions until the home-grown crop is larger.

Although there has been no official statement, the newspaper Giornale D'Italia, often officially inspired, points out that Russia, despite its industrialization program, remains one of the most important producers of raw materials.

"These raw materials," it says, "are not blockaded in the Black Sea by

PLANE MOTORS ARE BOUGHT IN U. S. BY SOVIET

Secret Plans Obtained Also, Witness Says, by Bribes Perhaps.

ENGINES WERE SENT AS OTHER MACHINERY

Purchased by American Citizens From War Department.

CHARGES ARE HEARD BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Exportation of Munitions to Russia Is Held in Disfavor Here.

(Associated Press.)

A special House committee heard yesterday that American Army airplane motors had been shipped to Russia although the State Department looks with disfavor on the practice.

Basile W. Delgass, a former vice president of the Artorg Trading Corporation, made the charge before the House Communist investigating committee. He said 400 Liberty motors, accompanied by secret plans for which bribes might have been paid, were sent to Russia as "other machinery."

The motors, he added, were bought from the War Department by American citizens, whom he did not name, and resold to Amtorg.

Airplane Shipments in Disfavor.

The exportation of war materials to Russia is not forbidden, but manufacturers usually consult with the State Department before they make sales. Recently the department said it looked with disfavor on a proposal by a Baltimore firm to sell airplanes to the Soviet.

Delgass testified the department had made a similar ruling on the request of a Western manufacturer who wished to sell powder making machinery to Russia.

After Delgass had testified, Chairman Fish, of the committee, said additional hearings would be held in a week or ten days, and that a report and recommendations for legislation would be ready for Congress the latter part of December.

He added he planned to subpena William Z. Foster, a former Communist candidate for President; Boris E. Skvirsky, of the Soviet information bureau of Washington, and a representative of the Daily Worker.

Further Charges Are Made.

Delgass also charged that:

Passports were obtained illegally for 39 Russians who entered the United States, some of them joining Amtorg's cipher and secret service department.

Andrew W. Petroff, his successor, obtained valuable information on a

Muscle Shoals Action Is Held Aim of G. O. P.

President's Opposition Thought Adamant But Leaders Believed Ready to Force Issue and Avert Extra Session; Veto May Be Avoided.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

There were growing indications yesterday that House and Senate Republican leaders intend to take matters in their own hands and dispose of the Muscle Shoals question, with a view to avoiding an extra session.

The impression is that the President has not budged an inch in his attitude on the matter and that the suggestions that the administration might as well admit defeat and, in the interest of harmony, accept the Norris Government operation plan, are believed to have met with little if any encouragement from him. But the Capitol Hill leaders seem just as determined to end the deadlock.

The view that the President is remaining adamant is given weight by the feeling with which House and Senate leaders discuss the subject.

Yesterday Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, one of the House leaders who kept the Norris bill deadlocked in House conference at the last session, said he was convinced that the majority of the House favor Government operation of the project and that being what the majority of the people want, it should be approved.

"We might as well act on it now, instead of hanging around here all next summer in a special session," he said feelingly.

The same sentiment, just as feelingly, has been expressed by other leaders heretofore opposed to Government operation.

Under the circumstances it seems quite likely that the Norris bill will be accepted at the short session.

If the President's attitude is really one of being adamant toward surrender he would in all probability veto the measure. On the other hand, it may simply be his view that the surrendering should be done by the Senate and House leaders.

The attitude on Capitol Hill on this proposition has changed amazingly. The power groups themselves are even being represented as wanting the Norris bill accepted and Muscle Shoals eliminated as a symbol in the growing agitation between the power corporations and the public. There is a tendency to say that, after all, the great Muscle Shoals issue has been overly emphasized.

Of course, there is the question of whether acceptance of the Norris bill will prevent an extra session.

On this point it became very apparent yesterday that Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, is at heart against an extra session. In a state-

Green Opposes Doak For Labor Portfolio

William N. Doak, at left, mentioned to succeed James J. Davis as Secretary of Labor, is opposed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, right, who seeks that post for some one in his organization.

Asks Hoover to Appoint Successor to Davis From A. F. of L.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The powerful American Federation of Labor, with a membership of nearly 5,000,000, yesterday moved to block the appointment of an "outsider" and have one of its own become the successor to Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

William Green, president of the federation, called at the White House in the afternoon and, in a talk with President Hoover, expressed the "earnest hope" Davis' successor would be chosen from the ranks of his organization.

Thus came to the surface the intense rivalry which exists over the Labor portfolio and which pits the American Federation of Labor against

GERMAN FINANCIAL REFORM MENACED

Dictatorial Power May Be Invoked by Bruening to Save Program.

HIT BY ECONOMIC PARTY

Berlin, Nov. 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The likelihood that Chancellor Heinrich Bruening may invoke the dictatorial powers provided for in article 38 of the Weimar constitution to put his financial reform program into operation by extraparliamentary means, even before the Reichstag convenes next month, was materially increased today when the Economic party announced its withdrawal from the ranks of the government's supporters.

This party, composed largely of middle class tradesmen and master artisans, is opposed to the Bruening government's campaign to bring prices down in proportion to the reduction in wages. Its representatives in the cabinet, Minister of Justice Johann Bredt, resigned today. Last october he resigned for the first time, but allowed himself to be persuaded by President Paul von Hindenburg to reconsider his resignation for the good of the Reich.

The Economic party is the second group to withdraw its support from the Bruening government. The first was the Farmers League, although a member of it, Martin Schiele, remained in the cabinet as minister of agriculture.

The Economic party, in announcing its refusal to further cooperate with Bruening, recalls that on September 26 it declared it would participate in no government in which the Socialists exercised either direct or indirect influence. Now, however, it is asserted by the Economic party, the Bruening cabinet is seeking to secure Socialist support "by sacrificing the vital interests of the German people."

Despite this allegation, it is understood that Bruening, in a conference yesterday with the Socialist leaders, flatly refused to accede to their demands for changes in the government's program and reasserted that it

U. S. CUSTOMS MEN HELD FOR GRAFT QUIZ

Score Reported Seized by Agents Probing Detroit River Rum Bribes.

GREAT EXPOSE EXPECTED

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The Free Press says that "approximately a score" of United States customs border patrolmen were taken into custody this afternoon by special Treasury agents for questioning about Detroit River rum graft.

The paper says that warrants for several of the patrolmen are held by the investigating agents and will be used if the patrolmen can not explain actions the agents claim to have uncovered.

The investigation is in charge of Elmer J. Lewis, customs department investigator, the Free Press says, the same man who directed the investigation of two years ago which resulted in the indictment of 23 customs border patrolmen and 19 liquor smugglers, many of whom now are serving prison sentences.

The paper says that the present investigation is expected to result in a greater expose than that of 1928.

The Free Press says that Canadian brewers are alleged to have paid bribes to customs border patrolmen to insure uninterrupted passage for boatloads of beer across the Detroit River.

According to the paper, some brewing companies have evaded the Canadian antiexport law by establishing warehouses some distance from their main plants and diverting to the river truckloads of beer ostensibly en route to those warehouses.

Along the water front the beer would be loaded into oats, the paper says, and smuggled into the United States.

Licenses of two Ontario breweries, the Walkerville Brewing Co., of Walkerville, and the Hofer Brewing Co., of La Salle, were revoked yesterday after they had been convicted of sell-

Liquor Agents to Keep Eye On Virginia Fans at Games

Seven Inspectors Ordered to Attend North Carolina Contest at Charlottesville Tomorrow; Aldermen's Aid Asked; Last Game Humiliating.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—There are indications that Thanksgiving Day will be dry for football crowds in Virginia.

Attorney General John R. Saunders, the State's chief prohibition enforcement officer, today ordered seven prohibition inspectors to attend the Virginia-North Carolina game at Charlottesville and announced that other inspectors would be asked to attend football games at other places.

"Complaints have recently reached Gov. Pollard and the attorney general of open violations of the prohibition law at recent football games played at the University of Virginia," the attorney general said. "Gov. Pollard wrote me yesterday inclosing a letter from a distinguished Virginian containing a very humiliating account of the behavior at the last game played at Charlottesville."

Mr. Saunders said he had written President Edwin A. Alderman of the University of Virginia inclosing the letter sent to Gov. Pollard and asking cooperation of university authorities "in seeing that no such behavior as has been complained of takes place upon the university grounds." The attorney general said he had also Observatory at Georgetown Records Disturbance, 7,000 Miles Away.

Toyko, Nov. 26 (Wednesday) (A.P.).—An earthquake stretched a belt of death and destruction across the northern part of the beautiful Izu Peninsula, early today, with a toll of dead and injured mounting steadily as fragments of the disaster story emerged from the stricken area.

The chief of police at the Shizuoka prefecture, which includes the Izu Peninsula, estimated the quake dead at between 100 and 150, while the number of injured was likely to bring the total casualties to 900.

Nagoya is about 150 miles southwest of Tokyo. Shizuoka lies about 100 miles from the Japanese capital.

The peninsula is thickly populated. Nagoya felt the shock heavily.

Geyser Again Active.

The Tokyo Asahi, vernacular newspaper, reported three killed and many injured at Atami, where a famous geyser, dead since the earthquake of September, 1923, resumed activity.

At Ito Hot Spring, fire resulting from the earthquake destroyed 80 houses. It was feared many were killed and injured there.

Twenty were killed at Nagaoka Hot Springs, south of Mishima. About 120 houses wer destroyed at Atami.

In the town of Nakazato, near Mishima, ten persons were killed and 50 injured. At Numazu, a village nearby, one was killed, one injured and fire broke out.

Held Climax of Series.

These earthquakes apparently were the climax of the series which had been felt recently on the northern part of the peninsula. The Mishima region has experienced an average of 300 minor shocks daily since November 10, including one fairly severe temblor yesterday. The Izu Peninsula is noted for its hot springs, many being centers for popular resorts.

The Tokyo central observatory recorded the quake as beginning at 4:03 a. m. (2:03 p. m. Tuesday, E. S. T.), and quickly reaching a dimension of 40 millimeters. The seismograph continued to record shocks for 30 minutes.

The quake was felt over a wide area, although the most serious damage apparently was confined to the Izu Peninsula region. Yokohama, Yokosuka, Nikko, Matsumoto and Kofu were heavily shaken.

Communications Broken.

Telephone and telegraph communications with Ito Hot Springs, in the northeastern part of the peninsula, were interrupted, hence it was feared that region also was stricken. It had been shaken severely yesterday.

Railway tracks, bridges and stations in the Atami region were badly dam-agnet, reports to the railway ministry here said.

The Rev. Frederick W. Sohon, seismologist at Georgetown University, reported last night that an earthquake of considerable intensity had been registered on the instruments at his observatory during the afternoon, beginning at 2:16 and continuing until shortly after 5 o'clock, with the maximum intensity at 3:11 p. m.

From his calculations, Father Sohon said the quake was about 7,000 miles from Washington. A circle, with that distance as its radius, would pass through Japan. He added that a shock lasting nearly three hours is considered very severe.

Railway Fireman Dies During Game of Cards

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 25.—Charles Duke, 30, of Richmond, a fireman on the R., F. & P. Railroad, died suddenly on a northbound night express, while playing cards with a group of fellow workers.

All were going to Potomac Yards to their night jobs. The game had progressed since shortly after leaving Richmond and when near Aquia Creek the fireman, without previous warning of illness, threw up his hands and lapsed into unconsciousness. He was pronounced dead by doctors at the Marine Base Hospital at Quantico, to which he was removed from the train.

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—R. W. Brown, general superintendent of the Maryland division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the last four years, will become general manager of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, December 1, it became known today. He will make his headquarters at Jersey City.

Mr. Brown has been associated with the Baltimore & Ohio road for more than 28 years. Before moving to Baltimore to accept his present position, he was superintendent of the Cumberland division, with headquarters at Cumberland. He is a native of Illinois, and 47 years old.

Potuguese Bank Note Suit Opened

Government Seeks Recovery of $5,578,065 From London Printer.

London, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Opening statements were read today in the suit of the Bank of Portugal against the Waterlow Printery of London for damages of £1,119,613 (about $5,578,065) because the printing company acted on a forged order and printed Portuguese bank notes which were circulated by an international gang of swindlers.

Counsel for the bank asserted that the company, which is headed by Sir William Waterlow, former Lord Mayor of London, failed to use business judgment and even went against the advice of its Lisbon agent in printing the notes.

The strangest part of the case is that the bills were not counterfeits, but were simply unauthorized, hence the men who conceived the idea can not be tried for forgery of the notes themselves. The Waterlow company is the authorized printer of legal Portuguese bank notes, and it was not until duplications of numbers were discovered that the fraud was revealed. Something like $5,000,000 in unauthorized Portuguese notes of the 500-escudo denomination had been put into circulation.

It is located east of the proposed east line of Thirty-seventh street northwest, west of the proposed west line of Idaho avenue and north of an east-west line south of the proposed southeast corner of Thirty-seventh and Tilden streets.

WASHINGTON DRIVER GIVEN FINE OF $250

Shea Also Must Pay Costs in Alexanduria in Death of "Mickey" Kelliher.

NOLO CONTENDERE PLEA

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

William J. Shea, of Washington, alleged driver of an automobile in which Maurice "Mickey" Kelliher, also of Washington, was a passenger on the morning of September 7, when the machine collided with another at Four Mile Run, throwing Kelliher out and fatally injuring him, entered, through his attorneys, T. R. Dyson, of Alexandria, and M. P. Mangam, of Washington, a plea of nolo contendere to the charges of manslaughter and driving while drunk. The jury, on the recommendation of Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan, imposed a fine of $250 and $27 costs.

Kelliher, who was coach and first baseman of the St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria, was well known in Washington and Alexandria sports. Last year he was manager of the Hagerstown Club, of the Blue Ridge League, which won the pennant. He entered professional baseball from the Washington sandlots about 15 years ago, and at one time was given a tryout with the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National League. He was 35 years old at the time of his death and lived at 3455 Fourteenth street northwest, Washington.

The car in which Kelliher was a passenger was in collision with one driven by Stephen Kania, of Sparrows Point, Md., who, together with a companion, Joseph Dodruchny, also of Sparrows Point, received minor bruises. In the car with Shea and Kelliher were Earl J. Garrison and William McKeever, both of Washington, and both of whom were slightly injured in the accident.

The jury yesterday was composed of George M. Reynolds, foreman; G. Raymond Gaines, Frank B. Howard, John C. Page, J. T. Preston, jr., Alfred Thomson, Urban S. Lambert, Julian D. Knight, W. Selden Washington, T. Frank Myers, Louis F. Hoy and R. L. Dawkins.

The Alexandria Rotary Club yesterday entertained the wives and daughters of its members at the weekly luncheon in the George Mason Hotel, with P. C. Goodnow, vice president, presiding. Henry T. Moncure was program chairman, and a musical program was given by the Alexandria Trio. Miss Josephine Blair, Miss Ruth Huntington and Miss Barbara Hunting, and also by Billy Grover, an 11-year-old local student, in vocal selections.

The club decided to appoint a committee to combat communism and arrange for a display in this city of the workings of the Communist organization.

Banks of the city will be closed tomorrow, Thanksgiving Day, and schools will close today until over the week-end, both the public schools and St. Agnes Episcopal School.

Capt. and Mrs. Hopkins, in charge of the local Salvation Army headquarters, have issued an appeal for donations of money or food for the Thanksgiving dinners for the poor, and ask that such be given today, to allow plans for tomorrow to be completed.

H. M. Boykins, representative of the Children's Home Society of Virginia, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel. The election of officers will also be at this meeting, each member of the club having been provided with a list of the nominees in advance to expedite the election.

J. H. Hitaffer, aged 50 years, was arraigned in police court yesterday charged with possession and storing of liquor for sale, the police stating they found a half-gallon of alleged liquor in his home and also 3½ pints in his automobile while it was parked in the 600 block King street. A continuance of the case was granted until today.

CONVICTION RECORD SET BY PROSECUTOR

Guilty Verdict Reached in 30 or 31 Cases Tried in Montgomery.

DOCKET NEARLY CLEAR

Culminating his four-year term as State's attorney for Montgomery County with this court term, Robert E. Peter, jr., is believed to have set a record this week in Circuit Court at Rockville.

State's Attorney Peter prosecuted 31 cases during the week and secured 30 convictions. This disposes of practically all of the 38 indictments returned by the November grand jury. Six of those named have not been arrested, as yet, and one case is to be tried today.

The trial of criminal cases in this term is almost completed, there being but about a dozen criminal appeals left for hearing, which probably will be disposed of this week or next. If the court docket continues to be cleared at the present rate, it is possible that the trial of the Brady brothers, Herman and Leroy Brady, for the alleged murder of Herman's wife and small sister and brother, in the Seat Pleasant bombing of New Year's Day, will be reached early in December. It was transferred from Prince Georges County. Leroy Brady has been tried once but the jury disagreed.

Carlton Russell, colored, 20 years old, was convicted of criminal assault on Sarah Davis, colored, 61 years old, yesterday by a jury in circuit court. Sentence was not pronounced by Judge Robert B. Peter yesterday. The maximum punishment is capital punishment but it is not believed that the judge will invoke the extreme penalty.

Charles A. Shelley, colorey, was sentenced to serve 22 months and Thomas Henry, colored, to serve 6 months, after conviction on charges of larceny of chickens at Darnestown.

The Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday approved the action of the Montgomery County general courthouse building committee, which met last Tuesday at Rockville, in appointing a committee to canvass the desirability of purchasing the property in the rear of the present courthouse for use in connection with the courthouse building project. The commissioners did not commit themselves on the project beyond approving the appointment of the committee.

A letter from the Fairland Community Association was received which commended the county commissioners for their interest in the construction of a 5-mile stretch of road at Fairland.

The Washington Railway & Electric Co. will discontinue its stret car service to Cabin John from the District line Monday, and will substitute bus service. This action is taken while repairs are being made to several trestles.

Work on the trestles has already started and it is expected to be far enough advanced by Monday to make it necessary to stop the street cars. The streetle nearest to the District line is to be entirely replaced, while three others are being repaired.

The work was ordered by the company, following a discovery in the inspection of bridges by the company experts, that ten bridges from Georgetown to Cabin John needed repairs. Six in the District have ben repaired. The buses will be operated on Conduit road and will connect with the emergency terminus. No additional fare charge will be made.

BULLET FIND AIDS 2 NURMI SUSPECTS

Discovery in Home Said to Strengthen Claim That Victim Had Fired Gun.

M'GUIRE HUNTS CABMAN

Defendants facing manslaughter charges in the slaying of Arvi Nurmi scored effectively yesterday when investigators discovered a pistol slug imbedded in the kitchen floor in the Nurmi house at Takoma Park, Md., to strengthen their claim that the 24-year-old Census Bureau clerk had demonstrated his pistol there on the night of his death.

The shot, resembling the .25 caliber lead which lodged in Nurmi's skull to kill him last Wednesday night at the end of a liquor party, was found by Henry W. McGuire, 29-year-old fellow employe of Nurmi and one of the victim's two companions who are at liberty under bond on manslaughter charges in the case.

Says Nurmi Owned Gun.

He made the discovery in company with his attorney, Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, and Montgomery County Policeman Theodore Raines, after previous searches of the kitchen had failed to reveal either of the two bullets, which McGuire consistently maintained had been fired into the floor by Nurmi. His claim also that a bullet had been fired by Nurmi at the same time into the cellar was substantiated in part by the previous finding of a slug at the bottom of the cellar steps.

McGuire stoutly maintained that Nurmi possessed the .25-caliber pearl-handled pistol which was found alongside the body in the driveway of the home, and that Nurmi had exhibited the weapon by firing the three shots shortly after entering the home last Wednesday night with him, and John J. O'Brien, 24 years old, unemployed, of Chapin street, near Fifteenth street northwest. O'Brien is the other defendant.

Taxi Driver Sought.

The defense announced that it will seek to determine the make of the lead slug in the hope of establishing the fact that Nurmi used in the weapon both Remington and Peters shells, and that no other pistol figured in the case. The defense pointed out that police previously found either slugs or empty shells of both makes, and that this new find will strengthen their case, regardless of what may prove the manufacture of the bullet which caused the death.

Defense counsel made public that McGuire was seeking to locate the taxicab operator who drove him, Nurmi and O'Brien to Nurmi's home on the night of the latter's death. McGuire has contended that the taxicab driver saw Nurmi brandish the pistol. The driver, he said, drove the three to the home from a speakeasy in southwest Washington, where Nurmi and O'Brien were declared by police to have joined McGuire in the party.

ABDUCTION CHARGED TO WASHINGTONIAN

Salesman Held in Richmond After Taking Hotel Room With Capital Woman.

TALE OF BEATINGS TOLD

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25.—Roy Burrell, salesman, 33 years old, of Washington, giving his address there as Q street, near Sixteenth street northwest, is being held here pending the outcome of an investigation by Department of Justice agents in which the Richmond police are cooperating. He was taken into custody Saturday night after he is alleged to have registered at a Richmond hotel with Elizabeth Eagan, 23 years old, of Thirteenth street, near A street northeast, Washington, as man and wife.

The case was called to the attention of the Federal authorities when the girl told the police that he had brought her here from Washington over her protest. According to her story, Burrell had been paying her attention for the past two years. Last Saturday afternoon she went motoring with him. They crossed the river into Virginia and had passed Alexandria when she objected to going any farther. Burrell stopped to get some gasoline, and when she jumped out of the car he beat her, she declared, and forced her to get back into the machine.

He continued on his way to Richmond, beating her again before they arrived here, it is alleged. In the hotel room she became unconscious after he had again beaten her, she told police. When she came to and he fell asleep, she slipped out of the room, telephoned to her father, Martin Eagan, in Washington, telling of her plight. Overhearing the phone talk, hotel officials called in the police, with the result that Burrell was taken into custody.

The girl was also taken to jail to be held as a witness, but she was removed Sunday morning to Memorial Hospital, where she has been under treatment. The doctors said there tonight that she is severely bruised about the face and body, but they thought she would be able to leave the hospital in a day or two. A brother from Washington was here today to see her and to confer with the investigating authorities. She is slenderly built and very frail. Burrell is scheduled for a hearing in police court tomorrow.

Virginia County Treasurer Is Suspended by Governor

Pollard Acts Following Report of State Auditor That Official's Accounts Are $92,763 Short; He Claims State Owes Him.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—J. M. Weston, treasurer of Lee County, Va., was suspended from office today by Gov. John Garland Pollard on the basis of a State auditor's report that Weston was short in his accounts, $92,763.

The governor yesterday conducted a hearing on the advisability of suspending the county officer. Counsel for Weston urged postponement of the hearing pending completion of an audit by the county board of supervisors, but Gov. Pollard denied the request and announced that he would act immediately.

State Auditor C. Lee Moore advised the governor last May that there was a discrepancy in Weston's accounts and soon afterward Weston employed a private auditor to check his books. Several weeks ago the treasurer reported to the board of supervisors that the private audit showed the county indebted to him.

A provision of Virginia law that officers suspended by the governor may be reinstated by the Legislature is inoperative in Weston's case since his term expires before convening of the next Legislature.

DISSENT MARKS WAR UPON CHICAGO GANGS

Gambling Lid Clamped On; Judges Debate Rulings Upon Bails, Writs.

$150,000 BOND IS SET

Chicago, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The war between the "public" and its "enemies" continued today, enlivened by dissension in the ranks of the "public."

As the lid was clamped down on gambling in the loop and another gangster was held on $150,000 bail, the breach which was threatened for some time between Judge John Lyle, crusading municipal jurist, and members of the criminal court, broke into the open.

The developments against the "public enemies," as well as most of the fire in the battle of judges, came from Judge Lyle's court. He continued the trial of "West Side John" Barry, on charges of burglary and larceny, and set his bond at $150,000.

Police Criticized.

Barry and James ("Fur") Sammons, who also drew a recent bond of $150,000 from Judge Lyle, are charged with burglary from the Morand Bros. liquor warehouse four years ago.

Judge Lyle then called Chief of Detectives John Norton and asked him why, with 5,000 men on the police force at his disposal, he had been unable to drive out "a little band of assassins headed by Capone and Maran." Norton replied that the police were doing the best they could and picking up the "enemies" as fast as they could.

The jurist then opened an attack on some of the other judges, naming Judge Joseph B. David in particular, and saying it sometimes did the police no good to arrest men as the courts released them right away.

"Mad Dogs" Freed.

Referring to Judge David's reduction of the bonds of Claude Maddox, Capone gangster held on a charge of attempting to kill a policeman, Judge Lyle said his colleague "seems to be willing to turn criminals out on the street."

"I don't understand his psychology," continued Judge Lyle. "There seem to be two judges who are out of harmony in this regard. They explain they are following the law, but I don't think they are when they turn these mad dogs out on the street."

Judge Lyle was in turn criticized, although not mentioned by name, by Judge Harry Fisher, in a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus for Dominic Brancato, Capone gangster sentenced to six months by Judge Lyle for vagrancy, after he had pleaded for a continuance to enable him to get an attorney.

Plagued With Writs.

"It hardly seems credible," said Judge Fisher. "The criminal court is being plagued with writs of this kind charging conduct on the part of a judge which is unbelievable. This writ charges falsification of the records. Such a charge is more serious than the detention of an individual and the Court wants a little time to ascertain its jurisdiction in the matter." He continued the hearing to Friday.

The gambling lid, which has been lowered and lifted frequently in the past, was reported "on tight" today, on orders of Acting Police Commissioner John Alcock. All Loop handbooks were closed and other gambling establishments were reported to have suspended operations, at least temporarily.

Danville, Va., Nov. 25.—Thirty-one years ago or in the early part of January, 1898, C. E. Mason, of Reidsville, N. C., near here worked for two days as an extra brakeman for the Southern Railway Co. Last Saturday Mason received a check from Southern headquarters of the railway company in Washington for $4.12 wages owing him since the short spell of work.

By mistake the voucher was sent to Asheville, N. C., where it remained and was then sent back to Washington where it had since lain. Mason sent a belated query recently and received his two days wages without compound interest.

Live Stock Is Saved As Fire Razes Barn

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Nov. 25.—The barn of Floyd Swimley and several adjoining buildings, with their contents, and a strawstack, were burned in an early-morning fire here yesterday. The fire started in the strawstack. Its origin is undetermined.

Mr. and Mrs. Swimley saw the fire after it had made considerable headway, but were able to save the live stock from the stable. The fire's reflection was seen in Ranson, a mile away, and an alarm was turned in. The loss will amount to several thousand dollars, partially covered by insurance.

SOVIET TRADE BAN DENIED BY HOOVER

President Declares Barrier to Convict-Made Goods Applies to All.

PROOF PUT ON IMPORTER

(Associated Press.)

Additional assurance that new Treasury regulations to bar goods made by convict labor are not aimed at Soviet Russia was given yesterday by President Hoover.

In approving these regulations, Secretary Mellon had declared they were not aimed at any particular country but were of general application. It was said in Treasury circles, however, that experience gained from controversies over goods produced by the Soviet had been used in framing the rules.

The regulations, made in compliance with provisions of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, are general, the President said, and are in the ordinary course of making more effective the enforcement of laws against convict-made goods.

Mr. Hoover added that the United States has not entered into and does not intend to enter into any trade conflicts with Russia. He said that, on the contrary, this country plans to carry on trade exchanges in the usual way with all nations.

The new rules enable the customs authorities to compel importers to prove convict labor did not enter into their production, in contrast to previous regulations where the burden of proof was upon the Customs Bureau. If the goods are found to have been made by convicts, the commissioner of customs may require a bond which can be collected as damages if the decision is sustained.

Complaints that Soviet products are produced by convict labor have been frequent, and, at one time, several shipments of pulpwood from Siberia were barred. Investigation disclosed, however, the Treasury said, there was no proof of the assertions, so the shipments were admitted.

Charges have been renewed from time to time that the pulpwood was convict made and that Russian manganese and coal also were produced by indentured labor.

RUSSIAN UNIONISTS ASK DEATH OF EIGHT

Trial of Industrial Party Leaders for Treason Opens in Moscow.

COURTROOM IS CROWDED

Moscow, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—While the trial of eight leaders of "the Industrial party," charged with high treason and plotting foreign intervention in Russia, proceeded within "The House of Columns," the Moscow Trade Union, more than half a million unionist workers, tonight paraded past the building with numerous banners demanding their execution.

The parade was one of the greatest demonstrations of its kind in the history of Moscow. It proceeded through the principal streets of the capital, and as the marchers passed "The House of Columns" they shouted, "Death to agents of imperialism!"

Banners in the huge parade read: "We demand supreme punishment for counter-revolutionists and order of Lenin for Ogpu (secret police)," "Death to initiators of intervention," "Death to agents of our class enemies," "Plotters against government must be shot," "No mercy to class enemies," and hundreds of other similar slogans.

Indictments Are Read.

The opening of the trial was occupied principally with the reading of indictments, which included portions of "confessions" of the accused. Two lawyers were appointed to represent the defendants.

The courtroom was crowded with Russians who intently observed the attitude of the prisoners, closely guarded by Red soldiers. The defendants seemed the most composed persons present, some smoking cigarettes and reading magazines while clerks droned out the indictments. The prisoners appeared better dressed than any others in the courtroom.

Four judges sat wearily smoking cigarettes while the indictments were read, all dressed in soft-collared shirts in a most informal manner.

Prosecutor Watches Idly.

Chief Prosecutor Krilenko, who already has sent many men to death, idly watched the proceedings. He said he was uncertain how long the trial would last, possibly two weeks more or less. The courtroom seemed like a theater with the judges, prisoners, clerks and lawyers on a stage and the audience crowding the orchestra and galleries. Many women and girls were scattered throughout the courtroom, most of them wearing some article of red in their costumes.

In the orchestra pit, surrounding the stage, was a battery of movie and talkie cameries recording every movement of the prisoners, judges, lawyers and clerks. Directly in front of the stage more than 100 local and foreign journalists watched the proceedings. Soldiers surrounded the building and only those with tickets were permitted to enter.

SIR RONALD PRAISES U. S.-BRITISH PEACE

Envoy Defends English Policy in India at Dinner in New York.

HOUGHTON ALSO SPEAKS

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Guest of honor tonight at a dinner of the English-Speaking Union of the United States, Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, called the relations between Great Britain and America the most pacific in the history of their separate political existences.

He defended briefly his country's policy in India and urged extension of the principles of the London naval treaty to further the cause of international disarmament of every kind.

In his optimism over Anglo-American relations Sir Ronald was joined by a fellow speaker, Alanson B. Houghton, former American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and Sir Ronald's defense of Britain's Indian policy was elaborated upon by Sir Harcourt Butler, former high British official in India. John W. Davis, president of the English-Speaking Union, presided, and some 800 persons attended.

Cites Dominion's Status.

Great Britain learned 150 years ago that liberal democracy was a thing to be exported abroad as well as defended at home, the British Ambassador said.

"Only a few years after the establishment of your own independence we endowed Canada with representative institutions," he continued. "South Africa had free self-government only five or six years after the end of the Boer war—Australia in the forties.

"It is quite inconceivable that any British government should make to India an offer that would not be regarded by any impartial outside observer as instinct with true liberalism."

The ambassador dwelt on common traits of the British and American peoples, using as example the common endowment of institutions of learning and charity.

Urges Naval Discussion.

Former Ambassador Houghton urged immediate and open discussion of American and British naval relations.

"Parity, so-called, does not touch the underlying problem of our naval relations," he said. "It is possible, entirely possible, that at the moment no agreement covering this problem can be reached. An effort to solve it, if it did nothoing else, would serve to make clear at what precise points and for what precise reasons we differed.

"What do we gain by not facing that problem frankly?"

In his talk on India, Sir Harcourt Butler said: "India is the creation of the British. The British, through their language, law and prolonged peace, have given the beginnings of a feeling of unity in India. The British have embarked upon the experiment, one of the greatest in history, of giving Western representative institutions of a democratic type to this mass of peoples, based so far as the Hindus or half the population are concerned on the most rigid and persistent system of caste that the world has known."

Dawes Speaks in London.

London, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The love of law and order and a mutual spirit of adventure were declared tonight by Ambassador Charles G. Dawes to be two of the greatest bonds existing between Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Dawes presided at a meeting in the English-Speaking Union headquarters, where Maj. Gen. J. E. B. Seely, noted British soldier and civil official, spoke on the spirit of adventure in Britain and America.

Society Aviatrix Ready For Early Start West

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—After being grounded for four hours by adverse weather conditions, Miss Ruth Nichols, New York society aviatrix, groomed her plane tonight for an early start tomorrow on the second stage of her flight for a new women's transcontinental record.

Miss Nichols, seeking the record held by Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, of Australia, landed here Monday noon from Roosevelt Field, intent on continuing to Wichita, but was halted by reports of hazardous flying conditions between Columbus and St. Louis.

Today she was held here by head winds and snow flurries throughout the Central West.

Nevada Governor's Daughter Is Married

Reno, Nev., Nov. 25 A.P.).—Phylis Balzar, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Fred B. Balzar, and George Vargas, of Reno, surprised the University of Nevada campus today with an announcement that they were married in August, 1929.

Both are senior students. They had hoped to keep the wedding secret until their graduation from the university next June. The formal announcement was made after the news leaked out. The bride is the only daughter of Nevada's governor. Vargas, who is prominent in student affairs, intends to take a course in law at Stanford University after his graduation.

Poland Takes Action Against Vote Officials

Warsaw, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Prompt disciplinary action has been taken by the government in connection with disorders at Johenbirken, on the eve of the Silesian Senate elections, when a crowd treated persons belonging to the German minority in a rough manner.

The mayor and local schoolmaster have been suspended. The chief of police has been transferred to another district. A special grant of 3,500 zlotys (about $393) was made to citizens of German descent, who suffered as a result of the incident.

Aimee McPherson Near Collapse, Doctor Says

Los Angeles, Nov 25 (A.P.).—Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, was in a state of "partial collapse" at her Angelus Temple home today, Dr. Edward H. Williams, her physician, reported. Dr. Williams said he would order Mrs. McPherson to take a "three months rest and quit traveling as she is a very sick woman."

Mrs. McPherson's home has been under armed guard since she arrived from New York Sunday. The temple business manager, H. C. Winters, at that time reported she had suffered a collapse on the train necessitating an ambulance to carry her home.

SMITH CASE JURY STILL LACKING ONE

as causing many prospective jurors to disqualify themselves.

In order to provide opposing attorneys with plenty of material, Justice Hitz yesterday morning issued a call for a special venire of 200, to report in court at noon. United States marshals, however, were unable to round them up by that time, and the remaining available panels were quickly exhausted.

Since the trial opened Monday morning a total of 109 talesmen have been examined, 98 of whom have been disqualified or challenged.

Those tentatively selected when court adjourned yesterday are Charles W. Stanford, 2419 Minnesota avenue southeast, a salesman; Nestor A. Gnash, 338 Maryland avenue northeast, a student; Philip A. Simpson, vice president of Simpson's Dairy; Edwin Wenttang, 80 Seaton place northwest, a clerk; William L. Bishop, 154 Eleventh street southeast, assistant branch manager American Ice Co; Harvey V. Avery, 1440 R street northwest, a contractor; Walter R. Dickie, 1218 Hemlock street northwest, a radio operator; B. Leroy Yowell, 1503 Monroe street northeast, a salesman, Mildred Robertson, 6516 Eighth street northwest, a clerk for the Washington Baseball Club; Walter S. Jackson, 4812 Illinois avenue northwest, a salesman, and Mrs. Ethel E. Lewis, 133 U street northeast, housewife.

Five of the eleven tentative jurors were selected yesterday, an equal number having been removed from the box during the day by challenge.

Although it appears likely that the Smith jurors, if selection is completed today, will miss their Thanksgiving holidays at home, attorneys on both sides hold out the hope that they will be home for Christmas.

While the Government has announced its intention of calling more than 100 witnesses and the defense will call about half that number, both Nugent Dodds, acting Assistant Attorney General, and Wilton J. Lambert, chief of defense counsel, have expressed their intention of speeding the case to an early conclusion as soon as the arduous task of selecting a satisfactory jury is completed.

Defendants in the case are G. Bryan Pitts, C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., former Smith Co., officers. They are charged with conspiracy to embezzle and to conceal documents of the company.

ment he said that discussion of an extra session at this time was premature, but "from my standpoint, it is desirable to avoid one if practical."

Speeded Action Urged.

Asserting that the pressing need was the passage of emergency relief measures, he said:

"While no doubt other important subjects will require attention by Congress, I regard it as indispensable to public welfare that all cooperate in passage of measures of relief in the drought-stricken areas. The unemployment situation is acute and needs attention."

His most significant statement, bearing on an extra session was:

"It is quite doubtful whether the intense agitation of parties' differences, which can not be reconciled, will be helpful, while both houses of Congress are evenly divided and the executive is in control of the Republicans."

Fight Thought Futile.

This is an answer to those who have asserted the Democrats should force an extra session, take over the legislative branch, with the aid of the insurgents, and put through their program without waiting for the December, 1931, session.

It seems to ask just what could be accomplished under the situation Robinson describes.

His willingness to cooperate on emergency measures in no way implied an indorsement of Republican policies, Robinson made plain.

Robinson gave a luncheon for the party leaders, incidentally, and also had Bernard M. Baruch in attendance. Party politics and policy were the subjects of an informal discussion then.

Silent on Modification.

At the conclusion of the gathering newspapermen interviewed Mr. Baruch on prohibition, and he gave it as his opinion that the Democrats would have a wet plank in 1932, although, he said, he thought modification of the Volstead act was of more immediate concern.

Robinson, hooked in on the interview, said he did not believe the party would declare for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and that he himself was against repeal. Asked about modification, he said:

"I do not wish to comment on modification." Quite significant, one might say.

must be adopted as presented. The Reichstag has already approved the program.

The chancellor confers with the German Nationalists Wednesday and his final decision on his course of action is not expected until the following day. If his program is put into effect by emergency decree by President Von Hindenburg the Reichstag can demand its annulment. The government's fate would then depend entirely upon the Socialists, whose attitude can not now be predicted and in whose ranks recent indications poin to the possibility of a coming secession from the Radical Left Wing and the reorganizing of the former Independent Socialist party.

Bruening has not conferred with the National Socialist (Fascist) leaders.

SELECTION OF HOUSE BUILDING BID NEARS

Contract May Be Awarded When Special Committee Meets on Saturday.

$5,200,000 IS LOW OFFER

Contract for construction of the new House Office Building is expected to be awarded Saturday by the special House committee in charge of the building. Members of the committee are to meet Saturday with David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, to consider bids.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth is chairman of the committee, and Representative Isaac Bacharach (Republican), New Jersey, is the second majority party representative. Representative John Garner (Democrat), Texas, minority leader in the House, represents his party.

The lowest bid under study calls for an expenditure of approximately $5,200,000 and was submitted by the Consolidated Engineering Co., Inc., of Baltimore.

A total expenditure of $7,500,000 has been authorized for construction of the new quarters. Some work on the project already has been done, contracts already having been let on the excavation necessary for the foundation and for the foundation, too. The contract, which, it is expected, will be awarded Saturday, will call for construction of the building above the foundations.

Furnishings for the new office building will be provided for in separate contracts to be let later.

The meeting of the House Office Building Commission may cause the postponement of the hearing which Senator Smoot (Republican, Utah), chairman of the Public Buildings Commission, has called for Saturday to consider location of the new War and Navy Building.

South American Flight In Baby Plane Halted

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Two youthful fliers in a baby plane, with a two-cylinder motor in which they plan to fly to South America, were forced by rain and low visibility to land yesterday at Fullerton, 10 miles from here, and today awaited clearing weather before resuming their flight.

Edward Winegerter, 25, a former marine, and Joseph Jones, 19, left Caldwell, N. J., yesterday in a 28-horsepower machine carrying 8 gallons of gasoline. They planned to reach Baltimore for the night. They made a landing at Newcastle, Del.

Fire Damages British Steamer at Charleston

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Fire of undetermined origin today damaged the British steamer Nitonian which was loading a cargo of tobacco, cotton and cotton waste here for Liverpool and Manchester. The flames broke out in lower hold No. 4 and spread to another hold before they were extinguished. While the damage was thought to be largely from water, no estimate was made of it pending removal of the cargo and a survey of the vessel.

The Nitonian came here from Brunswick, Ga. Built in 1912, the Nitonian is owned by F. Leyland Co., Liverpool. She is 400.3 feet long and has a net tonnage of 4,066.

J. P. Morgan Is Given Law Degree at Oxford

Oxford, England, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—J. P. Morgan, with a blue velvet hat in his hand and a scarlet gown falling from his broad shoulders, stood on a dais in the consultation hall here today and listened to a long speech, in Latin, which made him a doctor of civil laws.

He was solemn and attentive during this ceremony, but immediately thereafter he broke into a broad smile as the audience applauded enthusiastically. Then he posed for photographers, an unusual concession.

FREEZING FORECAST; SNOW IS HELD LIKELY

Second Storm Is Due to Hit Capital on Thanksgiving or Day After.

COLD GRIPS MIDWEST

Freezing temperatures, with either snow or rain, are in prospect for the Capital for the remainder of the week, according to forecasts of the Weather Bureau yesterday.

Washington now is suffering from the tail-end of the disturbance which centered over Lake Superior Sunday and which has been moving steadily eastward. However, no letup in the cold wave is expected because a second storm, originating in Alaska and moving southeast, is on its way and expected to reach here Thanksgiving Day or Friday.

Weather Bureau officials held out some hope (if there are those who do hope) for a white Thanksgiving tomorrow, but qualified the prediction with the statement that the expected snow might turn into rain before it reaches Washington.

A warning to motorists from the American Automobile Association accompanied the drop in temperature, the association urging use of anti-freeze solutions in radiators, with a minimum of 28 degrees predicted for last night.

Middle West Doubly Hit.

Chicago, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—One storm crowding at the heels of another gave the Middle West a biting dose of winter today and the prospects of a white, but cold, Thanksgiving.

The Central States had not yet recovered from the cold snap that headed for the Atlantic Coast when another one swept in from the Northwest to outdo its predecessor with lower temperatures and a more general snowfall.

Temperatures considerably below normal and a steady snowfall spread over most of the region, including the upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys and the Great Lakes. High winds in the western portion of the area made up for any lack of snow.

The Weather Bureau expected the cold to last until after the Thanksgiving holiday, but predicted that the snow would stop some time tomorrow.

Chicago and northern Illinois were blanketed by snow that fell nearly all day. In the metropolitan area thousands of homeless unemployed sought shelter as the mercury dipped to 16, the lowest of the season. Warnings were issued to Lake Michigan navigators during the afternoon telling of a snow and wind storm due over the lake.

"Crazy" Weather in Iowa.

In Iowa the weather was described as "crazy" with a blizzard apparently on the way one moment and clearing skies the next. South Dakota telephone companies warned of a new cold wave, rushed work of repairing telephone lines torn down in last week's storm. Aberdeen was still without long distance lines, six days after the previous storm. Unconfirmed reports from the Scatterwood Lake region in South Dakota said thousands of pheasants, killed by sleet last week, were being picked up by the wagonloads.

A strong northwest wind swept Nebraska, reaching a maximum velocity of 51 miles at Lincoln. Roofs were blown off, telephone lines torn down, signs and windows wrecked, and snow piled into large drifts to delay train and motor travel.

It snowed steadily in North Dakota and Minnesota and a strong wind in the former State started drifts that threatened to isolate many communities.

One Dead in Kentucky.

Atlanta, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—One death had been attributed tonight to the cold wave that swept into the South last night, bringing snow and freezing temperatures to portions of most Dixie States.

A man known only as "Riley" was found frozen to death in a shack along the Ohio River near Ludlow, Ky. He was the first victim of winter weather in northern Kentucky where the mercury dropped to 23 degrees.

The coldest point in the South was the peak of Mount Mitchell in western North Carolina, whereta temperature of zero was recorded at 7 a. m., today.

At Louisville, Ky.; Helena, Ark., and Asheville, N. C., the mercury dropped to 24 degrees; at Huntsville and Florence, Ala., in the Tennessee River Valley, the reading was 25 and 26, respectively.

Temperatures of 28 were recorded at Little Rock, Ark., and Nashville, Tenn., while the thermometer fell to 30 at Atlanta, Birmingham and Meridian, Miss.

Spreads to Gulf Coast.

The cold wave spread as far south as the Gulf Coast. The mercury dropped to 2 degrees above freezing at Pensacola, Fla.; at Mobile, Ala., the low reading was 36 and at New Orleans, La., 10 degrees above freezing was registered.

A howling northwest wind brought snow to the border States and flurries were noted at points farther South. Anniston, Ala., reported a fall of one-tenth of an inch, and three-quarters of an inch was noted at Okford, Ala. Snow fell at several other points in the Carolinas.

Partly cloudy and colder weather was forecast generally for the Southern States tomorrow, with snow expected in Tennessee and Kentucky.

Hoover, Coolidge Wreaths At Mrs. Schmid's Funeral

First Ladies Honor Memory of Capital Woman; Prominent in Grotto Work, Eastern Star and Swiss Society.

Floral wreaths personally sent by Mrs. Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge honored the memory of Mrs. Edward S. Schmid, 75 years old, a well-known resident of Washington, for whom funeral services were held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Wright's funeral home, 1337 Tenth street northwest.

The Rev. J. T. Huddle, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, officiated. Interment was in Rock Creek Cemetery.

A continuous resident of Washington since birth, Mrs. Schmid had been associated for many years with her husband in conducting Schmid's Bird Store, 712 Twelfth street northwest, where they also made their home. Throughout its long operation the store enjoyed the patronage of many notables, Mrs. Coolidge, as First Lady of the Nation, visited the shop on many occasions and formed a warm friendship with Mrs. Schmid. Mrs. Hoover sent with her flowers a message of condolence.

Various other floral wreaths were sent by the Supreme Council of the Grotto, an organization extending throughout the United States and Canada which Mr. Schmid formerly headed as grand monarch; the Kallipolis Grotto Band here, the Washington Lodge of Elks and the United States Botanic Gardens.

Mrs. Schmid was active as a member of Ruth Chapter, No. 1, Eastern Star, and the Swiss Society. She died Saturday at Sibley Hospital after a week's illness.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. O. A. C. Oehmler and Mrs. Russell Taylor, and three sons, Edward F. Schmid, Clarence L. Schmid and Frank B. Schmid.

Snow Halts Finder Of Burke's Plane

Flier Plans to Land on Lake and "Mush" to Spot in Hunt for Survivors.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Falling snow, driven before a sharp north wind at White Horse, Yukon Territory, prevented E. L. Wasson, who yesterday found the damaged plane of Capt. E. J. A. Burke, from taking off today to revisit the spot to determine whether the occupants had survived the landing.

Wasson found the plane about 50 miles north of Wolfe Lake, in the headwaters of the Liard River, but saw no sign of Burke and his two companions, Emil Kading, mechanic, and Bob Marten, prospector.

He planned to land on a small lake about 15 miles from Burke's plane and accompanied by Joe Walsh, a woodsman, "mush" to the plane.

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Gerald Nettleton, Toledo, Ohio, youth seeking junior transcontinental flight honors, flew his plane here this afternoon from Benson, Ariz., where he was forced down by motor trouble yesterday.

Nettleton reported repair parts installed in the motor today were not working properly. He ordered new ones air mailed from Los Angeles and announced plans to remain here overnight. The youth said he hoped to complete his flight from Newark, N. J., to Lindbergh Field, San Diego, Calif., late tomorrow.

CONGRESS SESSION TO ECHO BAKER CASE

Ballistics as Science Held Likely to Figure in eDbate on Appropriations.

HOLADAY IS INTERESTED

The strange murder of Mary Baker and the developments in the trial of Herbert Campbell for her murder very likely will figure in the hearings before the House on the annual District appropriations bill.

Some members of the District appropriations subcommittee are thought certain to make inquiry about the so-called science of ballistics as it was demonstrated by Maj. Calvin Goddard, prosecution witness, who testified that bullets found in Miss Baker's body were fired from the pistol owned by Campbell.

Representative William P. Holaday, Republican, of Illinois, a member of the subcommittee, has been one of those who have beenOD t.ETAOIN those interested in the development of the use by the District Police Department of the latest discoveries of science to aid in the solution of crime.

Mr. Holaday was instrumental in having inserted in the last appropriation act provision for the study of ballistics by members of the District department among others things and the scheme, now wants to know he, as well as others who approved whether the claim for ballistics as a science was or was not exploded in the trial of Mr. Campbell.

Whether Maj. Goddard demonstrated his infallibility as a judge of what pistol a particular bullet was fired from has never been disclosed brought to an end before he was because the Camapbell trial was ready to submit his report on the tests to which he was submitted.

Alfonso Approves Revamped Cabinet

Motos Named Minister of Interior, Post Resigned by Gen. Marzo.

Madrid, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Changes in the cabinet of Premier Berenguer, caused by the resignation of Gen. Enrique Marzo from the post of minister of the interior, were approved today by King Alfonso.

Gen. Marzo said he resigned because he felt unprepared for the task of convoking the parliamentary elections scheduled for March 1. However, his handling of the recent strike disorders in Spain has been criticized by the press.

In his place Premier Berenguer appointed Leopoldo Motos, who had occupied the post of minister of public improvements. He is considered one of the mainstays of the cabinet. Jose Estrada, minister of justice, was appointed minister of public improvement, and Montes Jovellar, undersecretary of the interior, was made minister of justice. The realigned cabinet held a session today and discussed the future political program with the view of quieting the present atmosphere of uncertainty and unrest.

ONE WILL ALWAYS STAND OUT

What it takes to "get there"!

IT'S a far cry from the conquest of the air to the making of a good cigarette, but a certain "singleness of purpose" distinguishes both.

Chesterfield takes the sure, straight course to the one goal that counts in a cigarette: milder and better taste:

MILDNESS—the wholly natural mildness of tobaccos that are without harshness or bitterness.

BETTER TASTE — such as only a cigarette of wholesome purity and better tobaccos can have.

for MILDER BETTER TASTE

They Satisfy — that's Why!

GETTING BUSY.

Some foolish suggestions for unemployment relief are meeting with a well-deserved protest, and there is rising a general protest against exaggeration of the conditions of depression. With the advent of cold weather a vigorous spirit of recovery is evident throughout the country. This is a self-reliant spirit that has no sympathy with maudlin mourning over hard times, or with foolish suggestions that do more harm than good.

A high officer of the United States who has just completed a countrywide survey in which he made personal examination of conditions advises The Post that the unemployment situation is exaggerated. "The rural and country regions are not much, if any, below normal," said this official. "There is greater unemployment in cities, but not in villages or towns. Throughout the country, community organizations have taken up their own home problems arising from the depression, and are solving them. There is danger that communities may lag a little in this work of self-recovery if too much emphasis is laid upon Federal relief. Self-help is a good rule in dealing with the depression. Millions of individuals are solving their own problem."

The Mayor of Philadelphia does not help matters by suggesting that everybody refrain from giving Christmas presents and devote holiday money to buying food for individuals. His impulses are good, but like other well-meant charitable suggestions his idea, if generally adopted, would increase public hardship. Americans are linked together by chains of demand and supply. The effective method of helping the unfortunate is to give them work. They want employment, not free soup. If Christmas presents are bought this year as usual, tens of thousands of workers will receive benefits, and additional tens of thousands will obtain at least temporary employment. They will attend to their own food supply if they are employed; and the satisfaction of their wants will give work to additional tens of thousands.

Too much stress upon business depression actually makes depression, exactly as a man can make himself sick by worrying over his physical condition. The United States is solvent and growing. Over 1,600,000 new Americans come on the scene every year. This means a steady demand for more necessities. New families need new homes. The normal growth of the United States, regardless of the state of business, calls for innumerable products, equivalent to the construction, equipment and feeding and clothing of a city of 1,600,000 inhabitants, with all needful transportation, shelter, and modern conveniences.

Whether Americans stand and weep over the "awful depression," or manfully master their individual problems, the country will go forward. The alert and optimistic will actually find opportunities in present conditions. Prices are low. That fact spells fortunes to the enterprising who take advantage of low prices to make wise investments in real estate and industry. This is an excellent time for business to acquire raw materials and stocks that will be needed.

The average man should pay no attention to Government plans for aid of the unemployed. He can do more for himself, and do it more quickly, than the Government can do for him. It is by the collective effort of individual hustling Americans, and not by Government dole, that depression will be turned into prosperity.

FREE LABOR PROTECTED.

Officials of the Treasury are determined to halt the importation of convict-made goods from Soviet Russia into the United States. Last summer embargoes were laid down against lumber and pulpwood from Russia, but they were abolished later because the United States did not have sufficient evidence to prove that convict labor entered into production of the goods in question. The new regulations which have just been promulgated by the Treasury shift the burden of proof to the importer.

The regulations are so worded that they apply to all countries, but the conditions with which they deal make them of practical effect in Russia only. Hereafter imports from a country using convict labor in its mining, manufacturing or other industries will be regarded with suspicion. If the Commissioner of Customs finds that convict labor is being used in any respect within a country, he is instructed to require bonds from importers guaranteeing that every cargo of goods shipped therefrom to the United States is the product of free labor. Such shipments must be accompanied also by a certificate showing their origin. The certificate must be signed by the importer under oath. It will be impossible for Russian convict-made goods to pass this barrier.

Congress has also decreed that products of forced or indentured labor shall be excluded, but this provision does not become effective until 1932. In the meantime, the problem of halting the Soviets' dumping program in the United States will depend upon what constitutes convict labor.

In a general sense all labor in Russia falls into the convict class. Tens of thousands of Russians are incarcerated in prison camps for offenses against the dictatorship. They live in wretched circumstances, and are forced to work like domestic animals for the Soviet government. Products of their labor enter into the general export program.

But the entire population of Russia is in virtual slavery. Bolshevism is based on the theory of compulsory labor for the benefit of the state. The writings of Lenine and Trotzky are replete with references to the dominance of the dictatorship over the manpower of the country. In 1920 the Communist regime issued a decree incorporating the entire population into labor armies. Only recently the Communist party instructed the government to mobilize 1,300,000 qualified workers for Soviet industries. Women, children, landless peasants and every one else capable of working was ordered to register for this "industrial army."

Along with this system the Communists worked out a plan to punish "deserters." If a man leaves the work to which he is assigned, he is not only punished but he is faced with disaster; for the reds control every job in the country, as well as the food supply. Rigid laws forbid him to leave Russia. He must bow to the Communist regime or starve.

In this sense the whole population of Russia is convict labor under the bolshevist dictatorship. Those who are not actually serving sentences are under threats which involve their right to live. Russia can not be considered in any other light than a nation of convicts and slaves.

The Treasury is to be commended for dealing with this situation with a firm hand. American labor must not be put in the position of competing with convicts and slaves. Other nations have already taken steps to protect themselves against the dumping of products stolen from the Russian people and manufactured by them under the lash of their Communist masters. Free men can not compete with this system—and the world insists upon being free.

JOIN THE RED CROSS.

The thirteenth annual roll call of the Red Cross draws to a close. The people of America have responded in goodly numbers to the appeal for funds. Thousands of Washingtonians have become members of the organization in the last two weeks, but the quota of 40,000 has not been filled. Last year 29,000 residents of the District enrolled in the Red Cross army. The year before 32,000 became members during the roll call. This year the organization faces the prospect not only of failing to fill the quota, but of failing to reach the enrollment of 1929. Unless the people of Washington rally around the standard in the brief moments that remain of the 1930 roll call the drive will end unsuccessfully.

The year 1930 has not been kind to the people of America. During the summer the country was visited by drought as a result of which in twenty or more States there promises to be widespread suffering and abject misery during the winter months. Unemployment stalks the land. In the cities bread lines and free coal depots have been established. Coming months will witness the usual number of major disasters and there will be the additional need of relieving the distress of the unemployed and the drought-affected. There is a greater need this year than ever before for widespread support of the Red Cross.

It is a privilege, not a duty, to join the Red Cross. Residents of Washington, the Capital City, should not let the 1930 roll call fail.

ELMS FOR THE AVENUE.

While the authorities are at work in remaking Washington it would be well for them to consider the removal of the sycamores that line, but do not embellish, Pennsylvania avenue between the Capitol and the Treasury. It is a pity that the American elm was not given preference to the sycamore along Pennsylvania avenue.

Objections might be made to chopping down the sycamores in order to replace them with a more beautiful tree, such as the elm, on the ground that the experiment might not prove a success. The sycamores, being planted from 18 to 30 feet apart instead of 60 to 75 feet, have a tendency to interlock their limbs, and are not objects of beauty, but they do thrive and furnish shade. Sycamores are well represented among the street trees in various American cities and those abroad. Paris has 26,000 of them, out of a total of 86,000 trees. They are fast growers, their wood is hard, and because deep-rooted they do not upheave sidewalks. But sycamores are, nevertheless, not the ideal tree for adorning the future Pennsylvania avenue.

The American elm is included among the 112,840 trees of Washington, and some are already growing along Pennsylvania avenue. All are apparently in a healthy state, since it is a hardy, long-lived tree. It is one of the best known and most beautiful of native trees. No other combines such strength with such grace. At all seasons of the year the elm is beautiful. In summer it "rises like a great fountain of brilliant green, and in the winter the detail of the arching limbs and pendulous branches stand out in relief against the sky." One of the first trees to bloom in the spring, it is especially adapted to wide streets, as it grows to a great size.

Washington is proud of its trees. Any unnecessary destruction of street trees would be condemned. It is the pleasant duty of residents to preserve these trees, and to see that no harm comes to those now standing. Yet it is felt—and this feeling is shared by some of the country's foremost tree experts—that, for the purpose of beautifying a noble thoroughfare, the substitution of elms would be a progressive step, and one which would receive public approval.

LIGHT ON AMERICA

By ALVA JOHNSTON,
In the New York Herald Tribune.

Plans for the large-scale publication of British official records dating from 1580 to 1600 and throwing light on the prehistory, birth and infancy of the American colonies were announced yesterday by Col. Walter G. Eliot, secretary of the Anglo-American Records Foundation, which has been organized by a distinguished group of Americans to establish a fund of $500,000 for a systematic research into American origins.

The publication, in volumes of 400 pages each, will start with records of great sociological interests which already have been unearthed by British and American archive examiners. These records relate to the motives of early American settlers, such as unemployment, religious and political persecution and various personal motives, and throw much light on the British environment of the early colonists.

The documents furnish a picture of schemes and subterfuges by which men bent on settling in America circumvented British restrictions on immigration. The documents include the papers in suits in England over early American transactions, depositions and testimony regarding the distribution of the profits of merchant adventurers or dividing the loot of pirates, litigation over land grants and innumerable other topics. Some old parchments turned up by recent research explain the origin of American towns and link scores of American families with their ancestral stock.

An incidental value of many court records and depositions recently studied is that they are expressed in the colloquial language of the witness or deponent, and clear up the meaning of many half-understood archaic words. The study of 300-year-old British litigations has shown that rich patches of American history are sometimes embedded in documents whose titles do not suggest that they touch on American concerns.

Three volumes are now in preparation and others will be issued as rapidly as materials of strong American interest are assembled by a group of archivists working in England under the direction of Richard Holworthy. These will make accessible to historians and genealogists thousands of documents which are now virtually inaccessible because of the lack of indexes and orderly arrangement.

The tracing of Americans of colonial stock back to the first American ancestor is often an easy matter, but to follow the first American ancestor or "emigrant" across the Atlantic and there pick up the thread of family history is exceedingly difficult, and the connection is rarely established. The records to be published are expected to bring about the "reconciliation" of the first American and his British parent in hundreds of cases, although the purpose of the Anglo-American Records Foundation is not primarily genealogical.

According to Col. Eliot, the records may be published at a rate up to 40 volumes a year, but can not be published more rapidly because of the lack of men trained in the work of searching ancient records. Specimens of the sidelights cast on early American history and the story of exploration and settlement are given in a statement by Dr. Holworthy. Discussing the promise held forth of historical finds in the British chancery records, he said:

"For instance, in a suit indexed under 'Smith vs. Albemarle,' I recently found a long account of the voyage of Capt. (afterward Sir William) Phips, in search of lost Spanish treasure in the Gulf of Florida. The evidence of a number of the crew is recorded, including that of the diver who brought up the first piece of silver. It was owing to the recovery of this treasure that Phips was knighted and appointed governor of Massachusetts. Another suit gives an interesting account of the matrimonial difficulties of Alexander Selkirk, the prototype of Robinson Crusoe. Cases of witchcraft are occasionally found, and numerous references to early American settlers have come to light."

Dr. Holworthy said that an important case concerning the Mayflower and others relating to the early voyages of the American colonists had been unearthed from between 200,000 and 300,000 documents of the Court of Requests for the period 1603-1645. Describing records of ecclesiastical courts, which have been scarcely touched by publication, Dr. Holworthy pointed out that a large part of the domestic life of the people of England was under the control of the church authorities at the time of the "great emigration" (1600-1650).

"From such records," he said, "the lives of the people of the villages of England can be written with the fullest detail, thus giving the ancestral background of the colonial settlers."

THE HONK VOCABULARY.

For years motorists have had their own way about squawking horns whenever they felt like it, but at last steps are being taken against them, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mexico City has enacted penalties for sounding off at corners where officers are stationed or in front of theaters. New York police, conducting a drive against unnecessary tooters, handed out 888 summonses the first week. If the weird noises of auto horns were intended simply for a warning, as the fire trucks employ their sirens, a jittering public might forgive the wear on weary nerves and the distraction forced by the blasts. But the sudden detonations of sound now may mean so many different things that their original purpose is forgotten. From the vast vocabulary of the honker we gather a few of the phrases he expresses by one long push on the horn button: What's the delay up ahead there? Have a look at my new car, fellow citizens. Scatter for your lives, I'm shooting through. Don't you dare brush my fender. Anybody home on the second floor? Why doesn't that green light come on? I'm in too big a hurry to slow down at this corner. I've been waiting in this line a full minute, officer. Get that old hack out of the way and let me have the road. Hello, there, girlie!

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

GROWTH.

Age brings this thought to me:
What I have willed to be,
I am no more nor less;
Nor parents, neighbors, friends,
Tutors have shaped these ends,
Nor chance nor whim nor guess.
I chose this path to turn,
This truth to grasp or spurn,
This pleasure to enjoy.
Though naught was plain and clear,
I chose my own career,
Even as a boy.

Though now I can not see
What time shall work in me,
This certainly I know,
When turns the cycle round
I shall be later found
Just as I willed to grow,
Wiser if, spite of pain,
Wisdom I've toiled to gain;
Stronger with each advance,
But if content I stay
Seeking no higher way,
I shall not rise by chance.

This to the young I'd say:
Choose all the upward way,
Welcome each test.
Dim though the future seem,
Cling to the lofty dream,
Strive for the best.
Measure life's good and bad,
Take what to strength will add,
Work to a plan;
All that you've dared to be,
God at the last shall see;
Thus grows a man.

Would He Still Believe in Equal Division If He Had Anything to Divide?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

It is common to attribute most of the world's sorrow and suffering to ignorance and stupidity.

The theory is that if all people were educated and blessed with sound sense, everybody would be able to make money and would realize that folly and crime return more loss than profit.

That has a plausible sound, but a little observation will reveal the fact that the solution of great problems is prevented by the dishonesty of men who are neither ignorant nor stupid.

Great matters that determine the weal or woe of the world are in the hands of men who value money and power more than they value right, and these men, dominated by selfishness, neither think honestly nor act honestly.

They choose the course that promises the greatest profit and then invent arguments, ethics and moral principles to justify it.

They deliberately elect to do the thing they know is wrong and as deliberately set about convincing themselves it is right.

In the end they succeed in fooling themselves—or so nearly succeed that they can continue in wrong with a clear conscience and retain their self-respect so long as they refuse to examine their motives.

It is want of honest men that troubles the world.

If every educated and intelligent man should turn honest today and thereafter think and act in complete good faith and sincerity, without subterfuge, dissimulation or self-deceit, every great problem that now baffles the earth could be on the way to solution within a fortnight.

Honest thinking men, determined to abolish war, could prevent it as easily as war between States and counties is now prevented.

Determined to disarm, they could brush aside "technical difficulties" and disarm as easily as one man throws away a pistol.

Men know that stock gambling is an unnecessary evil. They pretend to think it necessary or right because they have an interest in the profits or serve men who have.

They know the right and wrong of the liquor question, the tariff, child labor, our system of jurisprudence, divorce, sex-laden plays and publications, campaign methods, wage scales, industrial contests, bankruptcy laws, the methods of lawyers, taxation and every other moot matter that cries for reformation or solution.

They know the right, but they will not admit it. They see the truth, but will not confess it.

Men support wrong deliberately because there is profit in it. When they can't find the right way, it is because conscience points in one direction and profit in another.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Watch Your Step, Democrats!

Atlanta Constitution.

The Democrats in the Congress should be wise and wary, and sanely careful not to destroy the prospects of a 1932 victory in the Nation for the party. They should realize that the general electorate is in a nervous state of feeling, that sentiment is on a knife edge as between the major parties, and that to attract it winningly to the Democratic party two years hence the hope of good from it growing among the people must be encouraged and not frightened by Democratic party proposals.

Confidence in the fidelity and wisdom of the Republican party has diminished amazingly since 1928. Its star is in eclipse and gloom overcasts the Republican firmament.

The Democrats can increase those conditions by wise and conservative actions between now and the fall of 1932. But if they allow the radicals in the party to offer gold-brick propositions to the people and hold out promises they can have no hope to redeem they will repeat what President Grant discovered—that "the Democrats may be trusted to act the damned fool at the right time to profit the Republican party!"

So the duty of Democratic leaders now forward is to put the fundamental principles of the party before the people and suppress all legislative buncombe and fanciful, if not actually fanatical, schemes as baits for popular favor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Means of Defense Will Prevent Disastrous Losses—Preparedness Insurance, Failure Means Taxation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A decent respect for the preservation of our American institutions would suggest to any straight thinking mind that this Nation have at hand, always, a proper means of defense in case of attack. The views of Mr. E. N. Simms, expressed in this column on Monday, are most certainly sane and patriotic and had his argument gone further it would have been along the line of common sense. Daniel Webster once said: "God gives liberty only to those who are willing to defend it," and centuries ago Aristotle called aloud to the Greeks to prepare for defense.

It is inconceivable that preparedness in America will bring war, but it is axiomatic that it will prevent the losses which this Nation has always suffered from unpreparedness. Owning overshoes, an umbrella or a raincoat never produces a storm; but the owner averts the annoyance of being soaked when the storm arrives.

The Federal Reserve Bank in New York has 90 men in uniform, each wearing a Sam Brown belt filled with cartridges and a loaded gun on his hip, with orders to "Shoot to kill," on occasion. The writer asked one of them if there had ever been an attempt to hold up the bank, and he smiled as he replied, "No, and there never will be; everybody knows that we are prepared."

That is the answer to our pacifist friends who fear that our summer camps will make us a warring nation, and that we should close them and disperse our army and sink our navy. The shower may never come; but it is wise to own a raincoat. The cheapest insurance this Nation can carry is a well-trained army, adequate for police protection at home and abroad, and a navy that is sufficient to carry for our extensive coast line and command the respect of any nation on earth or any sea.

We made a wonderful gesture for peace in 1921, and other nations at once took advantage of our "good will" attitude, and built up their navies faster than before. We can't trust "the fool in the other car" on the road or on the high seas, unless we can command his respect, at least. What we lost in the World War in man power was far in excess of what it would have been had we been prepared to defend ourselves. What it has cost in money thus far we can see from the Treasury reports.

But not until the last dollar of principal and interest has been paid and the last veteran has drawn his final pension can we know what the whole staggering sum amounts to; very much of which is an unnecessary tax upon the present and coming generations.

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Lawyers of Philadelphia Pay Remarkable Tribute to Mr. Justice Roberts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I call to your attention report of a reception given on November 20 to Justice Owen J. Roberts, of the Supreme Court of the United States, which appeared in the newspapers of Philadelphia.

The opinion was expressed by many of the members of the Philadelphia bar that the event was unprecedented in the history of the city and that never had such a great gathering of lawyers so enthusiastically and spontaneously expressed its approval of the choice of one of their number to high office, and its own love and admiration of the man.

The occasion will linger in the memory of every one privileged to be present. As an active practitioner for many years, as a teacher in the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, as a consulting lawyer, as the friend and advisor of younger members of the bar, Justice Roberts enjoyed the extraordinary faculty of knowing and greeting personally a great majority of the lawyers present.

To many he was the beloved teacher, who not only taught legal fundamentals and reduced complex legal problems into their simple elements, but who recognized each student as an individual and never lost interest in him as such. To others he was the resourceful adversary, a vigorous fighter but a chivalrous opponent, according every courtesy, and ready for an amicable adjustment of disputed matters. With such a background his position as the leading attorney of the city, consulted by high and low, is understandable. A great physical frame, a remarkable memory, an encyclopedic grasp of the law, experience in every court of the State, heir by virtue of all these to the mantle of the late John G. Johnson; modest and simple and kindly withal, leader in every worth-while civic movement, it is to be wondered that the Philadelphia bar, long sensible of the caliber of the man, so wholeheartedly says "God speed to the Justice in his new task!"

Wood Alcohol Poison, but Useful in Industry—Moral: Don't Drink Alcohol.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice many articles warning the public against the dangers of wood alcohol. It is true that wood alcohol is a poison when taken as a beverage or accidentally through the mouth. I doubt that wood alcohol is dangerous when used as an antifreeze mixture when properly prepared. Wood alcohol is a useful ingredient in many mechanical and chemical operations. It is only too easy to become excited over the dangers of wood alcohol, just as it is easy to become alarmed at reports of the imbibing of chloroform, prussic acid, corrosive sublimate or any other poison.

The alarm sent out to discredit wood alcohol is merely trade rivalry. All alcohols have their places in industry. Tests are now being made by the United States Bureau of Mines to determine the extent of toxicity of wood alcohol. Broadly speaking, nobody need be afraid of any alcohol unless he drinks it. C. A. NORWAY OBSERVES ROYAL ANNIVERSARY

Denmark Joins in Marking 25th Year Since Haakon Assumed Throne.

PRINCE GEORGE PRESENT

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Denmark joined with Norway today in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of assumption of King Haakon VII of the country's throne. King Haakon, until he became ruler of Norway, was Prince Carl of Denmark.

King Haakon and Queen Maud naturally were the chief figures in the national celebration but grouped around them in the capital's principal church in a solemn commemorative ceremony this morning was a royal company that included King Christian and Queen Alexandria of Denmark, other members of the Danish royal family, and Prince George of England, who is the nephew of Queen Maud.

Many thousands of Oslo's population turned out to applaud the royal figures as they arrived at the church and the edifice was crowded with many of the city's prominent people. The commemorative service was of simple character with a suitable ritual and music, the sermon being delivered by the rector, Dr. Maroni.

Many gifts have reached the royal pair from all over the world. The Shipowners Association, representing Norway's great mercantile fleet, donated a large painting depicting Haakon's entrance into Oslo 25 years ago.

No representatives of the Swedish royal family was present except those who are blood relatives of the Norwegian royal figures, such as the Princess Ingeborg, who, although wife of Prince Carl of Sweden, is a sister of King Haakon.

Although relations between Norway and Sweden have never been more friendly, and there is the warmest feeling between the Swedish and Norwegian royal families, the Norwegian people would not expect any member of the Swedish royal family to come to Oslo to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of dissolution of the union between Sweden and Norway.

The dissolution cost the Swedish royal family its rights of inheritance to the Norwegian throne. In arranging today's celebration it was foreseen that there might be embarrassment if any of the Swedish royalty were present, since the Norwegian orators at such a festivity could hardly help recalling the principal political events leading up to Haakon's assumption of the throne.

ITALO-RUSSIAN PACT FOR TRADE IS SEEN

any other power. It is natural that Italy's national economic life should seek integration with that of Russia by means of an active exchange of products and organic dicipline of activity."

Should Seek Outlets.

Contending that Italy, through defects in the peace treaty, was cut off from any large productive center of raw materials, it says, "it is natural, therefore, that Italy should seek wherever she can, and wherever it is useful to her, contracts with other countries for her needs of supply and sale."

It holds that differences between the Fascist and Soviet regimes count for nothing, declaring, "regimes are the internal affairs of each country." It points out that Russia, recognized by Italy and many other countries, has its own international entity.

"Europe's international political combinations are consolidating themselves, as daily experience shows us, by means of the most diverse internal political forms," it adds.

Geneva, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Speculation ran rife here today on the significance of the conference at Milan yesterday between Dino Grandi and Maxim Litvinoff, foreign ministers respectively of Italy and Russia.

It was generally agreed that the conference was of great importance, but a difference of opinion existed as to whether it concerned political or economic matters.

See Chance of Alliance.

The extreme opinion voiced here saw the possibility of a strong political bond between the Soviet government and the Fascist state. According to this theory the Italians, the Russians and Germany are viewed as linked into a formidable bloc, which would arouse concern, particularly in France and her allied nations.

More conservative observers, however, express confidence that the conference was almost entirely economic. They point to the recent agreement for the exchange of certain goods between the two nations and say it is quite natural that M. Litvinoff, who has not been foreign minister long, should take advantage of the opportunity to get acquainted with Signor Grandi as Italy is very important economically to the Soviet's plans.

They contend that Russia hardly would venture into a political alliance with a state so "radically capitalistic" as Italy. As for Germany entering an alliance with Russia and Italy, they contend that German-Soviet relations are not particularly warm at present and that President Hindenburg has not forgotten the role Italy played in the great war.

FEDERATION LAYS CLAIM TO SUCCESSOR FOR DAVIS

the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, one of the "big four" organizations not affiliated with the federation.

Opposes Naming Doak.

President Green's visit to the White House came a few days after what was described as an "authoritative" report that President Hoover was of a mind to name William N. Doak as Secretary of Labor when the incumbent, Mr. Davis, goes to the Senate next month.

Doak, who lives in nearby Virginia, is the legislative representative here of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Besides, he is an outstanding Republican. In the campaign of 1928, he worked like a Trojan for Herbert Hoover's election, and for a time it was believed the President would name him to succeed Mr. Davis March 4. However, there was the same opposition to him then also, and Secretary Davis continued his long stretch in the department.

When Mr. Green was leaving the White House yesterday he was asked specifically if his organization opposes the selection of Mr. Doak.

Not Personal Matter.

"Yes," he replied. "Not personally, but from an organization standpoint."

He explained that the American Federation of Labor is opposed to any one not in its ranks, and added that this includes Robe Carl White, Assistant Secretary of Labor.

Mr. White, among others, has been boomed for Secretary Davis' post, and whether he gets it or not it appears that he at least will serve as Secretary for a while.

The prospect is that President Hoover will not be ready to name a Secretary for some time after Mr. Davis leaves the Labor Department; December 1. Thus it will be necessary for Mr. White to serve.

Held Most Important.

To hear President Green talk yesterday, this question of a successor to Secretary Davis is a mighty important thing from the standpoint of the American Federation of Labor. Why, he said, it was the federation which brought about creation of the Department of Labor; it is its "baby." Both men who so far have held the portfolio, he pointed out, had cards in the American Federation of Labor, these being William B. Wilson, Secretary in the Wilson administration, when the department was created, and the incumbent, Mr. Davis.

Mr. Wilson was secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers (a job incidentally which later was held by Mr. Green), and Secretary Davis—known as "Jim, the Puddler," worked in a steel mill.

Mr. Green declared that the labor portfolio should go to a man who "knows the heart of labor" and can translate its problems for the administration.

Names Group Acceptable.

Among those who would be acceptable, President Green listed the following:

John B. Frey, secretary-treasurer of the Metal Trades Union; Matthew M. Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; John R. Alpine, formerly national president of the International Plumbers Union; William Hucheson, president of the Carpenters Union; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Arthur O. Wharton, president of the International Association of Machinists.

For a time there was quite a boom for Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, but this seems to have been deflated.

As for Mr. Green himself he reiterated yesterday that he would not consider the job.

HOOVER SANCTIONS IMMIGRATION CUTS

Not in Agreement With Reed on Two-Year Suspension, President Says.

WOULD REVISE STATUTES

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover signified yesterday that a revision of the immigration laws would meet with his approval as an unemployment remedy. A two-year suspension of immigration has been proposed by Senator Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

The Chief Executive said he was in entire agrement with the senator as to the need for a change in the statutes, but did not directly approve the Reed plan. He declared revision desirable, however, to give greater selectivity and flexibility to the present laws.

Mr. Hoover called attention to the sharp curtailment in immigration by strict enforcement of regulations designed to exclude persons who might become public charges. He said the effect of these efforts manifested itself most clearly in October, when the number of visas issued to prospective immigrants was a little below 6,000, compared with a previous overage of about 24,000 monthly. The program was initiated about twleve months ago with respect to North American countries, and three months ago in nations on a quota basis.

Under the national origins act, immigration from quota countries is restricted to 153,714 yearly, with 65,721 of these coming from Great Britain, 25,957 from Germany, 17,853 from Ireland and 5,802 from Italy.

The State Department has not expressed itself upon the plan, but is known to be considering possible ramifications that might develop if it were enacted.

U.S. HAS $162,000,000 FOR HIGHWAY WORK

Funds Available if Matched by States to Assist Jobless, Woods Says.

URGES EARLY BUILDING

Approximately $162,000,000 of unused Federal funds now are available in the Treasury for new highway construction if matched by the States, Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's committee for employment yesterday reminded communities where road building is under consideration as a means of relieving unemployment.

The figures, Col. Woods said, in an address over the radio discussing the plan of road construction in the drive on unemployment, had been furnished him by the Bureau of Public Roads. He ventured to call attention to these unclaimed appropriations, he added, in order that his listeners might have an understanding of the situation if roads became a public question with them.

"The existence of such credits," continued Woods, "should mean many picks and shovels at work in the very near future. And it should not be forgotten that, in the use of labor and materials, road building gives jobs not only to the men who build the roads. It increases the spending power of the men employed, and thereby stimulates personal and family buying of food, and clothing. For every man employed at actual labor on the roads, three others are engaged in other activities to make the labor and material possible. Thousands and tens of thousands can be effectively employed on the construction and repair of our road system."

The committee yesterday announced receipt of messages from the governors of nine States outlining plans for intensive construction work to be started in the near future. Beginning with New Jersey where a $100,000,000 bond issue was passed at the last election, the committee heard of plans for public building operations of one kind or another in Wyoming, Montana, Louisiana, Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Washington.

ACCOUNTING ASKED OF ADVENTIST BODY

Suit Filed by Administrator Over Alleged Estate of $60,000.

THINK WILL WAS MADE

The General Conference Corporation of the Seventh Day Adventists was named defendant in a suit for accounting and delivery filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by Sam R. Sheldon, of Webster City, Iowa, administrator of the estate of Thomas D. Hurd, 90-year-old itinerant peddler, who died December 11, 1927, at Takoma Park, Md.

Charge is made that early in his life Hurd became converted to the Adventist faith and was induced by certain officials of the church to deposit his earnings with it, on the promise that he would receive 5 per cent interest. Allegation also is made that Hurd deprived his family of necessities and cashed a $30,000 insurance policy in order to swell his account with the defendant.

Hallucinations Alleged.

In addition to the $30,000 item Hurd is alleged to have deposited sufficient sums prior to January 1, 1915, to make his account total $50,000. On April 22, 1915, and on June 22, 1924, he is said to have deposited additional sums of $10,000.

Hurd, according to the petition, which was filed through Attorneys Mathews and Trimble and George E. H. Goodner, was held up and beaten into unconsciousness by highwaymen, and from that time until his death suffered hallucinations that he was about to be robbed of his money. In April, 1924, Hurd was admitted to the Adventist Hospital at Nevada, Iowa, only to be transferred later to the Adventist Sanitarium at Takoma Park, according to the bill, which also alleges that the transfer was made without informing the man's family. Following his arrival at the Washington suburb, Hurd was installed by hospital authorities in a room at the home of Mrs. R. L. Paulson, where he remained until his death, the petitioner asserts.

Believe Will Made.

Sheldon tells the court that on June 6, 1927, a man named Shaw, said to be the treasurer of the conference, and a man named Rogers, a notary and employe of the conference, took a typewritten paper to Hurd's room. Mrs. Paulson, it is said, was excluded from the room, despite her protests that a physician should be summoned to examine Hurd's mentality. She, however, peered through a crack in the door and saw Hurd sign the paper, the bill sets out. The petitioner in this connection advises the court that he does not know the contents of the paper Hurd signed, but asks that the court declare it void, stating that it is his belief that it conveys all of Hurd's property to the conference.

Sheldon also alleges that the conference at various times misled Hurd's relations as to his whereabouts.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

MR JOSEPH M. GAITES, the producer, having attended the New York opening of "Scarlet Sister Mary," the Ethel Barrymore play, in New York last night, was expected in Washington this morning for an appointment at the Belasco, where he will look over a special rehearsal of Judith Anderson in "As You Desire Me"—the Pirandello play. Mr. Gaites is interested in both plays.

ABOUT Miss Barrymore, Mr. Ray Henderson, special press representative, writes: "As you may have seen, Miss Barrymore had a bad attack of laryngitis in Detroit last week and had to cancel the matinee and night performances on Saturday, turning back $7,000, as both performances were sold out and the theater is huge. She is ready to take the New York audiences by storm, however, and live up to the handsome reception given her in Washington."

IT was not so very many years ago that Robert Milton came to the Belasco Theater as director of Sutton Vane's play, "Outward Bound," which is having its premiere here in the movies—at the Metropolitan. Mr. Milton, who also directed the picture, is in town again and having grand receptions on all sides. There is a concerted move to have him remain over a day or so longer than his schedule calls for, since so many of his old friends want to stage parties.

ASSOCIATED with Robert Milton in the years agone was one Arthur Hornblow, jr., who also went to the West Coast as a motion picture director, but whose handiwork on the stage is seen in the National this week. Young Arthur Hornblow made the adaptation of a "A Kiss of Importance," which has Basil Rathbone in the lead role.

AFTER the French play deserts the National stage, the E street house will be turned over to an English drama, Mr. George Bernard Shaw's "The Apple Cart." This is a Theater Guild production. It got its American start in Baltimore last year and immediately moved onto New York, leaving Washington in the lurch. The original company is coming here, opening next Monday night. Outstanding in the cast are Tom Powers, Violet Kemble Cooper, Ernest Cossart and others well known to Washington.

WHILE all this English wit flourishes at the National, Mr. Shaw wrote this play with his pen in his cheek—or was it his tongue?—there will be quite a stir up on Lafayette square, where a real Washington favorite of other days comes, after long absence, in another English play. This is Grace George, who will appear all next week at the Belasco in St. John Ervine's comedy, "The First Mrs. Fraser," rated by the bye, as one of the ten best plays of last season. A. E. Matthews, one of the finest actors on the stage, has an important role.

ALL sorts of theater notables in town. Here this week is Lionel Atwill, once a star in his own right, and now director of the play at the National. Mr. Atwill's last session in Washington was with the late lamented "Fioretta," an Earl Carroll opus that folded and died after some three or four hundred thousand dollars had been shot down the hatchway. Since abandoning the stage, Mr. Atwill married Mrs. Cromwell Brooks McArthur, well known in Washington society, and once possessor of a Massachusetts avenue home—out where the West begins.

NOW that the Show Boat is anchored off Alexandria, and the theatergoing public is assured that it will remain there for some time, Kallopolis Grotto is arranging for a series of sailboat parties down the Potomac—something like the old ferryboat rides from New York to Hoboken when the sophisticates seidled over the river to see Christopher Morley's outfit on the waterfront. The Grotto, standing sponsor for Cap'n Jim Adams' Floating Theater, hopes to acquaint all Washington with the finest show on the water.

Baltimore Youth On Trial in Murder

Alleged Confession by Boy Is Read in Court; Plea of Insanity Seen.

Baltimore, Nov. 25. (A.P.).—An alleged confession by Kennard Thompson, 16, that he killed his employer, a manufacturing chemist, with a wrench, hid his body in a barrel and led a spendthrift career with money obtained by forging the older man's name, was introduced today as the boy went on trial for murder.

Young Thompson's employer, Herbert G. Wetters, was killed about August 1, but the body, partially preserved by alcohol, was not discovered until September 2.

With the body nearby, the youth held drinking parties with boy companions in the shop, the jury was told as two prosecutors outlined the State's case. When Thompson was arrested he and five companions were in a new automobile, bought with a forged check, according to the police. The presence of psychiatrists and other specialists led to the belief that testimony that the boy was mentally irresponsible would be introduced.

Two Priests Reported Killed by Chinese Thugs

Hankow, China, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—It was reported here today that the two Italian priests, Father Noveli and Father Luciano, were killed by bandits at Hinganfu, in South Shensi, 325 miles northwest of here.

It was feared that the apostolic prefect, Soggiu, also was killed.

Conservatives Support Baldwin Tariff Position

London, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Former Premier Stanley Baldwin today received a vote of confidence as Conservative party leader, and came out flatly for an emergency tariff on manufactured goods, as soon as the Conservative party can return to power. At the same time he took a strong stand against the "dumping" of foreign products into Great Britain.

The former prime minister, obviously impressed by the unanimity of the indorsement accorded him, told 800 delegates to the Central Council of the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations, that he stood at the head of a united party.

Deer Season Ended With 15 Hunters Dead

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Minnesota's eleven-day open session on deer hunting ended today with a total of 15 hunters killed.

This was 250 per cent higher than in 1928. Eleven were shot accidentally and four were drowned. The number of deer slain was not reported.

Cold Prevents March By Coxey's New 'Army'

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Wintry blasts delayed the mobilization today of a new "Coxey's Army" of unemployed for a march on Washington.

"General" Jacob S. Coxey went to the rendesvous of the jobless in Columbus Circle, but found none had kept it. "It's the cold," he said as he beat a strategic path to his hotel.

His plan is to have an army of jobless demand the passage of a bill deadlocked in the House banking and currency committee. This, he avers, would insure perpetual prosperity.

Chemical Blast Causes Panic in Chicago Stores

Chicago, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—A woman suffered severe burns and nearly a thousand persons were thrown into confusion by a chemical explosion in the Stevens Building in the heart of State street today. Fire caused damage of $40,000.

A spark from a match or cigarette ignited chemicals used to clean garments in a fur shop on the thirteenth floor. Mrs. Mary Marshall, 52, a fur shop worker, plunged through flames to escape death and was severely burned. A half dozen women fainted. A traffic jam of shoppers hampered fire companies.

Rites Held for Miss Forward.

Somerset, Pa., Nov. 25 (Special).—Funeral services were held here yesterday for Miss Mary Forward, 81 years old, with burial in Union Cemetery. She was a daughter of the late Ross Forward, prominent attorney. Three brothers, including Henry W. Forward, traffic manager for the Erie Railroad in Chicago, survive her.

New River Power Plan Is Held Up

Federal Commission Wants Court Action Taken to Clear Question.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Power Commission yesterday declined to act upon the application of the Appalachian Electric Power Co. for permission to construck an $11,000,000 power plant on the New River, near Radford, Va., and indicated that court action to define the power of the commission would be necessary.

In declining to act on the application, which has been before the commission for several years, Chairman Wilbur explained that the commission desired a legal suit to determine all questions involved.

The best way in which this action could be had would be for the Appalachian Co. to go ahead with construction plans and for the commission to sue for an injunction, he said.

Bank Bandit Shot Down In Battle With Posse

Lincoln, Ill., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—A bandit who robbed the Latham State Bank of $400 this morning and attempted to lock employes and a customer of the bank in a vault, was shot down and seriously wounded when he opened a gun battle with a posse which had pursued him to within a mile of Lincoln.

The man identified himself as Guy Worth, 55, of Storm Lake, Iowa.

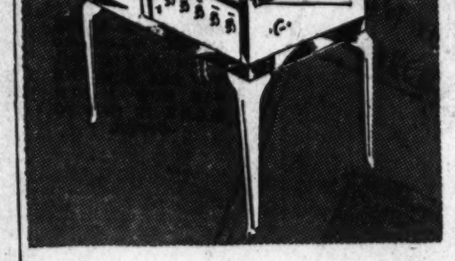
HOW are YOU going TO COOK



YOUR TURKEY ?

Here is Miss Turner's RECIPE:

ROAST TURKEY

Wash and prepare a turkey, preferably a hen, for roasting. Salt generously on the inside, fill with dressing, salt on the outside and rub over with melted butter. Place in a shallow, uncovered pan. Preheat electric oven to 500°, place pan with turkey in oven and set oven control to 350°. Roast 20 minutes to the pound.

Duck is prepared in the same manner as turkey and is cooked at the same temperature and for the same length of time.

The above recipe has been tested and approved by Miss Mary E. Turner, Director, Home Service Bureau, Potomac Electric Power Co.

"Matchless Service" will play an important part in many Thanksgiving dinners. Its convenience, economy and cleanliness will add much to the enjoyment of this great feast day.

Electric cookery, with "flameless fuel," is smokeless, sootless, odorless. Women who cook their Thanksgiving dinners on electric ranges will have less work to do. Their turkeys will come from the ovens with a deliciousness that no other cooking method can impart. All of the flavor will be retained and the cooking done in ovens so perfectly insulated that their kitchens will remain cool during the entire process. Some day you, too, will adopt electric cookery.

If you're "on the fence" about gas and motor fuel-

If you're all muddled up by conflicting claims--if you wonder why some gasolines sell at one price--and some command a premium--consider these facts.

The American Oil Company makes both a regular gasoline and a special motor fuel. Therefore it never makes exaggerated claims for either one or the other. It never claims that its regular-priced gasoline, Orange American Gas, can equal the performance of a high-grade special motor fuel such as Amoco-Gas.

Orange American Gas will give better all-'round performance than any gas selling at regular gas price--that's a flat statement we'll back to the limit.

Amoco-Gas, selling at a few cents more per gallon, delivers more power and more mileage, cuts down your repair bills and actually costs less per mile than anything else you can "feed" your car.

No matter which side of the fence you finally land on--you'll get the best possible value for your money from either of these American Oil Company products.

Paderewski White House Dinner Guest

Countrymen at Function of Hoovers; Stays Overnight.

IGNACE PADEREWSKI, former premier of Poland and renowned pianist, was the bright particular star at a small and informal dinner given last evening by the President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House, where he was an overnight guest. He will leave Washington this evening after giving a concert in the afternoon.

The company at dinner included several old friends of the visitor as well as members of the staff at the Polish Embassy, Mr. Stanislaw Lepkowski, counselor; Mr. Victor Podoski, first secretary, and Mr. Witold Wankowicz, commercial counselor. Due to the brief visit of Mr. Paderewski, and the absence of the Polish Ambassador, Mr. Filipowicz, no formal entertainment has been planned by members of the staff for their countryman.

Mr. Paderewski is occupying what is known as the rose suite on the second floor, facing Pennsylvania avenue, at the White House. To insure the pleasure of their guest, the President and Mrs. Hoover had a special concert piano, of the type and make preferred by the artist, installed in his suite for his use during his sojourn in Washington.

The friendship of the President and Mr. Paderewski dates back to the World War, when Poland gained its independence from Germany and Russia. It was while Mr. Paderewski was in the United States on a concert tour that he decided he was needed at home, and promptly canceled all dates to return to Poland. There was the big food problem, as well as the question of fixing the boundaries of the new country, to be confronted.

Because of his world-wide fame and devotion to the cause of his country, Mr. Paderewski was made first premier. Through his solicitation, President Hoover, then director of food administration, became interested in Poland, and sent large supplies into the country.

Mrs. Hoover Guest At Wilbur Luncheon.

Mrs. Hoover was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, entertained at luncheon yesterday in her apartment at the Mayflower, when the other guests were the ladies of the Cabinet group. This is one of the series of parties extended annually to the First Lady by the wives of the Cabinet officers.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson had several guests dining with them informally last evening at Woodley. Mr. Stimson had as a luncheon guest yesterday Senator William E. Borah.

The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, has as his guests at the embassy Sir Charles and Lady Addis, of London, who arrived the early part of the week to remain a few days. The ambassador will entertain at dinner in honor of his guests this evening. Last night Mr. Eugene Meyer entertained at a small stag dinner at his home in honor of Sir Charles.

Lady Lindsay has not yet returned to town.

Countess Wed To Diplomat Of Denmark

Ceremony Is Performed at Legation Here; Minister Host.

The wedding of Countess Brita de la Gardie and Mr. Hubert de Wichfeld, Counselor of the Danish Legation, and nephew of the Minister of Denmark, Mr. Constantin Brun, took place yesterday at noon at the legation. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Dorf, pastor of the Danish Lutheran Church, and was witnessed by close friends.

The bride arrived in this country Sunday. She wore a Paris gown of brown crepe de chine embroidered in gold and a close-fitting velvet hat to correspond and wore a bouquet of flowers on the shoulder.

The arrangements for the wedding were simple. There were no bridal attendants and the minister was best man for his nephew. The decorations of chrysanthemums and autumn leaves made an effective background for the nuptials, which were followed by a wedding breakfast at which the minister was host.

Countess de la Gardie is a member of an old and noble family of Sweden and Mr. Wichfeld has been at the Danish Legation here since June.

On the return from their wedding trip Mr. Wichfeld and his bride will be at home at 1911 R street.

Miss Jahncke Is Presented To Society

Tea for Debutante by Parents Brilliant Social Event.

The first of the two buds of the "Little Cabinet" to make her debut was Miss Adele Townsend Jahncke, who was presented by her parents, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke, to their friends at a large tea at the Mayflower yesterday afternoon.

Miss Jahncke is the great granddaughter of Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War in the Cabinet of President Lincoln, and her great grandmother on her father's side was Mary Ashley Townsend who wrote under the pen name of "Xariffa."

Mrs. Jahncke was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Walter E. Hope, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. David S. Ingalls, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics; Mrs. George Akerson, wife of the secretary to the President; Mrs. Joel T. Boone Train, Mrs. James M. Johnston, Miss Sophy Stanton and Mrs. Weston P. Chamberlain. Also Miss Ruth Jahncke, of New Orleans, niece of the hosts.

The debutante wore a frock of white taffeta made with a fitted bodice and long full skirt and carried a quaint bouquet of pink rosebuds and forget-me-nots. Her mother's gown of peach crepe georgette was made on long lines with flowing sleeves.

Miss Jahncke graduated from Newcomb College, of New Orleans, in the spring with an A. B. degree. She was selected queen of the Harlequin Ball at the last Mardi Gras, and has just been chosen by the Washington Bachelors' Cotillion to be the partner of the leader of the cotillion figures at the first ball of the series to be given on December 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Jahncke and the debutante received their guests in the Chinese room of the Mayflower. Pink roses and tall pink candles with Southern smilax were used on the tea table at one end of the grand ballroom, where dancing continued during the hours of the reception.

The Naval Attache of the British Embassy, Capt. J. S. M. Ritchie, and Mrs. Ritchie entertained informally at tea yesterday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Rathbone and several members of the company who are playing with Mr. Rathbone at the National Theater.

Capital Girl Is Married to Philadelphian

Miss Elise Alexander Becomes Bride of John M. Carter.

The marriage of Miss Elise H. Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Renick Alexander to Mr. John Mein Carter, son of Mrs. John Newman Carter, of Philadelphia, took place yesterday afternoon in St. Matthew's Church, Mgr. Edward L. Buckey officiating.

The church was decorated with palms and ferns, festoons of Southern smilax, white chrysanthemums and white roses, which were used to mark the pew heads.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of traditional ivory satin, made with a long full skirt, a hip peplum marking the high waist line. The costume was finished around the neck by a bertha of rose lace, worn by the bride's grandmother. The lace was also used to trim the short puffed sleeves, and formed the close-fitting cap, which held a full tulle veil, under which a long train of satin fell. She carried lilies of the valley and white orchids.

The maid of honor, Miss Louise Piquette Alexander, younger sister of the bride, wore a frock of peach color changeable silk, made with a long flowing skirt and hip peplum and short puffed sleeves. Touches of French green were used to trim the frock and peach color velvet hat. She carried talisman roses and green orchids.

The bridesmaids—Miss Rahel Davies, Miss Anne Carter Greene, Miss Sallie Hews Phillips, Miss Laura Tuckerman and Miss Julia Kaufholz and Miss Ellen Wade, of Cleveland—wore gowns made similar to the one worn by the maid of honor, except that brown, instead of green, was used to trim

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CATCHING COLDS.

Of all the diseases of the human animal the common cold is the most frequently suffered and from some angles it is the most important. Dr. Blanton says that people average 1.7 colds each year. Most of these come during the late autumn, the winter and the spring. In Dr. McLean's study the cold rate began rising in the autumn and reached its peak in December. Then the rate of primary colds commenced a decline which lasted until June.

The prevalence of colds among those who are "all the time catching cold" did not follow the same curve. Dr. Smillie, who has studied colds in many parts of the world, has found that there is a very low prevalence in the summer. Then follows a rise to a peak in October, then a fall, followed by a January rise. After that there is a fall to reach the June level, but it is characterized by a number of small rises—the line has a wavy effect.

In the tropics the people have many colds, but they are mild and rarely are they complicated by middle ear diseases or sinus infection, pneumonia or bronchitis.

Dr. Blanton gives the average duration of disability due to a cold as four days. This seems rather longer than most people experience, but the sum total of days of incapacity or low efficiency caused by coryza is very much greater than is that caused by any other disease. For each 300 colds there is one death, usually from pneumonia or some kindred disorder, according to Sydenstricker. The experience of the United States Army about coincides with that of Dr. Sydenstricker.

Among the conclusions of a study made by Dr. McLean in Birmingham, Ala., are these:

Weather conditions had little or no effect on the prevalence of colds.

Colds come in waves or epidemics, but we know little about the cause of these waves.

The rate of colds among people who are not "cold catchers" varies according to season.

The "cold catchers," those very subject to repeated colds, have about the same amount of trouble in the different months and seasons.

The removal of tonsils and adenoids is not much protection against catching cold. This is true of the repeaters as well as of the incidental performers.

MASSAGE MAY BE HELP.

Mrs. R. D. writes: I fell a month ago and bruised my face. A large clot of bruised blood about the size of an egg formed there. Could you tell me how to treat this?

REPLY.

Had you acted at once you might have lessened the hemorrhage by applying ice for a short time, and then using leeches. There is nothing you can do now except to massage the discolored area lightly every day. That will help a little, but not much. You may expect the discoloration to disappear entirely in time.

THEY ARE ABOUT SAME.

Mrs. H. T. S. writes:

1. What is the difference between articular rheumatism and arthritis?

2. Will fallen arches cause rheumatism?

REPLY.

1. The terms are interchangeable, but there is some difference in the meaning of the words. Any inflammation of a joint is arthritis. Articular rheumatism refers to rheumatic inflammation of a joint.

2. No.

Jane Enterprets the Mode

Clever incrustations characterize this chic Patou coat of gray wool, with its interesting collar and cuffs of gray astrakhan. (Courtesy of Patou, Paris.)

New York, Nov. 25.

BLACK touched with white has its pitfalls. No, not style pitfalls, because the day of the "femme fatal" as we say in Paris (fom-fat-ahl) is gone, and slinky black with its touch of white is seldom if ever smart.

The pitfalls I mention are pitfalls of neglect and carelessness, so conveniently excused by the "lack of time" wail—the griminess of the city or what have you in the way of excuses.

Better, I say a million times, to wear plain black than to wear black relieved with white that is not absolutely impeccable. The truly elegant woman always carries one or two extra pairs of white gloves in the pocket of her car even, when she is going to be out of the house long enough to soil the gloves she is wearing. You see then, how unwise it is to buy a dark gown with anything white sewn onto it in any way that makes it difficult and tiresome to remove for cleaning? Incrustations, gilets, lining, hold pitfalls for any but the cleaner's daughter. White velvet is particularly detestable in this respect—in fact you can just about depend upon anything of white velvet on darker colored costumes never cleaning back to its original virginity for any price. Some kinds of satin have the same drawback, while it does not soil as easily as the white velvet.

Be clever then, and while lightening your dark suits with all of those so youthful and flattering bits of white and rose so aptly called "lingerie touches" in French and in the fashion magazines, see that your lingerie touches are washable and removable—and that you do both frequently.

You've never heard me talk about incrustations before, have you? Not more than twenty times a day, I mean? Just the same, you'd rave about them yourself if you could see what they add to the Patou coat I illustrate today! Not that such marvelous gray wool and gray astrakhan need adding to—but the combination of color, material and line is inexpressibly modish and elegant!

Fashion French! Retrecir (re-tre-ceer)—to shrink; Revers (re-vair)—facings; Robe (robe)—dress; Rond(e) (horn, rond)—round; Rose (rose)—pink.

O-o-o-h you never saw so many strange shapes in your life! And the glitters and sparkles and shininginess—and rainbow-darting crystals in at least twenty billion million colors, each one lovelier than the last! You see we think it's lots more fun to make Christmas tree ornaments than to buy them—it doesn't cost as much, and they last and last—and parties to make these pretties are the very latest party wrinkle. But, you have to know how, and that's just why you should send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet, which shows how easy and fascinating it is to make your own Christmas tree ornaments.

A 1930 feather is far from its more ancient prototype. It is chic and discreet and maybe fastens back the brim of a would-be tricorne as I have illustrated for you today. Or maybe again it isn't a feather but a cute little knot of ermine, also illustrated, and also tying back a hat of tricorne version.

Only in the big Sunday Post, in Washington, can you find Dare's weekly fashion letter. Do look for it every Sunday.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS"

IF November 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:45 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Unless your position in life is secure on this date, it may prove to be a critical time for you. Dangers lurk in your pleasures—be careful of sports. A misunderstanding may cause you secret sorrow. A journey to an elder may bring you joy.

Children born on this November 26 will have venturesome, cheerful natures, and quick mentalities. They will have nasty tempers, but they will be kind hearted and generous. They will be fond of the flesh pots and rather too-amusement-loving for their own good. They will make many friends.

You show two very different characters, one external and another internal, and this makes it very difficult for you to be understood. You are bold, reckless and daring, yet at the same time very sensitive, impressionable and reticent. You are ardent and rather petulant, but seldom bear malice. You often show irritability, which results from no apparent cause, but which in reality is the result of restraint, and is caused by your double nature coming into play at one and the same time.

Your manners are naturally gentle, only becoming brusque or defiant in the presence of enemies or when stirred to self-defense. Your nature will be hopeful, joyous and youthful even in advanced years. Unsympathetic surroundings fret you exceedingly, and you are a friend of peace, truth and justice, and are seldom engaged in strife without good cause.

Many obstacles are shown in the first part of your life, but fortune will come to you in the end, probably through personal application to your calling or profession. Trouble is shown through your father or father-in-law. You will have many illustrious and useful friends, although false friends will try to injure your honor, without success.

Your family life and home affairs will not be altogether harmonious, and will be a cause of sorrow and regret to you. In this respect you will be the victim of circumstances and astrological influences.

Successful people born November 26:

Octavious B. Frothinham, clergyman and author.

John B. Irving, artist.

George Cary Eggleston, author and editor.

Thomas G. Jones, lawyer and governor.

Queen of Norway.

Work's Radio Bridge Game

The winter bridge season might be said to have opened officially with the broadcasting yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock of the first game in Milton C. Work's Annual Bridge by Radio Series, heard locally through Station W. R. C.

Bridge listeners will find this series even more interesting than those which have gone before on account of a new scheme of Mr. Work's by which every player who follows these games can handicap himself as a first, second, third or fourth class player. More about this later.

The experts who participated in the bridge game were: Mrs. H. T. Westervelt, New Haven, Conn., Dealer (South), holding: Spades, K, 2; Hearts, Q, 5, 2; Diamonds, K, 10, 3, 2; Clubs, Q, 9, 6, 2. Mrs. Anne Wesson, Kansas City, Mo. (West), with: Spades, Q, 9, 5, 4; Hearts, A, K, 6; Diamonds, A, 6, 4; Clubs, K, 7, 4. Walter F. Wyman, Arlington, Mass. (North), with: Spades, J, 10, 8; Hearts, J, 10, 9, 7, 4; Diamonds, Q, 8; Clubs, A, 10, 6. R. L. Rutter, Spokane, Wash. (East), with: Spades, A, 7, 6, 3; Hearts, 8, 3; Diamonds, J, 9, 7, 5; Clubs, J, 5, 3.

The only bid of the Auction was one No Trump by Mrs. Wesson, West, a call amply justified by her total of 16 based on the popular 4-3-2-1 No Trump count, which requires three suits stopped and a count of 11 for an original No Trump bid by first or second hand.

Mr. Wyman, North, opened the play by leading the Jack of Hearts, the correct No Trump lead from a suit headed J-10-9 or J-10-8. Declarer played Dummy's Trey; South played the 5, and Declarer won with the Ace. Declarer saw the going would be difficult, but proceeded to try to establish the only eight-card suit in her combined hands by leading her 4 of Spades. North played the 8, Dummy the Ace, South the Deuce. Dummy then led the Trey, bringing out South's King. Declarer played the 9, thus creating a fourth-round entry in Dummy, and North dropped the 10.

South returned her partner's Hearts, leading the Queen. Declarer ducked with the 6; North played the 4; Dummy the 8. South continued Hearts with the Deuce; Declarer won with the King; North played the 7, thus showing his partner that he had the remaining Hearts, as his lead must have been from J-10-9, and Dummy discarded the Trey of Clubs.

To trick six Declarer led the Queen of Spades; North followed with the Jack; Dummy with the 6, and South discarded the Deuce of Clubs. Declarer continued with the 5 of Spades, overtaking with Dummy's 7. North discarded the 8 of Clubs and South the Deuce of Diamonds, keeping both her high Diamond and her high Club guarded.

Dummy led the 5 of Diamonds to trick eight; South played the Trey; Declarer the Ace; and North rose to the occasion by making a brilliant "exit" play of the Queen of Diabonds. He knew that if Declarer held the King of Diamonds, his Queen would be lost anyhow. If he did hold up the Queen and his partner held the King-10, she would not be able to overtake his Queen because she would have to keep her King over Dummy's Jack. So while North might win the second Diamond trick by holding his Queen, and would be able to make his two good Hearts and his Ace of Clubs, he would have a Club left for the thirteenth trick which he could reasonably expect would be won by Declarer, giving her the odd trick and contract. By playing the Queen of Diamonds, however, Mr. Wyman hoped to deceive Declarer into thinking he had the King; then if his partner, South, did hold the King-10, two Diamond tricks might be made in addition to the sure tricks that North held, thus setting the contract. And even if South did not hold the King-10 of Diamonds, North figured that a trick might be gained if the Club lead came to him.

Everything worked out as Mr. Wyman hoped. When he dropped the Queen of Diamonds, Declarer thought it probable that he had played from King-Queen and still held the King. She reasoned that to continue Diamonds would give North the trick, and that he could then make his two good Hearts, but that eventually he would have to lead Clubs up to her, giving her the King of Clubs and her contract, as she already had six tricks. To trick nine, therefore, Declarer led the 6 of Diamonds; North played the 8; Dummy the Jack; and South the King, understanding perfectly that her partner's exit play of the Diamond Queen on the preceding trick indicated that he held the Ace of Clubs as entry to his two good Hearts. So South took her good Diamond 10 on the next trick, giving her partner a discard of his losing 10 of Clubs. At trick eleven South led the 8 of Clubs which North won with the Ace. North then faced his two good Hearts for the last two tricks, defeating Mrs. Wesson's perfectly sound one No Trump by one trick. Adversaries scored 50 in their honor column for defeating the contract; Declarer and her partner 30 for their three Aces.

At Contract, Mr. Work said this hand would be bid exactly the same as at Auction, which is rarely the case. South would pass; West, with a count of 16, would be just under a bid of two No Trumps, but amply strong to bid one. That bid would be passed by the three other players. East has a count of only 6; Contract requires a combined count of 22 to justify a two No Trump call. West's one No Trump shows only a minimum of 12, leaving East 4 points short of the 10 points he should hold to advance his partner's uncontested one No Trump to two.

Mr. Work concluded his talk by announcing the first two questions in his Bridge Handicapping Test, by which every Bridge player can determine his rating as a player. Mr. Work will give two questions each week for five weeks, with answers to all ten questions during his sixth Ratdio Game. Ten more questions will follow during the next five weeks, with answers in the final broadcast of the season. Mr. Work suggested that each listener write down his own answers to the questions week by week, then check his solutions with the correct answers given by Mr. Work during the sixth and twelfth games. A player with every answer correct rates as Class A; as Class B if he has one, two or three errors; Class C with four, five or six mistakes; and Class D if he has more than six errors.

Here are first two questions:

The hands are: SOUTH—Spades, A, K, Q; Hearts, K, Q, 2; Diamonds, A, J, 10; Clubs, A, K, Q, 10; WEST—Spades, J, 10, 8, 5, 3; Hearts, A, 9, 4; Diamonds, 8, 4, 3; Clubs, 7, 6. NORTH—Spades, 9, 6; Hearts, J, 6; Diamonds, K, Q, 9, 7, 5; Clubs, J, 8, 3, 2. EAST—Spades, 7, 4, 2; Hearts, 10, 8, 7, 5, 3; Diamonds, 6, 2; Clubs, 9, 5, 4. BID at Auction: SOUTH, one No Trump; followed by three passes. At Contract: SOUTH, four No Trumps; WEST, pass; NORTH, five Diamonds; East, pass; SOUTH, six No Trumps. Play the same in both games.

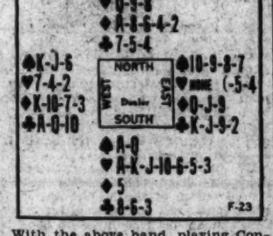
QUESTIONS:

1. Which four cards should be played to the first trick?

2. Which card should be led to the second trick?

WORK'S BRIDGE

A COMEDY OF ERRORS.



With the above hand, playing Contract Bridge, South bid two Hearts; West passing, North with two and one-half raisers bid three Hearts, and South of course bid four. At Auction South would bid three Hearts and obtain the contract.

In the play West led his fourth best Diamond. North won with the Ace and took out three rounds of trumps, winning the third in dummy; he then finessed the Queen of Spades in closed hand. West won, and as Declarer subsequently lost three Clubs he failed to go game.

Do you see any errors?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The lead of the Diamond Trey with the Deuce in dummy assured Declarer that the adverse Diamonds were divided 4-3, so he should have won the trick and led another Diamond to trick 2. South should have trumped with an honor and led a small trump to put North in to lead a third Diamond which South again should have trumped with an honor. A second small trump for North to win, another ruff with an honor from South on a fourth Diamond lead, and then a third small trump, putting North in for the third time and exhausting the adverse trumps. North then cashes his thirteenth Diamond and South discards a small Club.

After that the Spade finesse is tried and loses, but Declarer is assured of ten tricks—game.

This play, however, would be impossible if West had led a trump instead of leading a Diamond. With the Hearts bid so extravagantly by South and North, and with three in the West hand, it is not likely that East has a trump which would win even if West did not lead trumps. West has three side suits from none of which he wants to lead. A trump is therefore West's best opening; and if he had made it, North would not have the sufficient entries to establish his Diamonds and give Declarer game.

Jean's Santa Claus

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Jean Melba, a small town girl with big city ideas from Keber, Conn., a stenographer, whose her office burns, she finds herself jobless. She craves adventure and yearns for the good things of life. A little girl at heart, she wishes Santa Claus would come to see her this Christmas.

Phillip Baldwin, her small town Romeo, hears the wish and promises to appear Christmas day with a marriage license. Rather than take the line of least resistance by marrying Phil, Jean decides to tackle New York and find a job there. Jean rents an apartment in the home of Mollie Wilder, a sophisticated friend, who has given Jean glowing reports of gay life in Gotham. Arriving in the city Jean learns that Mollie has just married and left New York. Desperation is added to consternation by the fact that she only has $5 2cents in her pocket but the situation is saved by

Sandy Clause, a handsome, polished and sophisticated young man who protects her from a strapper's advances, has dinner with her, and since he has lost her traveling bag, arranges for Jean to spend the night at the apartment of his friend

Marcia White, a mysterious adventuress, whose usual hospitality does not blind Jean to the fact that Marcia's apartment is no haven of safety as compared to Kelsey, Conn. Sandy leaves the apartment, but Jean's uneasiness is lndorsed by the sudden appearance of two sinister men,

Slim Digges and

Fargeson, the latter of whom is observed by Jean to violently embrace Marcia. Instinctively frightened by fears for her safety rather than can define, Jean rushes from the apartment. On her way out she sees Sandy Clause returning, but she does not speak to him. After spending the rest of the night in the park Jean answers an ad specially placed in the papers by Clause and learns that Fargeson, alias Sampson, was murdered the night before in Marcia's apartment. Clause denies that he returned and says Jean could not have seen him, as she tells him she did.

She accepts the job he offers with the Institute of Practical Philanthropy, an organization ready to spend millions to intricate maternal yearnings in the hearts of little girls by giving them dolls—not to be known as dolls, however, but as miniature babies. That afternoon while shopping Jean finds Mollie, who explains that the wedding ceremony did not stick, and invites Jean to live with her. Jean accepts and returns to the office to learn that Marcia White, under police grilling, has threatened to implicate Jean in the murder.

Within a short time it becomes evident to Jean that not only is Sandy Clause more than casually interested in her, but also Lionel Gilman, his assistant, who invites her to dinner. She accepts and comes to like Lionel more.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

November 26.

Twenty-five working days to Christmas * * * and dear old Phil. * * * After a brief encounter with Marcia at the office yesterday, I can hardly wait for Christmas morning and Phil with his promised marriage license waiting at the front door. * * * All Phil's good qualities stand out now that I'm in this mire of intrigue * * * I'm not sure that I love him, but I could learn, I think * * * I wonder if any one marries for love any more? * * * If Marcia hadn't spoiled it with her quiet threat at the office I could have had a glorious time with Lionel last night. * * * He took me to a grill room for dinner and afterward we danced until almost midnight. * * * The orchestra was wonderful and Lionel was painfully attentive. * * * I like him tremendously and I'm quite sure he likes me. * * * He was angry with Marcia for the way she behaved at the office yesterday afternoon, though he hadn't an idea what it was all about. * * * Lionel asked me to go to the theater with him some time and I told him I would. * * * I hope he doesn't ask me the same night that Sandy asks me to dinner. * * * But Sandy probably won't * * * Lionel says Sandy is quite mad over Marcia. * * * Sandy seemed pleased with my ideas about the Miniature Baby Plan, but I've found a lot of holes in the program since that I'll have to talk with him about today. * * * I wonder if he really is so desperately in love with Marcia as Lionel thinks. * * *

Jean's diary was more circumspect than most. For one thing she omitted her conversation with Mollie after Lionel had taken her home the night before. Mollie had been curious about Jean's work, and Jean had told her about the Miniature Baby Plan and the theory of the unknown philanthropist who had conceived it.

It was a great joke to Mollie. She had been reading in bed and smoking when Jean came home. Now she rolled over and laughed loudly.

"Just one more nutty coot," she declared, still laughing. "What's the idea of teaching or encouraging motherhood. I'd like to know. The big bum! I'll bet he wouldn't be so hot about his plan if he had to bring a few kids into the world." She brushed a spark from her pongee pajama pants and snuffed the cigarette in the smoking stand tray by the bed. "You don't mean to tell me you think it's a sensible idea, do you, Jean * * *?"

"I don't know," Jean said, uncertainly. "I'm not so sure that giving a little girl a doll will make her want children when she's grown."

"What if it does?" Mollie demanded. "Why should any one argue that it's a woman's duty to have children? It isn't. No more than it is a man's."

"Oh, but——"

"I know. A man can't have children. But because a woman can, I don't see that she's obligated to have them. The woman gets the small end of everything in the world. The man causes all the trouble, but it's the woman that pays for it. And then this sap has the nerve to talk about the importance and beauty of motherhood. It isn't motherhood the men are interested in, if you know what I mean."

Jean didn't know what she meant, nor did she ask. All her life she had taken it for granted that some day she would get married and have children. She didn't know how a girl could expect anything else. But then Mollie had always been different. Jean decided that she would not again introduce the subject in Mollie's presence.

The newspapers were still filled with the mysterious slaying of Big Bill Sampson, alias Fargeson. At first Jean had tried to ignore the daily alarm in big black type, but she was too much interested. Thus far, however, the reports had been much alike. The police were working on the case, but had made no progress. Miss White was being constantly questioned. The logical theory was that Sampson had been killed by rival bootleggers. There was an unmistakable hint that his murderer had done the city a service.

But this morning there was a new note in the headlines of the paper, Jean thought. The police commissioner was called upon to solve the mystery or get out of office. And on the editorial page Jean found an editorial, a part of which read:

"It does not enter that Sampson was a bootlegger, racketeer, gangster, gunman. The facts are that he was murdered and that the law of the land does not countenance murder. A young woman was in the apartment where Sampson was killed. She has given no satisfactory explanation of the shooting, but she has not been held. No one is held. The police talk and do nothing. Are we to keep men in office who wink at murder because the victim was a criminal?"

Jean saw the handwriting on the wall. The newspapers were putting pressure upon the police for their failure to make an arrest. It was obvious that this particular paper felt that Marcia should have been arrested before now, that she should have been held as a material witness, if not upon suspicion of having committed the crime. And, Jean thought, when Marcia should be taken into custody she would lose no time in implicating her, Jean Melba.

Jean spent the morning working at a desk Lionel provided for her in his office. Sandy came in at about 9:30. He sat on her desk for a few minutes, discussing her program, then went into his own office.

But before noon he came out again to ask if she had any plans for lunch.

"Not a thing," she told him, "unless some handsome young man comes along with an invitation."

"He's here," Sandy smiled. "Afterward, we might go slumming. I'd like for you to see some of the children you're working to make happy and the sort of places in which they live and grow up * * * I'll be ready in about five minutes, if you will."

* * * *

He took her to the Club Wallingford, barely a block from the office, on Fifth avenue.

It was while they dallied over demitasse that Sandy said suddenly: "I wish you weren't planning to leave New York after Christmas * * *"

Jean looked up in surprise. "But why, Sandy? The Miniature Baby Plan will be history after Christmas Eve."

"The Miniature Baby Plan," said Sandy, "is but an incident with the I. P. P. Our work goes on from one end of the year to the other. And as long as we are in business, there will be a place for you."

A wave of gratitude swept over Jean. "That's nice of you to say that, Sandy. But * * * just having a job isn't enough. You remember that first night I told you about my wish * * * for adventure? Well, I'm getting it. But a month ought to be enough. After that * * *"

"You'll go back to your Connecticut town? And do what?"

Jean toyed with the handle of the delicate little cup before her, avoiding his eyes. But after a time she looked up, smiling.

"I've told you about everything else. You may as well know the rest."

And when she had told him about Philip and of her impulsive promise to marry him if he appeared at her door Christmas morning with a marriage license, she was prepared to hear Sandy burst into laughter.

Rather he stared at her, unbelieving. Presently he said: "Do you love him so much, Jean * * *?" But before she could answer: "No, don't answer that. I don't know why I asked it. * * * Shall we go now?"

The taxi took them through streets where the sunlight was rare. Older children were making their way back to school. Younger ones sat on the curb, played in the street, or hung from dark windows.

"There'll be very little Santa Claus in most of these houses," Sandy observed in the course of their ride. "Your miniature babies will represent the whole idea of Christmas to a majority of them."

"Yes," said Jean, sadly, "but dolls aren't enough. What about the little boys? Lord! If I only had a million dollars! Every child believes in Santa Claus. Sandy—and think of the thousands who will wake up Christmas morning to find—nothing. If they could only hang up their stockings with the assurance that they would get something * * * anything! Or if they could have a Christmas tree, and get some little present from it * * * It's tragic, Sandy. We think we have our troubles, but they're nothing when you think of the sorrow of the little boy or girl who sees what Christmas means to other children, and to other grownups—and then discover that Santa Claus is the saint of the rich, not the poor * * *"

"Yes," said Sandy, "it's tragic, but what can you do about it? That is life."

But as they rode back toward Fifth avenue, Jean wondered if there wasn't some way to bring Christmas to all these people, children and adults alike.

* * * *

When they entered the office Lionel was talking to a short, dumpy man of perhaps 40 whose head was rather too small for his body. Joan went to her desk. Sandy was about to pass them with a pleasant nod when Lionel spoke to him.

"This gentleman wants to see you."

The man said shortly: "He ain't a girl. I said I wanted to see a girl, not a man * * * I'm from headquarters," he added gruffly.

CHAPTER IX.

Sandy asked pleasantly: "Who is the girl, please?"

"Her name's Melba. * * *"

Sandy said evenly: "I'm sorry, but she won't be available before tomorrow some time, if then."

"What do you mean, available? Ain't she here?"

"No," said Sandy, "she ain't here * * * to you." Suddenly he put a hand up and pulled the man's coat open. A large, ornate badge read: "Private Detective."

The man drew back sharply. "Look here! I'll have you * * *"

"You'll have me for a witness to the fact that you're an imposter," Sandy snapped. "Now get out!"

The man glared at him from beneath drawn brows. "You're a wise guy, ain't you? Well, I'm on this case, and I'm going to find that girl. You can't bluff me out."

"Lionel," said Sandy suddenly, "call police headquarters and tell them to send a man here at once!"

But before Lionel had the receiver from the hook the outraged detective was hurrying out the door.

Jean, in a cold perspiration at her desk, had heard the entire conversation. Now she bit her lip to keep from crying.

Sandy went to her and put a hand over hers. "That's Marcia's doing," he said softly. "The thing I don't understand is why she hires a private detective instead of simply telling the police about you. * * * She's afraid of something, Jean, and I mean to find out what it is."

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

THEY ONLY RESPECT HER.

"WHAT is wrong when men respect a girl, confide in her, seem to value her friendship, and yet never think of asking her for a date or of spending a cent on her? I am such a girl. One man's program will serve as an instance of all. He comes to my desk purposely every day and spends from 20 minutes to a half hour telling me all his big problems, his troubles, even his love affairs. But would he ever ask me for a date? Not he. I even invited him out to the house, but he had some excuse.

"He and all the others seem to have the greatest respect for me, speak of me in glowing terms, and treat me like a maiden aunt. How come? Other girls get dates while I get respect. And confidence. I would like to know what is wrong. The only men who ever have paid the least attention to me have been very careful to let me know that they were not the 'marrying kind.'

"That sure does get me furious. If there is a catch in all this please enlighten me. I am a good listener, but even that does not get them. Help, please. I should state I do not drink, smoke, or use make-up. Am otherwise modern.

"BOSTON GAL."

Uh-huh. We know. You are the type that takes a sexless attitude toward the poor swains about you and by contrast make the veriest dumb doll take on interest and mysterious lure! Why women will insist upon going through life as lifelessly as possible will ever remain one of the mysteries of existence. While a few of the sex wear their sex as the royal raiment it was meant to be, the army of womenkind marches flat-heeled and level-eyed through the romance-laden years straight to frustration. Why?

Is the business of being a woman and a joy to man, a privilege and a right, or is it some shameful affliction? Positively some women act as if it were something to be covered up and decently ignored.

You, for instance, say you use no make-up. It is a woman's duty to use make-up. Because it is her duty to be as lovely as possible. And it is impossible to be lovely without aiding nature. Take for example the human finger nail. Nature supplied it. For beauty? By no means. But to dig with and to claw with and to protect fingers too easily smashed. All right. Shall we leave the utilitarian claw to nature? Or shall we shape it, polish it, tint it, make it a new delight to the eye?

And hands. If women—all women—could know how men love the touch of soft, smooth hands, and the sight of them promising thier softness and smoothness. Show us a girl devoid of man's love and we will show you one who fails to make herself attractive in his eyes. There she is. All there. Hands, feet, hair, eyes, brow, lips. A nice useful member of society and a good woman. But who wants to date her? Who is going to dig for the glamour that should be making her radiant instead of merely useful.

Men love women who help them to realize their dreams. One may do it one way, another another. Merely practical women are cheating themselves and mankind. They start out ignoring sex and end by finding themselves almost devoid of its attractions.

Men love women who are beautifully groomed. Who can blame them? Gleaming hair and glistening teeth, soft hands and fragrant touch. Does any woman deserve to be adored who ignores these things so vital to man's joy in her?

Having a man's respect is poor consolation. Love and respect go together, so it is not a question of choosing. And in this age it is no longer necessary for man to choose a mate who can drive a plow or roof a barn in a pinch. Life has been refined to a point where woman's chief duty is perfecting herself to meet man's new requirements. That means helping nature. It means being female. And when a woman is female with all her might, orchids follow. Try it.

HEAD THROB?

The woman who knows, would as soon start out without her purse! She always carries Bayer Aspirin.

When your head fairly throbs from the stores and crowds, reach for that little box. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and resume your shopping—in comfort. Relief is immediate.

Most people use these wonderful tablets for something! But do you know how many, many ways they can spare you needless suffering? From the discomfort—and danger—of a neglected cold. BAYER ASPIRIN

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—Lily Damita's outstanding characteristic, those who know her say, is the zeal she applies to her work. Because she has had to work hard, her experience in America has been far from fun.

LILY DAMITA

Great foreign actors and actresses have come and gone, baffled by Hollywood. With scarcely any knowledge of English, Lily Damita came here determined to stay.

So every day since she has devoted several hours to English, singing, voice culture and speech delivery.

Life for the "volcanic" actress began on July 10, 1906, in Paris. Lily is reluctant to talk about her early life, but she says she is half Spanish, half French. The little that is known about her reveals a very brief education in convents.

Ballet Dancer.

Lily made he professional debut as a dancer in Lisbon, Portugal, after the war. Later she was a ballet dancer in the opera in Paris and there were three years given to touring the continent.

She came back to Paris and its casinos, and finally became an understudy.

Lily had been dancing four years when the head of an Austrian film company gave her a test. After she saw the first film of herself she thought it was so bad she went back to Paris.

But the film executive followed with a proposed contract, which she turned down, until he told her she was to have 50 gowns to wear in the picture. Lily made pictures for a year in Vienna.

Shuns Society.

Lily is not seen much by the film society crowd. Her friends are mostly in the French colony or outside the profession.

Her accent is noticeable, except over the telephone, for some strange reason, and her English is good, but not perfect. She says she will marry an American, but not an actor.

When she feels well she is boisterous, but when she is tired she may refuse to speak.

In France she is called "the doll." They call her "La Mita" in Spain. That means tiny lady, for she is only 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 114 pounds.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Impossible Ambitions.

When a brilliant son is born into the family of a laborer he may get from his parents little encouragement and even some resistance in his efforts to rise in position to the level of his intellectual gifts.

If he succeeds, however, they are almost certain to be pleased with his success.

But when, as occasionally happens, a dull or merely average child is born into a family with traditions of higher education and professional careers he faces something which amounts to personal tragedy.

He usually is forced to work toward goals which he can not possibly achieve and suffers in consequence from feelings of constant humiliation, defeat and discouragement.

It is no wonder that he often becomes a delinquent. Since the only type of achievement acceptable to his parents is out of the question for him, his misdirected energies cause him to blunder into unsocial actions which at once give him the ego satisfaction denied him at other levels and permit him to enjoy revenge upon those people and institutions which are connected in his mind with the cause of his troubles.

If a child in the upper elementary school grades or in high school consistently fails in his academic work, and if, further, a psychological examination reveals that his failure is primarily caused by actual inability, the parent who truly loves him will not force him to continue along lines which can only bring continued failure and the distressing behavior problems that go with it.

Such a parent will accept his child's limitations and help him to find training along lines where success and satisfactory adjustment on realistic basis are possible.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

LATE NOVEMBER IN YOUR GARDEN.

THIS is the time to lift and store in your cold frame any winter perennials that you feel are so tender that they will be unable to live over the winter in the open.

Do not neglect to cover your bulb beds with a mulch of well-rotted manure or dead leaves as soon as the ground is frozen.

This is the time to lay over standard roses and cover them with soil. It is also the last call to collect and burn all trash and refuse. Late November is the time to spray your apple tree for San Jose scale. Use lime-sulphur for this purpose.

Grapes may be satisfactorily pruned at this time.

Better store away all bean or tomato poles and collect all stakes that may be on the ground in your garden, clean them and store them in any place where they will be handy when you want them in the spring. Place windbreaks about any evergreens planted this season which you feel will not be apt to carry over their first winter in good condition. All rhododendrons will be better for such protection. The easiest windbreaks to construct are made from heavy canvas or burlap. Merely nail the material to two stout stakes. The stakes, when thrust into the ground, hold the canvas taut.

It is not too late to give your perennials and shrubbery a thorough spraying with Bordeaux mixture.

Be sure to lay some branches of pine or other boughs on leaf mulch to prevent it from blowing away. Careless gardeners do not do this and as a result in January they find most of the beds in their garden without any covering.

Do not forget to keep your cold-frames well ventilated. Raise the sash for three hours in the middle of all sunny days.

November is the month to devote some time to repairing garden tools, whitewashing flats and repairing lawn mowers, rollers or wheelbarrows.

Are Your Ferns Drooping?

Perhaps even turning yellow and dropping? Then you will be sure to find Dr Kift's leaflet on ferns of great value. It tells how to prepare the soil, how to water, how to get rid of scale, &c.

If you would like to have this leaflet, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it, to

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Bayes" is of English origin and means "the son of Bay." "Bay" has come down to us from two main sources. In many cases it means "reddish brown" and was originally given as a nickname to persons whose hair was of that color. Occasionally it may be traced back to an English dialect form meaning "the pool" or "the dam" and indicating an original place of residence. The Hundred Rolls mentions a John ate Bey and a Walter le Bay.

The personal name "Nora" is ultimately of Latin origin and means "honor." It is also spelled "Norah."

The family name "Ebbitt" (also spelled "Ebbett" and "Ebbert") is of German origin. It is a modern variation of "Eburhard." "Eburhard" was an old Germanic personal name meaning "firm wild boar" or "bold wild boar." However, this name has frequently become confused with "Ibbett."

The family name "Ibbett" (also spelled "Ibbitt" and "Ibbott") is of English origin and means "the son of Ibb." "Ibb" is a diminutive form of "Isabel" or "Isabelle." "Isabel" and "Isabelle" are French forms of "Elizabeth." "Elizabeth" is ultimately of Hebrew origin and may be translated "God's oath" or "God is her oath." Various forms of "Ibbett" have been especially common in Yorkshire since early times. Many families which bear this name may trace their ancestry back to that county. A certain Matilda Ibot is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379.

The family name "Augier" is a common French form of "Adalgar." "Adalgar" was an old Germanic personal name meaning "noble spear."

The Goofus Spoonbill lives on a hill
Where she spends all her time knitting socks
Out of barb wire
Which makes her perspire,
So she cools herself off throwing rocks.

As her wings are too light to sustain her in flight
To get anywhere she just hops;
And she hammers her head
With a pipe made of lead
As it feels so darn good when she stops!

ALL GLASS AND STEEL CHURCH IN GERMANY

Architects Are Trying Hand to Implant New Ideas In Building Design.

MURALS ARE MODERN

Cologne, Germany, Nov. 25 (A.P.). Germany, modernistically minded in politics, has likewise become modernistic in outward expressions of religion since the 1918 overthrow of the empire.

Actually the broad changes in religious belief in America since 1850 have been just as revolutionary as anything of the kind in Germany, but here the break with the old-time tenets has been expressed in church architecture as well as in pulpit utterances.

German ecclesiastical organizations view with complacency what many American churchmen would regard as first-degree architectural heresy. The German idea appears to be that neither medieval nor nineteenth century church architecture was literally inspired, and that the architect designing a church in 1930 may depart radically from all precedent without convicting himself or his ecclesiastical clients of irreverence.

Murals Are Modernistic.

Nothing could be more radically different from the mosaics and stained glass windows of old familiar churches, for instance, than the modernistic murals of Cologne's Mechternkirche.

In the rebuilt Mechternkirche are murals by Peter Hecker in which conventionally winged angels jostle cogwheels of modern industry. In them, too, the familiar figures of Biblical history mingle with post-war sidewalk crowds, the women walking on high heels and men wearing wing collars and hard hats.

A little farther down the Rhine the steel of modern industry is even more evident in ecclesiastical architecture. In Essen, famous wartime ammunition center, there was dedicated recently a new Evangelical church, all glass and steel, with pulpit of wrought metal, and a metal crucifix that has been called "Christ Among the Girders."

Steel and Concrete Churches.

And in Dortmund, which is also in the heart of industrial Germany, the new Petri-Nikolai-Kirche is of steel and concrete, with a tall, angular tower symbolic of the steel-and-concrete age.

Berlin, too, has its modernistic churches; also Leipsic and other German cities. In Leipsic, for example, is the church of St. Boniface, built in memory of members of the union of Catholic mercantile employes who fell in the war. Its great, round window is like a mystic eye fixed upon the soul of the approaching worshiper.

In Kaufdorf, near Berlin, the new Catholic Church of St. Martin's resembles the "mighty fortress" of Luther's hymn.

Not every one will admit that the modernistic churches of Germany are beautiful, and perhaps some of the congregations themselves will grow tired of them in time. But out of them may grow a new and significant architectural form. If not, it won't be because the German architects failed to try.

SOVIET TURKESTAN LINE AT STANDSTILL

1,700-Mile Railway Remains Uncompleted for Lack of Labor.

HAS COST $100,000,000

By VICTOR G. C. EUBANK.

Moscow, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—General traffic over the new 1,700-mile Turkestan-Siberian Railway, which was officially opened several months ago with much ceremony, has been delayed by lack of labor with which to complete stations, switch yards and other attributes of a regular line.

Officials of this road, which was cited as one of the big achievements of the Soviet government, recently asked for 4,000 workmen to aid in completion of the line. It runs from the rich granaries and forests of Siberia through undeveloped areas of Turkestan to the ancient cities of Samarkand and Bokhara.

January 1, 1931, Was Date.

It was hoped to have the line in general use by January 1, 1931, but if the labor shortage continues, there is considerable doubt as to just when this happy ending will be brought about.

The main line was built entirely by native labor and without foreign technical or financial assistance. It cost more than $100,000,000 and required four years of unremitting work.

The railway situation in Russia apparently is not improving very rapidly. Although new rolling stock is being constructed as fast as possible, the number of cars is still insufficient to take care of the country's grain and other commodities.

Traffic Very Heavy.

Railway Commissar Buhmindovitch told the Associated Press that the Russian lines have been experiencing a heavier traffic per mile than the roads of any other country in the world. Traffic figures, for instance, show that America has 4.5 passengers per mile of railways, Canada, 2.7, and the Soviet Union, 12.97.

While the passenger traffic is unwieldy, the matter of moving freight is more serious. Huge stocks of vegetables are shipped to the cities daily in open freight cars, uncrated and unrefrigerated.

The result is that for every carload of these perishables shipped about one-fourth is fit for consumption when it arrives at destination. Consequently there is a shortage always in vegetables, whereas under American shipping conditions there would be more than plenty.

TOUGH JOBS LIKED BY CHARLES BRYAN

Brother of the Commoner Is Determined to Win Even in Politics.

GOVERNOR IS FARMER

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Back in the early eighties, on Judge Silas Bryan's farm at Salem, Ill., Charles W. Bryan learned to stick with tough jobs to a successful finish.

Now, after three attempts, he has succeeded in being reelected as Nebraska's governor.

Bryan first was elected in 1922, after a campaign in which he talked "farmer language" to Nebraskans and won them back from the Republican fervor that brought the Harding landslide of 1920.

Then in 1924 he "chucked" what seemed an almost certain prospect for reelection to accept the nomination for Vice President on the Democratic ticket with John W. Davis.

Missed by 3,000.

Defeated in that venture, he ran for governor again in 1926, and missed election by 3,000 votes. He was back on the ticket in 1928, but bumped into the Hoover landslide.

This year he came back a third time and defeated Arthur Weaver, present governor, who had a reputation as one of the strongest Republican incumbents of the office in Nebraska's history.

But to get back to the eighties:

On Judge Bryan's farm, William Jennings was the student and young man of bearing—"Charley" was the trainer of wild horses, rider of sulkies behind racing ponies—a tall, lithe youngster, with a bent for daring.

One morning he went into a paddock to find that his long-horned bull had gored to death his most beloved team of driving horses.

Sawed Off Bull's Horns.

In a burst of rage he ran the bull into a barn, roped him up in a stall, leaped astride his neck with a saw and lopped off first one horn and then the other—while the animal roared with pain.

Then he dashed turpentine in each open wound and dismissed the wilted bull—with the observation that he wouldn't harm any more horses.

When he was about to leave Illinois to join his brother, then a rising young lawyer in Nebraska, "Charley" had sold all his stock except an unmanageable bull that nobody wanted.

A citizen of Salem jokingly offered to buy the bull if Bryan would harness it to a buggy and drive it into town. Later that day "Charley" drove up the town's "main stem" with the bull hitched to a buggy, and collected his money from the astonished purchaser.

Operates Three Farms.

He still operates three farms near Lincoln, and he still delights in training and driving teams of mules, in fours. During the summer wheat harvest he mounts a binder and spends days behind his mules.

"In his head" he carries long columns of figures, representing State finances—and he spurns memoranda and audit sheets as something almost effeminate. In campaign speeches he adds two and two and calls it "farmers' bookkeeping."

He still prides himself on his marksmanship with a rifle and is happy for weeks when he wins high score in an annual squirrel hunt he takes every fall with a group of old friends.

Italian Workmen Seek French Jobs

Brave Alpine Perils and Become Problem in France.

Moutiers, Savoie, France, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Hungry and cold, and at the risk of perishing from exposure or of being buried in snow, Italian workmen traveling in groups have recently crossed the Alps in search of work in France. Harrowing tales of misery and hardships were told by a party of eleven, which negotiated the Little St. Bernard pass recently and reeling, staggering from fatigue and cold, reached the village of Bourg Saint Maurice.

The party was composed of twelve when it left Italy, but one of their number disappeared in a snowdrift high in the Alps. French "Blue Devils" and Italian carabineers searched the pass for the missing man but failed to find him.

Inasmuch as the men had no work contracts, the eleven survivors were deported into Italy, going through Modane in a nice, warm third-class passenger car. The problem of keeping these impecunious Italian workmen out of France has become a serious one for the French frontier authorities.

New Road to St. Gothard.

Lucerne, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—A German five mile road along the left bank of picturesque Lake Lucerne, which will facilitate access to the famous St. Gothard pass, the principal means of communication between northern and southern Europe, is a probability of the near future.

Officials of Harris County, Tex., have caught 214 horses running at large on the highways in violation of the law, and their owners refuse to claim them.

"We invade a new field with vastly improved cars at the lowest prices in our history"

BY WILLIAM J. McANENEY
President, Hudson Motor Car Company

WE have built these models up to and beyond the 1931 standards of performance and quality in every way, and have never in our history offered so many improvements. Quality is greater down to the last detail. Every phase of performance has been greatly improved, and the luxury we have built into the cars is substantially greater than ever before. Motors are larger and more powerful. An efficient system of oil cooling is introduced. A marked improvement in carburetion increases flexibility and economy. Bodies are longer and wider. These cars possess the finest, easiest riding qualities. For the first time, such comfort is available at these low prices. Only great manufacturing economies and the fact that our large resources permit us to take the fullest possible advantage of reduced commodity prices have enabled us to offer the public the greatest combination of quality and low prices in our entire history.

Owner-Management Permits Exclusive Value Advantages

Owner-management enables Hudson-Essex to give you outstanding advantages in quality and price. The men who are now guiding its destinies have been with the company since its inception twenty-two years ago. Its department heads and principal distributors are its controlling owners. Their independence is backed by unusually large resources in capital and plant facilities. It enables Hudson-Essex to lead in design and engineering quality. It permits economies in manufacture and distribution that bring exceptional quality direct to the public at distinct price advantages.

Duck Hunting Blinds Before Supreme Court

(Associated Press.)

Weightier matters were thrust aside yesterday by the Supreme Court to hear about blinds for duck hunting.

T. Morris Wampler, Washington lawyer, who owns property on the Potomac River in Charles County, Md., challenged validity of the Maryland statute prohibiting erecting blinds within 200 yards of adjoining property without consent of owners of that property. He contended the law was an unconstitutional discrimination between large and small property owners.

Counsel for the State argued the law was a proper regulation to guard against injury should hunting blinds be erected so close together as to expose those using them to stray shots. The arguments came to a sudden halt when the court stopped State's counsel before it had completed its case.

JURY TRIAL RULING DECLARED VICTORY

District Helped by Adverse Decision Fixing Judges' Powers, Is View.

BRIDE TELLS BENEFITS

The Supreme Court decision in the Colts case Monday was a decisive victory for the District, in that it ruled that offenders might be tried without jury for lesser crimes and violations of municipal regulations, while at the same time it intensified the seriousness of conviction for major crimes involving jury trial, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride said yesterday.

Pointing out that the Supreme Court decision had placed "reckless driving" in the same class with "moral turpitude" and subject to the same penalties, when it endangers property and individuals, Mr. Bride said:

"The decision of the Supreme Court in the Colts case, while adverse to the District to the extent that it holds one charged with reckless driving in such manner as to "endanger property and individuals" to be entitled to trial by jury, is a victory for the District upon the main question involved.

Ruling Held Victory.

"Counsel for Colts contended that one charged with the violation of any law or regulation punishable by imprisonment, even for a single day, is equally entitled to a jury trial, but the court refused to take any such position.

"Ever since the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Colts case persons charged with reckless driving have been accorded jury trials when they requested. In cases where no actual damage has resulted to persons or property, the person accused will, in the future, be charged with the violation of some traffic regulation, for which he may be tried by the judge alone and, if found guilty, given an adequate punishment, either by fine or imprisonment. But we shall not hesitate to charge reckless driving where the facts warrant it.

"The decision of the Supreme Court is of prime importance for the classification in which it places the offense of driving so recklessly as to endanger property and individuals. It was held that an automobile is such a dangerous instrumentality that to drive it through the public streets of a city so recklessly as to endanger property and individuals, is an act of 'obvious depravity,' which can not be characterized as a petty offense—that such an act was indictable as common law and therefore is a wrong in itself and not an act merely made wrong by statute.

Effect Is Severe.

"The word 'depravity' used by the Supreme Court is synonymous with 'moral turpitude,' therefore one guilty of this offense is subject to all the penalties accompanying the conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude; for example, he may be disqualified from service on the jury. It may affect his credibility as a witness and go even to the extent of affecting 'good character' where that is involved, such as for admission to the Bar or for securing certain licenses.

"The effect of the decision is very severe upon the person found guilty of the charge. The prime question involved—that, for lesser crimes and crimes and violations of municipal regulations, trials without jury may be held—is obviously a victory for the District's contention."

MRS. A. G. SMITH DIES.

Rites for Daughter of Late Clergyman Will be Held Friday.

Mrs. Anna Gordon Smith, 85 years old, daughter of the late Rev. David Gordon, of the Pittsburgh Methodist Episcopal Conference, died yesterday at her home, 1826 Lamont street northwest.

A resident of the District for more than 40 years, Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, Arthur B. Smith; three daughters, Mrs. Oliver Miles Ruark, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser and Miss Louise J. Smith, of Washington, and three grandsons, Dr. Arthur E. Ruark, of Pittsburgh, and Robert and Erich, of Baltimore.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the residence, with the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, of Foundry M. E. Church, officiating. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

People who are running Post Classified Ads this morning will get "Today's Results Today."

Associated Press Photo.

Mrs. Clare Grace Prophet, 32, and her brother, Harold Williams (right), of Warrington, Pa., were held in Philadelphia charged with the slaying of the woman's husband, William F. Prophet, advertising solicitor, for his insurance. According to police, both have confessed.

Protocol Is Topic Of Borah, Stimson

Foreign Relations Froup Ready to Study Plan, Asserts Senator.

(Associated Press.)

Foreign affairs came up for review yesterday at a luncheon conference between Secretary Stimson and Chairman Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee, but if any new step in international relations is contemplated it was not disclosed. The two hold opposite views on the proposed adherence by America to the World Court and these were exchanged frankly.

Despite his opposition to the revised protocol, Borah has promised to give the question immediate attention by the committee, should President Hoover submit it. There is considerable doubt in the Senate, however, whether Mr. Hoover will inject the issue into the approaching short session, both because of his desire to avoid an extra session and because of the failure of all the other nations to approve the document.

Senator Borah informed the Secretary that he intended to direct early consideration by the committee to the general arbitration treaty with South America, which is the lone measure of importance now pending in the Senate. This treaty was drafted at the Pan-American conference held at Havana. Another treaty—one with Canada relating to fishing rights in the pacific—also is pending and will receive early attention.

Lynchburg Man Succumbs.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 25 (Special). John S. Dornin, 75, died yesterday afternoon at his home at 1624 Memorial avenue, after a short illness of pneumonia. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Delia Dornin, a daughter and two brothers, one of the latter, Thomas Dornin living at Newport News.

Former Shop Manager Held in Embezzlement

Robert Hugh Davis, 30 years old, of Webster street near Tenth street northwest, was arrested by Detective Sergt. William Messer yesterday morning and charged with embezzlement of $500 from the John Bright Shoe Co., on Pennsylvania avenue near Ninth street, of which he was formerly manager.

According to the police, Davis took the money from the company by making a false entry in the company bankbook during last February. He was said by C. C. Crist, national auditor for the firm, to have signed the name of the receiving teller of a downtown bank to the deposit records in an effort to cover the loss. Davis is being held at the Sixth Precinct for his appearance in Police Court this morning.

Auto Hurts Fatal to Woman.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 25 (Special). Miss Norma L. A. Miller, 52, Hagerstown, injured in an automobile collision Sunday morning, died last night at the York, Pa., hospital of a fractured skull. The car in which Miss Miller was an occupant, was in collision with that driven by Albert H. Brown, Esaington, Pa. Mrs. William Zeller, Hagerstown, in the same car with Miss Miller, was seriously hurt.

WILBUR F. KELLOGG IS GRANTED DIVORCE

Former Washington Lawyer Once Engaged in Fight Over Wife's Love.

EXONERATED IN DEATH

Wilbur F. Kellogg, a former Washington attorney, was yesterday granted a divorce in Chicago from his wife, Mrs. Katherine Kellogg, over whose affections he quarreled with Charles F. Payne. Mr. Payne died of heart disease after the altercation in the Kellogg apartment on Euclid street near Sixteenth street northwest.

An Associated Press dispatch from Chicago said that Mr. Kellogg obtained his divorce on the grounds of desertion. He told the court that his wife left him while he was on a trip in 1928 and her family refused to reveal her whereabouts.

Mr. Kellogg was arrested after the death of Mr. Payne and charged with manslaughter. He was acquitted after the District Supreme Court ordered a directed verdict.

Mr. Kellogg engaged in the fist fight wth Payne on May 17, 1928. He told the police at that time that Mr. Payne had been showing undue attenton to his wife. He had warned him on one occasion to keep away from his home, he said.

After Mr. Payne's death a reconciliation between the couple was reported. The dispatch from Chicago gave Mrs. Kellogg's address as 1658 Euclid street northwest.

Bids on Dunbar Field All in Excess of Limit

Because the lowest of three bids received for conatruction of an athletic field for Dunbar High School was $30,000 in access of the amount available, the District Commissioners yesterday decided to reject all bids and readvertise the job.

The lowest bid submitted was that of Arthur L. Smith & Co., who offered to build the field for $99,500. The appropriation available for the work is only $68,802. Skinker & Garrett wanted $104,415, while a bid of $98,950 was submitted by the Mullan Contracting Co., of Baltimore. The field when completed is to be known as Walker Stadium.

Hoovers to Partake Of Barnyard Turkey

(Associated Press.)

The flavor of wild turkey appeals to President Hoover, but a bird of the barnyard variety will probably grace the White House table on Thanksgiving Day.

Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, returned recently from a hunting trip with two wild turkeys, one of them a 22-pound gobbler, but news came from the White House yesterday that these birds already had been eaten.

There are six farm-grown turkeys, however, available to take their place. Three are alive and strutting, but the others are ready for the roaster.

He was working at the repair track.

Film Powers Held Clarified by Hays

Says Distributors Have Not Exercised Compulsory Arbitration for Year.

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Decisions oft he United States Supreme Court yesterday, which held compulsory arbitration and credit committee practices of motion picture distributors to be in violation of the antitrust laws were declared today by Will H. Hays to "definitely clarify distributor-exhibitor relationships."

Mr. Hays is president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., representing the ten motion picture distributors against whom the Government acted in its suits.

"In the arbitration case," Mr. Hays said, "the Supreme Court affirmed the decision of Judge Thacher, of the United States District Court, rendered a year ago last October. Since that time the industry has not operated under the plan questioned by Judge Thacher."

HOOVER HELD FRIEND OF SHORTENED WEEK

But Time Is Inopportune for Federal Half-Holiday, in President's View.

LABOR LEADER IS CALLER

President Hoover is sympathetic to the proposal for a Saturday half-holiday the year round for Government workers, but does not think the time is now ripe for such a reform, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, declared yesterday after a talk with the Executive.

The American Federation of Labor adopted a resolution urging a Saturday half-holiday the year round for Federal workers at its recent convention in Boston after a speech by Luther Steward, president of the Federation of Federal Employes.

In this resolution President Green was instructed to call on President Hoover and ask him to indorse the idea.

Favors Idea Later.

In his talk with President Hoover yesterday, Mr. Green said the Executive appeared to favor the proposal, but contended that this is not an opportune time to inaugurate such a reform.

The President, Mr. Green said, pointed out that it would cost the Federal Government a considerable sum of money to grant the proposed half-holiday.

Right now, he represented the President as saying the Federal Government wants to use every cent possible for the alleviation of unemployment, and plans to spend an extraordinary sum for the speeding up of Federal building projects.

Action Was Postponed.

For a time it appeared that a Saturday half-holiday bill would be enacted at the last session of Congress, but in the closing days Chairman Lehlbach of the House civil service committee announced that action would be postponed until the Budget Bureau had made a study of the question.

Recently, the Budget Bureau sent out a questionnaire to the various departments asking them to comment on the possible effects of such a move. Some of the department heads are reported to have replied that the holiday would in no way add to the department's expenses.

THREE MEN INDICTED IN MILK TAMPERING

Early Trial Will Be Asked for Trio Slated to Be Arraigned Today.

BONDS MAY BE RAISED

Following the indictment yesterday of three men who are alleged to have adopted racketeering methods to intimidate two milk wagon drivers, who refused to join a union, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins were prepared to arraign the trio today and then ask the court to fix an immediate date for trial.

The men indicted are Harry Maynard Rothgeb, dairy deliveryman and secretary of the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Union, No. 246; Elmer Carr Rayford, business manager of the Taxicab Drivers Union, and Richard Conte, a taxicab driver.

The men are named in two indictments each of which contains four counts. The indictments charge, respectively, the destruction, attempted destruction, poisoning and attempted poisoning of goods and chattels of the Chestnut Farms Dairy and Thompson's Dairy.

The indictments are brought under section 848 of the code, which deals with the destruction and attempted destruction of movable property of the value of $35. The statute makes no distinction between the actual act and the attempted act, and either offense carries with it a minimum sentence of one year and a maximum of ten years.

The indictments charge that the men poured poison, the exact character and analysis of which is unknown, over bottles of milk belonging to the two dairies on the morning of November 16. One indictment fixes the value of the property of Thompson's Dairy affected at $41 and the property of the Chestnut Farms Dairy involved at $45.

The three men are now at liberty under bonds of $1,000 each, but Mr. Rover stated that when they come in for arraignment today he will demand an additional bond of $1,000 each.

$250,000,000 MORE ASKED FOR FARMERS

Three Organizations Here Urge Sum for Stabilization Next Year.

STILL FOR DEBENTURE

(Associated Press.)

Leaders of three national farm organizations urged the Senate agriculture committee yesterday to refrain from attempts to amend the farm marketing act at the short session of Congress, but to give the Farm Board an additional $250,000,000 to carry on its price and marketing stabilization operations next year.

The testimony of the agricultural chiefs concluded a two-day hearing to determine the sentiment for additional farm-relief measures. Chairman McNary said he would favor giving the board the entire $250,000,000 remaining of the original half-billion-dollar authorization. He called a meeting of the committee for next week to determine that point.

Will Back Farm Board.

S. H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, and C. E. Huff, for the National Farmers Union, said they would back the Farm Board to the limit. Taber, however, said this did not mean his organization was sidetracking its favorite plan—the export debenture—and he believed it would be revived in the Senate at the short session.

"The sessions ended about as I had hoped, with a better understanding all around," Senator McNary commented. Monday the committee heard Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge, of the Farm Board. Both were present yesterday and took part in the round-table discussion.

Would Curb Short Selling.

The farm organizations went on record for legislation to curb short selling in cotton and grain futures, but still permitting what they termed "legitimate hedging."

In this connection Chairman Legge pointed out that wheat sales last year amounted to 16,000,000,000 bushels but that only 800,000,000 bushels were produced.

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, a Democratic member of the committee, reiterated he would press for action on his bill to regulate short selling.

Trolley Starts Too Soon; Man in Pit Is Injured

P. Pasco, of Cherrydale, Va., an employe of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., was slightly injured yesterday when the street car under which he had crawled to adjust a plow in Eckington started off before he had extricated himself.

He was taken to Sibley Hospital where he was treated for slight injuries to his back and one knee, walking out after treatment.

Bellboy Captain Given Four Years in Killing

John B. Bluford, Negro bellboy captain at the Roosevelt Hotel, was sentenced by Justice Peyton Gordon in District Supreme Court yesterday to serve four years in jail following his conviction on a charge of manslaughter.

Bluford was convicted in connection with the death of Fred Howard, Negro bellboy, last September in the rear of the hotel. Howard, according to police, was stabbed during an altercation.

Driver Is Exonerated In Death of Woman

Nelson Joseph Carroll, Negro, was exonerated by the grand jury yesterday on a homicide charge in connection with the death of Mrs. Margaret Glanoly.

The woman was struck down and killed on the night of November 15 at Pennsylvania avenue and Tenth street northwest by an automobile alleged to have been operated by Carroll. The grand jury is understood to have been told that the accident was unavoidable.

Bankruptcy Sought by Woman.

Pirminia K. Jones, of 211 Delaware avenue southwest, who describes herself as a housewife and former secretary of the Southland Battery Corporation, of Alexandria, Va., yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in District Supreme Court. She lists debts of $15,455 and assets of $280. Attorney Francis W. Hill appears for the woman.

3 MEN, WOMAN FACE BOGUS NOTE COUNTS

Counterfeiting and Passing of Bad Bills Cited in Indictments.

COUPLE NAMED JOINTLY

Charges of counterfeiting are made against a man and a woman and charges of passing counterfeit money are made against two other men in three indictments reported yesterday by the District grand jury.

Alfred Milarch, alias Ray Lane, and Isabel Milarch, alias Isabel Lane, were indicted jointly on a charge of counterfeiting, while Joseph Bernard McCaffrey and Alvin Barnes, Negro, were charged separately with passing spurious notes.

The indictment against Milarch and the woman is in twelve counts. Three counts charge them with possession of bogus notes of the Central National Bank of Cleveland, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York City, and the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Three other counts charge them with making the bills, one count for each of the banking institutions. The other six counts charge possession and making of films for counterfeiting, three of the counts dealing with photo plates of the fronts of the notes and three with the backs.

Milarch and the woman were arrested October 6 in a one-man raid staged by Detective James A. Mostyn, of the First Precinct. They were captured in a house on Rhode Island avenue northwest near Twelfth street. The policeman also seized approximately $1,000 in spurious notes and the photo plates.

Later the couple were arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a warrant sworn to by Secret Service agents. They have been held in jail since then, having failed to post $5,000 bonds.

The indictment against McCaffrey charges that on September 7 last, he passed a counterfeit $20 bill on Andrew J. Robertson, operator of a barbecue stand at 1733 Rhode Island avenue northeast. Robertson, said to be a former teller in the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank, recognized the bill as spurious and had McCaffrey arrested. The indictment charges McCaffrey with passing and possessing the bill.

Barnes also is charged with possessing and passing a spurious $20 note. He is alleged to have passed the bill on Sadie Gaskins, at a coffee shop at 1833 Seventh street northwest.

3 Men Are Indicted On Gaming Charge

Grand Jury Acts in Raid in October on I Street Northwest.

The grand jury yesterday indicted three men on charges of setting up a gaming table and ignored similar charges against two. George H. Johnson, alias Harry Johnson, Percy May and Jack Turner were named in the indictment, while those against whom charges were ignored are Ralph C. Russell and John L. Robinson.

The indictment against Johnson, May and Turner is in eight counts. Three counts charge setting up tables for horse racing bets, dice and black jack. Three counts charge maintaining a place where the three forms of gaming were permitted, while the other counts relate to losses alleged to have been incurred at the establishment by Jesse F. Hasty, a policeman.

According to the police, Johnson, May and Turner were arrested in a raid last October on a third floor flat on I street northwest near Fourteenth street. Russell and Robinson were apprehended at the same place, but there was no evidence to connect them, Assistant United States Attorney Renah F. Camalier, in charge of grand jury work, stated.

Court Dismisses Racketeer Charge

Crude if Done, Judge Holds; Men Released on Bonds.

Two men, tried in Police Court yesterday on a charge of threats in connection with alleged efforts to extort money from Pasquale Errico, of Eighth street southeast near D street, the operator of a pool room, were released on their personal bonds by Judge Isaac R. Hitt, who declared that if there was any racketeering element in the case it was of a "very crude type."

The men, Harry Murdock, 25 years old, and Thomas Able, 23 years old, denied that they had sought to obtain money from Errico or had threatened him.

Errico complained to United States Attorney Rover Monday and was sent to Police Court where Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keough issued the warrant. Attorney Myron G. Ehrlich appeared for Able and Murdock while Assistant United States Attorney Wilbert McInerney represented the Government.

Two Robbers Sentenced To Three Years in Jail

Leroy Ashton and John H. Smith, Negroes, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging robbery in connection with the holdup of Bernice V. Brown, a Government employe, residing at 214 Massachusetts avenue northeast, were sentenced yesterday by Justice Peyton Gordon to serve three-year terms in jail.

Ashton, Smith and John W. Courtney, a juvenile, are alleged to have seized Mr. Brown several weeks ago and robbed him after he had stopped to give the latter a cigaret. The robbery took place on Ivy street between Canal street and New Jersey avenue. Courtney was sent to reform school.

Manslaughter Sentence Nets 4 Years.

William Carl Johnson, Negro, was sentenced by Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday in District Supreme Court to serve four years in jail on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death April 26 of Marcellus Washington, also colored. Johnson was tried on a charge of first-degree murder, but was found guilty of manslaughter after he had pleaded self-defense.

Real Estate Man Seeks Bankruptcy.

Irving B. Newcomb, who describes himself as a real estate man with offices in the Shoreham Building, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt. Newcomb, in his schedule, lists liabilities of $58,074.07 and fixes his assets at $1,750.

STAR BERTH EARNED BY SIPPLEY

Virginia Quarter Back Averages 5 Yards Per Rush.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 25. Frank Sippley, Virginia's quarter back, will be able to put the experience gained through a strenuous season into the choice of plays against North Carolina in the Thanksgiving contest which ends the fall campaign for the Cavaliers.

Not until this season did Sippley have much to do with running a football team. In prep school he took orders from another. Last year he paired with Billy Moncure in understudying Johnny Sloan in the duties of a field general.

In addition to doing some grade A quartebacking this fall, Sippley has carried the ball down the field from scrimmage for gains totaling 554 yards. He has covered more territory than any other man on the Virginia varsity except Bill Thomas.

Has Gained Total of 407 Yards.

Sippley has taken the ball from behind the Cavalier line 79 times in the eight games in which he has played. He has advanced it down the field a total of 407 yards, or an average of a fraction over 5 yards a try. In addition, he has caught 11 forward passes for additional gains of 147 yards. That means an average gain of 13 yards on each completed pass, or a bit over 6 yards each time he took the ball, either directly or on an aerial.

In recent games, Sippley and Thomas have been acting as counterfoils for each other, and between them both a goodly total has been added to the ground covered by the Cavaliers. If one is checked, the other usually manages to get away. The teamwork between the two is almost perfect.

Native of Princeton, New Jersey.

Sippley's home is in Princeton, N. J., and he studied at Princeton Prep before entering Virginia. When Sippley completed prep school and announced that he did not want to go to college at home, the headmaster of the school, a Virginia alumnus, recommended that he come South. Sippley weighs 162 pounds, is 5 feet 9 inches tall, and is 23 years old.

Virginia Captain Near End of Career on Grid

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 24.—Hunter Motley, captain of the Virginia Cavaliers, will be saying farewell to the gridiron when North Carolina comes up for a football game on Thursday. Capt. Motley is playing his third and final season on the Cavalier varsity. This fall he had a difficult job in the line. Though he has been billed as a tackle, he has been doing much of the work of a guard, especially on defense.

In the Swarthmore game last fall Motley sustained a leg injury that kept him out of the remainder of the games. His leg hasn't caused him any actual trouble this season but it has prevented him from doing all a tackle's duties. Consequently on some plays he has been changing places with Bill DeButts, veteran guard.

Motley won't retire from athletic competition when he turns in his moleskins, not by any means. He already has won his "V" in both boxing and track. During the winter he'll be in the ring as a heavyweight, and when spring comes he'll be handling the weights on Lambeth Field.

Motley's home is in Madison, Va., and he played at Woodberry Forest School before entering the University of Virginia. He weighs 210 pounds, stands 6 feet, 2 inches, and is 23 years old.

STARRED LAST SEASON.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 25.—Jimmy Maus, triple-threat half back at North Carolina, crashed tackle and ran broken field 49 yards for one of Carolina's six touchdowns in the Virginia game last year. He is expected to turn in another good game as he faces the Cavaliers for the last time at Charlottesville Thanksgiving Day.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 25.—The Virginia Juniors today claimed the undisputed championship of northern Virginia for teams in the 125-pound division. Manager Johnny Travers stated his team has won seven contests and played one tie game, and this was with the Northern Cubs, of Washington.

On Sunday the Virginia Juniors will engage the Mercury Juniors, champions of Washington, in a benefit contest to be played in Baggetts Stadium. The youngsters will substitute for the Celtics on their home grounds, as the big team is opposing the Mohawks. This contest with the Mercury Juniors is sponsored by the auxiliary of the Alexandria Fire Department.

The Alexandria Bluebirds will play the Del Ray Eagles Thanksgiving Day on Hunton Field at 1 o'clock.

Les Deavers' Alpha Delta Omega gridders Thursday will furnish the Alexandria fans with the leading Turkey Day attraction when they oppose a picked team from the Capital City unlimited class league. The invading warriors will play under the name of the French Sport Goods Stone and the team will be selected by Bill Plester, president of the league, and the various officials.

Washington and Lee High School gridders will trek to Charlottesville on Thanksgiving Day, to meet Lane High School, of the University town, in the morning attraction on Lambert's Field.

Mrs. Theresa Haynes won the prize at the Health Center for bowling last week with a high game of 133. Bert Lynn and George Simms tied for honors in the men's class with 156 games.

TRADE RUMOR.

Persistent rumors that Paul Waner will be traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Chick Hafey and Catcher Jimmie Wilson are denied by Sam Watters, secretary of the Pittsburgh Ball Club.

Vanderbilt-Sewanee Game Missing After Forty Years

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 25. (A.P.)—For the second time in 35 years Dixie gridiron fans look forward to a Thanksgiving without a Vanderbilt-Sewanee football game. These teams had met on Turkey Day every year but one since 1891. Their lapse in 1899 generally is considered canceled by the fact that they played two games each year in 1891, 1892 and 1893, for a total of 41 contests. Gridiron relations between the two schools were broken off last year after Vanderbilt canceled plans for the Sewanee game because of poor attendance and offered Sewanee two other dates from which to choose.

which to choose.

Although these teams do not meet during the regular season, there is a possibility they may play a charity benefit game early in December.

During their series, Vanderbilt had won 29 games, lost 8, with 3 ending in ties.

With this rivalry abandoned, the North Carolina-Virginia contest takes rank as the oldest series now in progress in the South. These teams meet at Charlottesville in their thirty-fifth Thanksgiving Day tilt.

Another game of long standing rivalry brings Virginia Military and Virginia Polytechnic together in their twenty-eighth meeting. Mississippi and Mississippi A. & M., Kentucky and Tennessee, Millsaps and Mississippi College, Georgia Tech and Florida, and Maryland and Johns Hopkins have met on this day for a fewer number of years.

When Vanderbilt faces Maryland on Saturday, the second and third oldest coaches in the country in point of continuous service will sit on opposing benches. Dan McGugin is in his twenty-seventh years at Vanderbilt, while Curly Byrd is completing his nineteenth season at Maryland. Only Alonzo Stagg, at Chicago, has served longer at one institution than McGugin and Byrd.

Generals Primed for Game With Duke U. Tomorrow

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 25.—The last hard workout of the year was scheduled yesterday for the Washington and Lee Generals as the 1930 training season neared its finale Thursday at Durham, N. C., with the strong Duke University Blue Devils.

A two-hour scrimmage with the varsity squad running against Duke formations was set for the day's drill. It is expected that Coach Gene Oberst, Generals' mentor, will keep his men out on Wilson Field until after dusk, and then have but a light signal workout Wednesday.

Squad in Good Shape.

The squad is in good shape with the spirit of the team driving them toward a hard fought contest with Duke. Washington and Lee and Duke are closely associated in their athletic relationships.

Three of the present Duke staff, "Tex" Tilson, line coach and wrestling and boxing mentor; Eddie Cameron, basket ball tutor, and Jimmy De Hart, head coach of football, have all been on the Washington and Lee campus. The former two, Tilson and Cameron, played their respective sports for Washington and Lee, while De Hart's stay on the campus here was through the medium of his position as coach of the Generals.

Another Tilson With Generals.

A brother of the "Tex" Tilson at Duke is playing football for the Generals now. The younger "Tex" Tilson follows religiously in his brother's footsteps. "Tex" is a guard at Washington and Lee, Southern Conference wrestling champion in the 175-pound class, and a powerful boxer.

Plans are underway here for a large following of rooters to watch the Generals and Blue Devils in action, and if transportation facilities are arranged, the University band will accompany the Washington and Lee Team.

TIGERS HELD UNDER DOGS IN GAME

St. John's Choice to Beat Hampden-Sidney Here.

TWO shifty, speedy and aggressive elevens seeking the taste of a first victory over the other in a football combat will present their gridiron wars on Central Stadium Field tomorrow afternoon, when the elevens of Hampden-Sidney and St. John's, of Annapolis, meet in the only college game of the day here.

The Johnnies will be a slight favorite, without a doubt, because of their more impressive record, but reports from Virginia have it that the Tigers are a fast-improving lot who can not be counted out of the picture in a game against any team in their own class. Since both teams are about a par in size, the Tigers may give the Johnnies more than they anticipate before the holiday sun sinks.

MacCartee, Cassasa Stars.

Coach Toady Riggs has built his attack around his two speedy half backs, Bob MacCartee and Paul Cassasa, both former Washington high school boys, for he expects both of them to show the home town folks some fancy stepping. Both MacCartee and Cassasa are speedy and elusive ball carriers, with MacCartee enjoying a slight edge in this respect. The latter's runs against Maryland at College Park a few weeks ago stamp him as one of the best broken field runners in Maryland, and he is prominently mentioned as an all-State back. Cassasa is very little behind him.

Both teams rely upon the forward pass as a major offensive weapon. The Virginia team also employs the lateral pass to advantage. With both teams ready to gamble and use everything in their respective bags of tricks, for it is the last game for each, a wide open and thrilling game is likely to develop.

ON THE SIDELINES

by BRIAN BELL

REPRESENTATIVES of the Hollywood Club in the Pacific Coast League will be busy at Montreal next month when men from every corner of the baseball map gather to talk trades and other things. These annual meetings of the National Association usually develop brisk bartering, chiefly concerning minor leagues. This year, however, the meeting may be held over for unfinished business between the majors and their smaller brothers.

Oscar Vitt, Hollywood manager, may figure in this business. His friends on the Coast insist he is under consideration for a major league managerial berth. If true, the Boston Red Sox must have him on the waiting list, for all other managerial posts are occupied.

Vitt, naturally, would like to go back to the majors as a manager, but if he can not sell himself to an American League club, he may dispose of "Larruping Mickey" Heath to some outfit in the National.

A deal is said to be on the fire whereby Heath is to join the Cincinnati Reds. The Hollywood first baseman appears ready for promotion and the club will sell him if a suitable substitute is thrown in along with the purchase price.

Vitt claims no Pacific Coast first base product is as good as Heath, not even Gus Suhr, sold by the Seals to Pittsburgh, or Earl Sheely, drafted by the Braves.

FRANK WYKOFF will have plenty of opportunity to defend his new title as world's fastest human and further convince the die-hards who doubt that anything on two legs can dash a hundredth yards in 9 2-5 seconds.

The University of Southern California boy who hit "nine-two" at Los Angeles and again at Chicago last spring, is only 21 and has two more years of college competition ahead of him.

It may have been jealousy that led a fractious horse to let fly with his hoofs in Wykoff's direction shortly after these phenomenal record performances. At any rate, fears were expressed that the young speed king's career was ended when a small but important bone in one of the Wykoff ankles was found to have been cracked.

But it now has knitted nicely and "Flying Frank" is looking forward to a pair of big seasons culminating in the 1932 Olympics right in his own back yard at Los Angeles.

Despite a tendency to brittleness, Wykoff has an excellent chance to repeat his fabulous "nine-two" before he hangs up his shoes.

Somehow, Wykoff's name was not included on the list of America's "first ten" amateur athletes announced at the A. A. U. convention. George Simpson, the Ohio State sprinter whose 9 2-5 last year was clouded by the fact that it was made with the aid of starting blocks, was named instead. Yet the award is supposed to be based on the past season's performances.

Helene Madison, the Seattle "wonder girl," certainly deserves her place on the list. At 17 this remarkable mermaid has beaten all of the world's best swimming records up to a mile—and how she has beaten them.

The great marks set up by such former American swimming queens as "Trudy" Ederle and Martha Norelius have been tossed into the discard by margins of several seconds.

As to her standards of amateurism, it is reported Miss Madison turned down an offer of $10,000 for swimming three races against Martha Norelius, now a pro.

V. M. I. PLANS TO REVAMP LINE-UP

Several Shifts to Be Made for V.P.I. Contest Tomorrow.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 25.—Virginia Military Institute's Flying Squadron will be a revamped eleven when the Cadets face the V. P. I. Gobblers at Roanoke Thanksgiving Day for the twenty-eighth renewal of one of the South's oldest traditional rivalries. Two new guards, an end, and one or two backs will be in the starting line-up as a result of hard scrimmages the latter part of last week and early this week.

Buddy Shell, who stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 181 pounds, was a reserve tackle last year and regular center this season, but Thursday he will be at guard, with the pivot post taken over by Tex Preston, 169-pound center who started the Kentucky game. The other guard will be Landon Hilliard, 183-pound sophomore, who has been shifted from tackle to team up with Shell and give power and weight to the center of the line.

Jack Walker, 150-pound sophomore, will replace Rand Gregory at right end, with John Gill, 169 pounds, as his running mate at left end. Harry Ford, 190 pounds, will hold down his regular post at right tackle, with Bill Kaylor, 195-pound sophomore, on the other side of the line.

Capt. Roy Dunn, 182 pounds, at full back; Gilly Laughorn, 149 pounds, at quarter back, and Buck Wright, 174 pounds, at half back, are practically sure starters in the V. M. I. backfield. The other back field job will not be assigned by Coach Bill Raftery until Thursday, with the choice resting between Lefty Williams, 166-pound senior, and Louis Siegel, 156-pound sophomore. The heavier back field would average only 165 pounds, or more than 15 pounds per man less than V. P. I.'s hefty ball carriers. The Cadet line, with a 177-pound average, will also give away poundage to the Tech forwards.

The V. M. I. squad of about 40 players will travel to Roanoke by automobile Thursday morning. The cadet corps will leave Lexington by train soon after 8 a. m., and will start the return trip from Roanoke at midnight.

V. P. I. PREPS LINE FOR CADETS

Game to Be Won or Lost by Forwards, Says Coach.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 25.—V. P. I.'s line was the center of all eyes today in the final hard workout before the Turkey Day battle with V. M. I. at Roanoke.

Coach Orville Neal has a set of heavy backs all ready to go galloping against the Flying Squadron, but the Poly mentor is quick to say that the annual game with V. P. I.'s traditional foe will be won or lost in the line. Capt. Bird Hooper and his running mates—Frank Howard, Mit Owens and Sam Hardwick—are a valuable cargo, but attention of the coaching staff was focused today, just as it was most of last week, on the forwards. Because these forwards only hit their stride in late-season games, the coaches are confident that they will be at the peak of their game Thanksgiving Day. They drove with irresistible power in the Virginia game, both on offense and defense. It is such a performance as this that the Poly coaches are working for on the eve of the military classic with the traditional rivals from Lexington.

Neat Battle for Line Position.

With the center and wing positions all fixed, the guard and tackle positions have been the center of action for the past week. Red Jones, the fiery-topped youngster who set such a fast pace in recent encounters, is firmly set at left guard, but Earl Dyke and Gene Hite are still going nip and tuck for the other guard berth. Hite is a sophomore and Dyke is a junior.

In the tackle posts, it is mostly a case of Harry Stark and Bill Grinus against the field. Buckner Green, Jim Swart, and Mark Ritter have taken turns with Grinus and Stark in the long group scrimmages and in the team scrimmages with the reserves.

Neither Stark nor Grinus have made a letter at tackle—for Stark played guard last year and Grinus is just a sophomore—but this doughty pair may get the call at tackle ahead of any combination from the trio of veterans. Stark is a steady, hard-working type destined to go places on the gridiron in another year if, indeed, he is not there already.

Grinus is an aggressive, ambitious youngster who possesses such knack for defensive play that he just can not be kept off the varsity eleven.

Meanwhile the typical Thanksgiving spirit is mounting on the V. P. I. campus as game time draws near. The cadet corps already is keyed to a

ARMY SQUAD GAY IN DRILL FOR NOTRE DAME GAME

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The cause of law and order, which has stood in some need of assistance in his quarter, received a slight boost last Saturday afternoon when Notre Dame and Northwestern played their game at Dyche Stadium, in Evanston, a cramped arena holding about 50,000 people, instead of moving the show down to the big plant on the Chicago lake front, which holds twice as many.

The Western Conference, of which Northwestern is a member, declined to sanction the removal of the game to the big arena on the ground that to do so would be to violate a rule. Consequently, the ticket scalpers got the excess revenue, and the destitute, who might have received some relief in their present jobless desperation, got nothing more satisfying than a fine example in the strict observance of the rules.

It is probable that Northwestern University will advance a fund of $100,000 for the unemployed, but if there had been more of pity and less fastidious respect for the rules, the fund probably would have amounted to nearly twice as much.

Superior to Anything In East.

The Notre Dame Team, which beat Northwestern by two touchdowns, with the attending extra points for the goals, played a game of football such as no Eastern team has been able to play this year, and, although there will be no chance for a direct comparison, it seems quite unlikely that the great Yale line would be able to impede Notre Dame appreciably. Albie Booth has not been as dangerous as his reputation this year, and it would not be fair to attempt to visualize him in a game against Notre Dame to his detriment, because he wouldn't have a comparable team. The Dartmouth Team, some of whom watched the game while shopping over in Chicago on their way to California, probably would have been no better than Yale if they had been on the ground themselves.

The direct test will come next Saturday when the Army, undefeated, and a team which exemplifies the best there is in Eastern football this year, plays Notre Dame at Soldiers Field. The Army has been playing fancy football this year, using a style of attack which necessitates elaborate bowing, pirouetting, passing and faking, and the intricacies of their work have only recently been reduced to habit.

Earlier in the year the West Point youths, like earnest golfers, remembering their lessons at every shot, seemed to be faltering in their offensive assignments while trying to recall their routine. They are big, strong football players and well conditioned, and the Army Game always approach Notre Dame games with an idea that if Notre Dame is to be licked, they probably are the people to attend to it.

Picks Irish to Beat Army.

Still, the Army has no such certainty and precision as the Notre Dame outfit, which includes several players who are competent to take jobs as coaches right now and doubtless will take coaching jobs next season. Notre Dame is so thoroughly coached and the endurance of the men is so great that they should win and thus add further confirmation to their unspoken but thoroughly understood claim to the national football championship.

Certainly Notre Dame missed Joe Savoldi, the full back who was so tactless as to wed himself a wife some time ago and consequently involve himself in some difficulty with the clergy at his school. Moon Mullins, who played full back in his place, was no such shocking agent on the attack, and young Dan Hanley, who relieved him, was unable to supply the lack of either.

Marty Brill was an elusive raider in the first few minutes of the game, when Notre Dame seemed to get the jump on Northwestern, and he ran the ball to Northwestern's 15-yard line, recouping a 15-yard penalty on the way, but he couldn't maintain his dash. Consequently, Marchie Schwartz assumed most of the burden, and Frank Carideo's deft soft punts close to the Northwestern goal were good for many yards of gains that the backs could'nt pick up in direct assaults.

Dartmouth started out this year as though the boys were destined to win unofficial recognition as the best team in the East, but in the Yale game they showed a lack that Knute Rockne's players seldom are guilty of. They didn't know how to block, and their attack was being broken down throughout the game when effective interference should have won for them. Rockne's players are swift,

Only 9 Report For Practice At G. W.

14 Players, Hurt or Needing Rest, Fail to Take Drill.

Lack of Practice Is Seen as Handicap Against Navy.

An interruption to George Washington's preparation for the Navy game which may result in considerable loss of effectiveness was caused yesterday by the absence of fourteen players from practice on the Tidal Basin Field. Only nine players were able to practice and after half an hour were dismissed for the day.

Injuries sustained in the last two games were given as the reasons for the absence of five of the missing group, while minor illnesses and the need for rest were cited in the cases of the others.

Those injured are Tex Hale, tackle, broken elbow; "Bugs" Bagranoff, guard, bruised hip; Lee Carlin, half back, twisted ankle; Wallace Wilson, guard, water on the knee, and Fred Mulvey, end, sore shoulder. Lyle Sturtevant, end, was suffering a case of boils; Laz Sommer, guard, was being treated for a cold; Joe Carter, back, has a strained shoulder, and Bob Galloway, end, had a touch of neuralgia.

Three Backs Need Day's Rest.

Sammy Berkowitz, half back; Billy Wells, quarter back; Wayne Chambers, center; Johnny Fenlon, quarter back, and Harold Jones, end, were found in need of a day's rest.

The "corporal's guard" that reported for practice was comprised of Jules Venesky and Blackie Hoffman, half backs; Walter Slaird, tackle; John Duffalo, Charles Chestnut and John Lannon, guards; Mike Reilly, end, and Max Brown and George Johnston, centers.

Unable to muster one full team, Coaches Pixlee and Walsh quickly decided that the day was lost insofar as drill for the coming game was concerned.

Just what effect the loss of practice will show in the Colonials' efforts remains to be seen, but, logically enough, it is thought that they will not be as soundly prepared for the clash as they might. They now have but two days in which to get in any hard practice, Friday, the day before the game, will, as usual, be spent in practice of a nature calculated to prevent injuries.

To Scrimmage Against Navy's Plays.

Scrimmage against Navy plays, if permissible by the number of players available, will be held today and tomorrow. This will be the limit of the Colonials' drill to familiarize themselves with the Middie attack and defense.

Tickets for the game may be procured by holders of George Washington athletic season cards and by G. W. students, who have purchased the six-month university activity cards. There is no general distribution of tickets in Washington, as it is Navy's home game.

Yanks Buy 2 Hurlers From Jersey City Club

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees today announced the purchase of two right-handed pitchers, Jack Hopkins and George Miner, and Third Baseman Julian Wera, from the Jersey Club of the International League. Wera, who was with the Yankees for several seasons as utility infielder, is to be sent to San Francisco in part payment for Frank Crosetti, Coast League star, whom the Yankees bought some time ago.

Catalina Open Golf Tourney Is Canceled

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, Calif., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The annual Catalina Island $7,500 open golf tournament scheduled for December 11 to 14 was canceled tonight by William Wrigley, jr., because of "lack of entries, both among contending professionals and followers of the game and recent dissension in the ranks of the players."

YALE ELECTS ALBIE BOOTH 1931 CAPTAIN

ALBIE BOOTH.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Albert J. Booth, jr., for two years star quarter back of the Yale football team, tonight was elected captain of the 1931 football squad. The election was at a banquet which officially concludes the 1930 season.

The new captain, whom sports fans call "Albie," is a junior in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale. His home is in New Haven and he took preparatory work at New Haven High School and at Milford Preparatory School. As a Yale freshman he was captain of the football, baseball and basket ball squads.

CALIFORNIA ANGLES FOR COACH

Many Reported as Price's Successor; Players Protest.

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The University of California began today to look over the leading football coaches of the country to find a successor to Clarence "Nibs" Price, whose resignation was accepted last night.

The athletic council met to indorse candidates, but gave out no information. Its recommendations were to be considered by the student executive committee, by whom the coaches are employed.

Names heard on the campus included Tad Jones, former Yale coach; Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame; Dr. J. W. Wilce, former mentor of Ohio State; Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, and others from the East, North and South.

Players Frame Protest.

Meanwhile the senior players of Price's squad framed a protest against acceptance of the coach's resignation, saying California's failure to win games this season was not the fault of the coach.

The resolution, signed by Ted Beckett, Russ Avery, Capt. Carl Handy, Frank Medanich and Herman Eickmeyer, all varsity men, follows:

"We always have had the fullest faith and confidence in the ability of Nibs Price as head football coach at this university. We regret his resignation because of the fact that we believe that this season's results were not due to his lack of ability as a coach, but to factors over which he had no control. His fine spirit of sportsmanship and loyalty to the team will always be cherished and remembered by the men who have played and fought for him."

Price told questioners today he would accept an offer to continue as basketball coach if conditions were "satisfactory."

Hoff Asks to Examine Gibson in Tunney Suit

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Max ("Boo Boo") Hoff, of Philadelphia, asked the Supreme Court today to permit him to examine Billy Gibson, incompetent former manager of Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion of the world, as to the basis of his, Hoff's, $500,000 claim on Tunney's earnings.

Trial of the Hoff suit is to begin in about a week.

Hoff's attorneys held that the Court of Appeals has ruled that a person may be incompetent to transact business and yet be competent as a witness.

Ben Herzberg, of Hoff's counsel, submitted an affidavit which said:

"Only the other day it was called to my attention that Gibson was discharged from the Neurological Institute * * * and that he now is at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y."

6 Tech Stars Will Enter Maryland

3 Hardell Back Field Aces to Matriculate at College Park.

Kolker, Goldman and Lank, Linemen, Also to Be Old Liners.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

BARRING a revolution or a congressional ban against football, Coach Curley Byrd, of Maryland, is going to be the recipient of at least six splendid football players next fall, with more to come when certain required numbers of high school credits have piled up.

Patrons of football who saw Tech sweep through the high school series this year with all the difficulty it takes to break an egg, might have a chance to revel in the team's team-play for still another period. Almost to the man, Coach Hardell's Manual Trainers have chosen Maryland as the institution where they will expose themselves to collegiate learning, starting next September.

Three Tech Backs Expect To Go to Maryland.

Hardell's brilliant back field—Nelson, quarter; Sachs, half; Reichman, half; Gormley, full, and Hatos, all around—will be disrupted this year by the leaving of Nelson, Reichman and possibly Hatos, if enough credits accrue. These three will enter Maryland, they strongly assert. Gormley and Sachs, with still another year to play for Tech, are a bit uncertain as to their university affiliations, but have a strong leaning College Parkward.

Of the linemen, Capt. Kolker, Goldman and Lank will lay aside the Maroon and Gray for the Black and Gold of Maryland, if all goes well. Hardell's other regulars, Wohlfarth, Bell, Baxter, Meikeljohn and Rhodes, while due to remain in Tech for one more year, promise to join their conferees once Tech has been left behind.

Curley Byrd may have as much trouble in a year or so trying to keep former Tech men off his first team as did the All-High critics this year.

Gridmen in Final Drill For Swavely Game.

Coach Hardell sent three teams through passing drills yesterday in what was some of the last practice for six of his regulars. Nothing particular will be done today. The boys will leave at 10:15 tomorrow morning for Manassas, where the second game between a Swavely Prep Team and Tech will take place at 2:30 o'clock.

Hardell's 1928 team took a drubbing at the hands of the Virginians but that is not likely to reoccur, according to Tech's coach.

Rockne Rests Squad; Work Begins Today

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Knute Rockne gave his Notre Dame varsity another day of rest today, but ordered full steam ahead in the drills for the Army game starting tomorrow.

With a heavy snow falling and the temperature hovering around the 22-degree mark, Rockne drilled his second team indoors today, running through signals for most of the training session. The third and fourth teams, meanwhile, ran through Army plays preparatory to a scrimmage Thursday afternoon.

Several of the varsity members still nursed bruises from the Northwestern game today, but none of them was expected to be out of action Saturday. Rockne said the injuries were not as severe as first supposed and not nearly as bad as those suffered in the Drake game the week before.

Buckeye Grid Coach Promises Better Team

Cleveland, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Ohio State alumni have Coach Sam Willaman's promise of an improved 1931 football machine despite the end of the career of the great Wesley Fesler.

"I told you last year that we would have a better team this season, even though we might not win any more games," Willaman said at a banquet of Cleveland alumni last night. "I make that same promise again."

Willaman labeled Fesler as the greatest athlete in the school's history, bafring not even Chic Harley, and maintained that Fesler earned all-American rating in the back field as well as at end. He said Fesler led the Buckeyes to a comeback in November with his passing, despite an injured right hand, suffered in the second game of the season.

Willaman said he could not promise an undefeated team next year, "but you will never have a bunch of boys down there who will play more hard football in the space of 60 minutes."

ONE wonders how Mitzi, the cat, utilizes her balconies. Perhaps she plays Juliet to some feline Romeo. At any rate her suitors won't be disturbed by old shoes hurtling through the dark. And what use can a cat have for a two-car garage? Although $65,000 is an unusual gift for a cat, there have been several similar gifts to other "friends of man."

When the geyser Waimangu spouted 15,000 feet into the air, it threw mud and stones as well as scalding water to this phenomenal height, which is higher than Pikes Peak.

While being grown in a Belgian hothouse, the large bunch of grapes was insured for $500. It is estimated that they were worth approximately $234 at current market prices.

No Fear of Irish Is Noticeable in Camp of West Point.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Winter, cold and cheerless and bristling with snow and sleet, swept down upon the Army citadel on the bluffs of the Hudson today but it failed to chill the spirits of eleven young huskies facing the unenviable task of halting Notre Dame on Soldier Field in Chicago Saturday.

It was a day to add the final straw to the normal hardships of football. A cutting wind blew snow in the faces of the pass receivers, stiffened their fingers and the slippery underfooting sent them skidding and tumbling about the canvas-walled practice field. But for almost two hours, the longest period Army ever is able to sandwich in between drills and classes, the unbeaten squad scrimmaged against Notre Dame plays, fired passes all over the lot, and polished a kicking game.

No Indication of Fear of Irish.

Nowhere was there any indication that Knute Rockne's great eleven will have the Cadet huskies beaten before Army trots on the field Saturday before the greatest crowd of the season. Maj. Ralph Sasse, ruddy-faced, cheery head coach, shivered in his baseball uniform and joked with the men as they went through their labors. The bulgy youngsters laughed and made play of the rough workout. Wendell "Apple Knocker" Bowman, chunky quarter back from Tennessee and the wit of the outfit, offered wagers for and against every forward pass any one but himself threw. The squad seemed saturated with the idea Sasse had.

"That Notre Dame Team may beat us; it's a great outfit, but we're going to have a lot of fun anyway and you never can tell about football."

Army, rated a 5-to-1 under dog in the West, looked nothing like that today, despite the terrible weather conditions. Maj. Sasse and his corps of assistants have worked out something new in the way of the "Pop" Warner offense Army adopted with success this season.

All Casuals Recovered.

All of the injured, including Capt. "Polly" Humber, a great guard; Carl Carimark, end mate of Big Ed Messinger; Edward Suarez, giant tackle, and the peppy Bowman have recovered from their hurts. In addition Army seems certain to start a back field that has been quietly working its way out in front of the more highly publicized "aces" who have failed to show any great punch in other big games.

Sasse probably will start Ed Carver or Bowman at quarter, as he has in all important matches this season, but Cy Letzelter, Ken Fields and Ed Herb, the "sophomore" trio of ball luggers, are slated for bench seats. Letzelter recently was forced from the team by the revelation that he entered the Military Academy over age. His place has been taken by Ray Steckner, a powerful youth from Hazleton, Pa., who passed, plunged and kicked Army to victory over Illinois in the second half of their duel in the Yankee Stadium.

Tom Kilday, another big fellow from San Antonio, Tex., who scored the tying touchdown against Yale, will be in that back field along with Henry Sebastian, a fleet youngster

Lou Little Sees Notre Dame-S. California Game as Deciding National Championship

Trojans Far Improved Over Team That Lost to Wash. State.

By LOU LITTLE (Head Coach Columbia).

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The game that is to be played between Notre Dame and Southern California on December 6 should really decide who is the outstanding team of the country.

Of these two teams, Notre Dame has not been defeated or tied, while Southern California was defeated by Washington State, 7-6. The Irish still have Army to face next Saturday, but I can hardly see how this should prove to be a stumbling block. This will send Notre Dame into this football classic undefeated.

In spite of the Trojans' defeat, they still are the strongest team on the Pacific Coast. Southern California of today is perhaps 50 per cent stronger than they were the day they were beaten by Washington State. On Thanksgiving Day they meet Jimmie Phelan's Washington team, but I can hardly see how the boys from Seattle can stop the Trojans' powerful offensive punch.

Three Teams Stand Out in East.

Here in the East we do not have an undefeated and untied team. The nearest teams to approach that record are Western Maryland, Dartmouth and Army. Of these three I would say that Dartmouth was the strongest. Perhaps I am doing Army an injustice in placing Dartmouth a notch or two higher.

The Cadets' game with Notre Dame will prove to us all just what they have in the way of real strength. Army could not be playing Notre Dame at a better time. The boys from South Bend had to be tuned up with full steam ahead for their game with Northwestern. There is bound to be a reaction. On the other hand, Army, which has had two easy games, Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 25.—Barbers did extra business today at Salem College and the football squad are crossing their fingers against possible ill luck.

Last week the players signed a pledge not to shave until they had won a game. When they appeared for classes today at college an official was displeased with their shaggy appearance and sent them to the barbers post haste.

will face Rockne's boys with every man in perfect condition and the right mental attitude.

Colgate Team Seen Most Powerful.

Perhaps the strongest team here in the East is one that has been beaten, and that is Colgate. I doubt if there is a team in this section that could hope to beat them.

Western Maryland, although undefeated for the second season, has perhaps not received just credit, due to the fact that the schedule they have

Hoover and Squads to Autograph Ball for Auction Between Halves

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Between the halves of the Army-Navy football game in New York, December 13, a football autographed by President Hoover and all the members of the Naval Academy and West Point football squads, will be auctioned, the proceeds to go to charity.

The announcement was made today by Lieut. Comdr. Frederick G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics at the Naval Academy, who, in company with Capt. Henry D. Cooke, director of athletics, and Roland R. Thomas, treasurer of the Navy Athletic Association, returned today from New York with the ball.

With a choice spot saved for the signature of President Hoover, the West Pointers have already signed their names. The regular Navy players were to sign the ball today before it is taken to Washington for the President's signature.

STARPATIC, CHOICE, FIRST HOME IN BOWIE FEATURE

Winner Nips Colossal at End

Lady Capulet, at 6-1, Takes Secondary Feature.

Crack Play, One of 2 Winning Choices of Day, Takes First.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 25—In a day of upsets, the Sanford Farm's Starpatic, odds-on favorite, made good but he won only by a half length from J. E. Davis' Collossal, an outsider. The Shenandoah Purse, feature race, engaged six horses, overshadowed by Starpatic, at a mile and a sixteenth gallop, regarded as a public trial for the $10,000 Thanksgiving handicap, two days off, but the favorite had to be shaken up in the stretch by Catrone to catch Colossal, which had slipped past him at the turn into the stretch.

The Brookmeade Stable's Raccoon came strongly in the end to get the show money and We Dun It was fourth. Escutcheon was close up for a half mile, part of the time only a head behind Starpatic, but she was tiring when Colossal challenged and was displaced by Raccoon. Rounding the turn, Colossal had taken the lead away from Starpatic, but the Sanford horse came again and saved himself, for which he will take on three pounds in the Thanksgiving Handicap.

Starpatic Second of Two Winning Choices.

Starpatic paid $3.70, although the approximate board final flash was 3 to 8. The time was good. Jim Dandy ran well on the backstretch.

This was the first favorite to score since the first race, which made the players timid, and after Backgammon, The Spare, Pennant Lass and others had met defeat, the play scattered enough in the Shenandoah to swell the price on Starpatic.

W. L. Hernstadt's Crack Play was made the favorite in the first race for maiden 2-year-old fillies and won like a favorite should under a good ride by L. Pichon, having two lengths margin at the finish. Mixed Tea was second and Durva third, both in the field group. The winner paid $5.90. Betty Bet showed a lot of speed to the first turn, with Crack Play forcing the pace. Then Crack Play went to the front and was never in danger. There were five grouped in the field.

Mixed Tea closed fast and beat Durva a length for place. Bright Miss was fourth in the field of fourteen. Amerisk closed with good speed but was away poorly. The field paid $8.10 show, more than the place price.

Live One, Field Horse, Wins Second.

Live One woke up in the second race and won by a head from Crushed Stone, after the latter had led all the way to the stretch. Peach Basket was third, and Westko fourth. Live One, J. J. Dolan's gelding, was in the field, with four others. Bushman was the favorite but had no speed and Not Forgotten was overlooked by the starter and left standing at the gate.

R. Fischer had the mount on Live One and he was much liver than in his last two races. The two leaders were separated from the twelve others by three lengths. The field paid $17.70. The race, for 2-year-olds, was run in the good time of 1:12 4-5.

Miss Olivia Curtis' Garlic was the extreme outsider in the betting in the Silver Springs Purse, third race, for 2-year-olds, while the Sagamore Stable's Backgammon was odds-on favorite, but Garlic won and Backgammon barely got up in time for third. W. J. Salmon's Mad Career split the two for place money and was beaten five lengths by Garlic. Claremont was fourth.

Albazano showed no more speed than a steer. The race was at a mile and a sixteenth. The money began early crowding the mutuels for Backgammon, who had Bejahak, stable rider, up. He was backed from even money to 3 to 5. The winner paid $36.10.

Claremont, leading most of the way, weakened in the stretch and Garlic took the lead, with George Fields up, and was drawing away at the end.

Lady Capulet, 6 to 1, Wins Scandal Purse.

The Scandal Purse, for fillies at 6 furlongs, secondary feature, was the medium of another upset when the Tranquility Farm's Lady Capulet won, George Fields again riding the winner. Pennant Lass was the favorite, and was second, but beaten by a length. The Branncastle Farm's St. Prisca was third and Elegant fourth.

To the turn into the homestretch, Pennant Lass and The Spare were running almost on even terms, with Elegant close up. In the stretch, near the sixteenth, Lady Capulet came up on the outside and won by a length. She paid $14.70 and ran 6 furlongs in 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIVE ONE, $17.70, $8.50, $3.30; CRUSHED STONE, $8.70, $7.30; PEACH BASKET, $6.70.

LIVE ONE, a forward contender from the start, moved up stoutly entering the stretch, where he caught CRUSHED STONE, but hung after getting to the front and had to be hard ridden. CRUSHED STONE came again under punishment and finished full of courage. PEACH BASKET outgamed WESTKO in final drive. Latter moved up stoutly inside the furlong pole, but tired badly last fifty yards.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GARLIC, $36.10, $12.70, $3.80; MAD CAREER, $7.90, $3.60; BACKGAMMON, $2.30.

GARLIC broke slow, moved up on the outside with a rush rounding far turn, assumed an easy lead and drew out at leisure during the stretch run. MAD CAREER made a game effort at the far turn, but could not stay with the winner. BACKGAMMON, under restraint early, fell back at the final elbow, was placed to punishment right at the end to save third. CLAREMONT stopped after seven furlongs.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY CAPULET, $14.70, $5.00, $4.80; PENNANT LASS, $3.70, 13.40; ST. PRISCA, $14.10.

LADY CAPULET saved ground in early racing, went to outside when challenging the leaders, lost a lot of ground at the stretch turn, but finished stoutly to get up in last sixteenth. PENNANT LASS displayed high speed, shook off THE SPARE and saved much ground, but could not stave off the winner. ST. PRISCA finished strong.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. The Shenandoah. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:07½. Off at 3:08½. Winner, Sanford Stud Farm's ch. c. STARPATIC, rushed to the first turn to secure a forward position, saved ground and forced to make pace under sufferance, was given a breathing spell at the far turn and taken out of the rail, responded readily to urging and wore COLOSSAL down slowly. COLOSSAL took command with a rush when approaching the home stretch and fought it out with rare courage. RACCOON lost ground most of the way and finished stoutly in the middle of the track. WE DUN IT had no excuses.

TITUS, allowed to settle in his stride after reaching a prominent position, responded with a rush when called on, came with splendid courage and, in a game finish, was up approaching the finish. NELL W. raced FLYER into defeat, took command after seven furlongs and held on with good courage for the final drive. TAIL SPIN, far back for seven furlongs, finished with a creditable rush.

FAIR BILL finished stoutly after saving ground entering stretch.

COURT SQUAD CUT AT TECH

Coach Boyd Has Task Ahead; Schedule Hard One.

"WE may not finish first, but one thing is certain, we aren't going to finish last," is the way Coach Artie Boyd, of Tech, sums up the 1930-1931 basket ball outlook for his charges. In the gradual separation of the chaff from the wheat, Coach Boyd has reduced his squad of 108 aspirants to a mere 45, who went through the usual basket calisthenics yesterday in Tech's far-flung gymnasium.

Coach Boyd, the bulk of his team removed by graduation, must display real coaching ability this year if Tech is going to retain its championship title.

Prospects Are Not Encouraging.

Boyd is not too enthusiastic over prospects this year, but can more than be relied upon to keep his promise about refraining from finishing in the cellar.

Tech plays perhaps its hardest game of the high school series in its first appearance in the annual circuit, Eastern, trained by Chief Guyon since early in the fall, will be met.

In tuning up for Eastern and the series in general, Coach Boyd has listed three strong games, playing C. U. Freshmen, Tech Alumni and Hyattsville High.

Tech's schedule follows:

December 17, Catholic University Freshmen; 31, Alumni.

January 6, Hyattsville; 9, Eastern; 10, Episcopal; 13, Central; 16, Western; 21, Gonzaga; 23, Business; 27, Eastern; 28, Episcopal, at Episcopal; 30, Central; 31, Hagerstown High.

February 3, Western; 5, Hyattsville; 10, Business; 11, Maryland Freshmen, at Maryland; 13, St. John's Freshmen, at Annapolis; 17, Gonzaga, at Gonzaga; 18, C. U. Freshmen; 21, Staunton Military Academy.

Bowie Notes

Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 25.—Winter racing is calling the stables now quartered here, and by the end of the week many barns will be vacant. Jefferson Park, New Orleans, which opens its winter session on Thursday, is getting quite a number of the stables. Tomorrow morning Tommy Crist leaves for the Crescent City with nine horses, while Buster Bedwell will ship four of his own and one the property of R. D. Moore.

Guy Bedwell, who operates the Yarrow Brae Farm at Laurel, will leave next Monday for New Orleans with fifteen horses. He will be accompanied by Jockeys L. Wells and W. Cannon.

Cuba, which opens next Monday, will attract seven carloads of horses from Maryland. Among the stables leaving here are those of Frank Kearns, of New York, and Paul Codd, of Baltimore.

Winter quarters has already called the Lemar Stock Farm's string, which was shipped yesterday to Kentucky.

W. J. Salmon's Pious, a 3-year-old filly, also has been sent to winter quarters in Kentucky.

The four yearlings which J. L. Leslie, of Baltimore, recently purchased will be wintered at Pimlico. They claim Jeg as their sire.

Frank Murphy, a member of the New York Racing Commission, will arrive tomorrow and remain the rest of the meet until Saturday to aid the Maryland Agricultural Association usher out the 1930 racing season in the East.

O. P. Woodward's Charley J. S. was fired today and will be left here for the winter, along with Chatover. Mike Hackett will look after them until Trainer Jimmy Jones returns with the Woodward string from the Florida tracks.

W. W. Vaughn, of Red Bank, N. J., who has an estate on the Chesapeake Bay, is due tomorrow to look over the horses which Ed Holland has been handling for him. Holland just returned from Vaughn's farm, where he moved six yearlings to the State Fairgrounds track at Freehold, N. J.

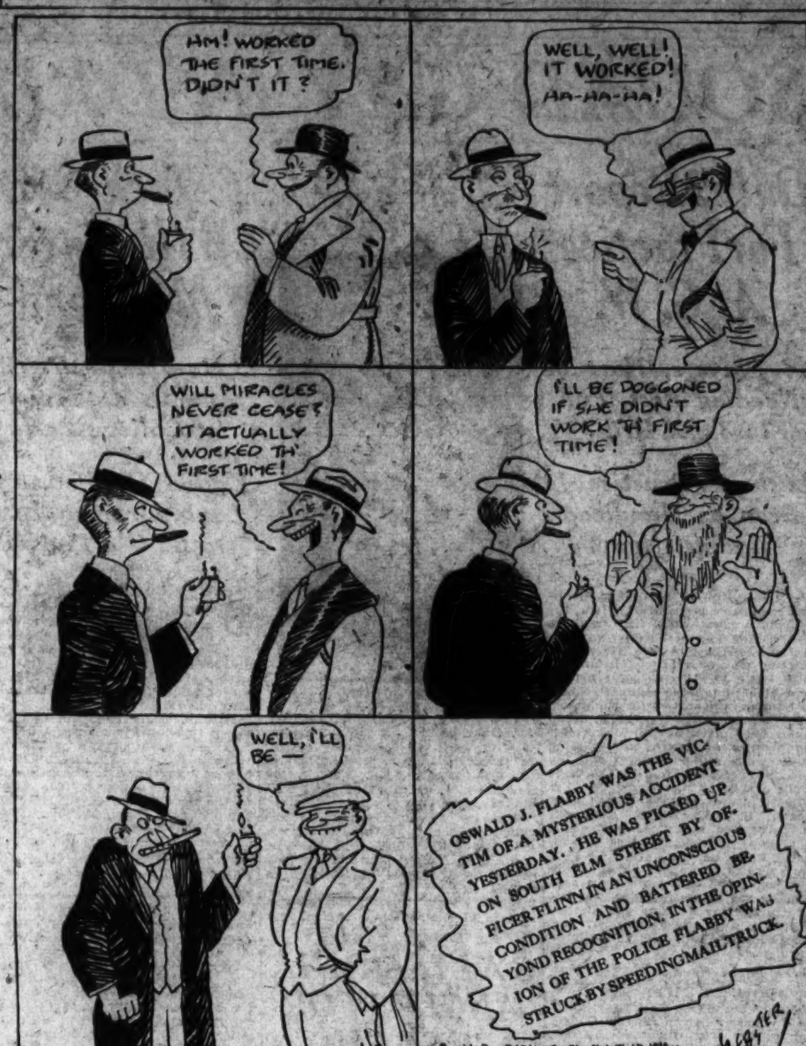
The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy —By H. T. Webster



Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 25.—The Bay Shore Handicap, $1,800, is the Bowie headliner tomorrow, it brings to the barrier high-grade sprinters. SANDY was beaten a head by Grattan last week in 1:11 flat, and taking up 4 pounds, he starts in this with 119, which is not excessive for a natural weight carrier. He has shouldered as high as 133 this year. Off his Grattan race, he is selected to win over JUDGE SCHILLING, beaten by Jock, with 114 pounds, and which impost has been boosted to 124 for this race.

At equal weights these two horses would figure close together. SANDY is 7 years old, 2 more than his chief rival for this purse. The race should be between the two, but there is speed in the field outside of this pair. GUN ROYAL takes off weight since his last race, when he was beaten a head by Hacky H. in 1:11 1-5, carrying only 108, in the Bay Shore. GUN ROYAL has not shown his best form this fall, and his last race was his best this season. RAPID TRANSIT and SILVERDALE would be dangerous on their best form.

FIRST RACE—Maiden 2 and 3 year olds go in the first race at a mile and sixteenth. CARNIVAL, a 2-year-old, which ran Cane Heart to a head finish, is selected to win. GUN MAN is the probable favorite, but he has had too many chances. His best race of the year was against Aziz, but he was beaten off by that filly. CARNIVAL improves every race. TEQUILA showed speed in the Cane Heart race, but quit badly. He may hold on better. BROWN MAID has a chance in this lot. GUN MAN should be the contender. He is a 3-year-old gelding by Man o' War.

SECOND RACE—The second race is for 2-year-olds bred in Maryland. GAY PAL should repeat. He led all the way in his last start, beating Running Girl and Carnival a length. He has the same weight up, and the distance is a furlong shorter. E. Watters will have the mount. BABOO looks next best, and should hold the others safe. DANCING MACK, which beat BABOO last out, is the probable third. A shift in weights favors BABOO for place.

THIRD RACE—The 2-year-olds are due to get plenty of action, for the third race is for the juvenile fillies. THAIS is expected to improve. She is to be coupled with AVENGER as the C. V. Whitney entry. On Laurel form, the last named is the better, she having ran second to Buckup. TONEY PRINCESS, which defeated ST. AGNES and later was second to Polly Play, is the probable contender. ST. AGNES has the edge on the others.

FIFTH RACE—The fifth race is the secondary feature, over a distance, and LUGGAGE is picked to win. He has been running against speedier horses, but has dropped back in his own class and takes off weight. IOLLAN, which has given evidence of returning to good form, is rated next best, and was beaten only a half-length by Dr. Freeland in his last start over the same distance as this race. BERBER also has a chance. It looks like a close race.

SIXTH RACE—The sixth race also is well balanced, but cheap horses will contest. SUN SHADOW, which beat FIRST MISSION at Empire City last month, should be able to repeat. This Sun Briar gelding has been a disappointment. He has never run in a more ordinary field than this one. He was beaten off the other day by Prometheus. But FIRST MISSION'S third to Curtsey the other day gives him the call on the others, with RUANE probably the show horse.

SEVENTH RACE—MARY McNEIL'S last race, when she was beaten a half length by Stern Chaser, makes her look like the winner of the seventh race. She has early speed and is overdue. DANGER SIGNAL seems to be best of the others. His race behind Raucona was good. UPSET LAD will not have to improve much to get in the money. He should finish in front of DUCAT.

MARYLAND FAVORED TO TROUNCE JOHNS HOPKINS

Teams Stand Even in Series

Each Has Beaten Other 11 Times With Four Games Tied.

Old Liners Must Hold Back for Vanderbilt Saturday.

A DEADLOCK in games won and lost in one of the oldest football series in this section should be broken tomorrow when Maryland engages its traditional foe, Johns Hopkins, in the Baltimore Municipal Stadium. The series record shows each team with eleven victories, eleven defeats and four ties.

Maryland is an overwhelming favorite and probably will enter the contest on the long side of 5-to-1 odds, this despite the well-known report that Coach Curly Byrd will start his second-string team.

Hopkins Last Won in 1927.

Hopkins scored its last triumph in 1927 when Byrd underestimated the Blue Jay strength and permitted his starters to play at the beginning. The score was 14 to 13, the last-minute desperate efforts of the Old Line regulars falling short.

But tomorrow Byrd will not be underestimating Hopkins. Although he will start his reserves, he will do so with the assurance that Hopkins of 1930 is not as strong as Hopkins of 1927, while the opposite is true of the Maryland substitutes.

Including its 1927 victory, Hopkins has beaten Maryland only twice since Byrd became football coach at the College Park institution in 1912. In 1915 the Blue Jays won by a score of 9 to 0. There have been four tied games during Byrd's regime.

Today for the first time this week, the Terrapin regulars will undergo a regulation workout. They have been taking things easy since their grueling struggle last Saturday with Navy, saving something for the Vanderbilt game due two days after the Hopkins contest. If the Maryland scheme succeeds, the reserves will take care of Hopkins alone and the regulars will enter the Vanderbilt game at full strength.

Nonscouting Agreement for Vandy Game.

Contrary to custom, there has been no scouting between Maryland and Vanderbilt. This was agreed upon at the suggestion of Dan McGugin, Commodore coach. He thought that his team would have too great an advantage if scouting were done because Maryland, with the Hopkins game on its hands, could not give more than a couple of days to practicing against his plays.

Girl President of Team At Milwaukee Marries

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—In a simple ceremony at her home, Miss Florence Killilea, president of the Milwaukee American Association Baseball Club, was married today to Dr. Michael H. Boley by Judge C. Karel.

Her only attendant was the bridegroom's sister, Miss Ilsey Boley. Only the immediate families were present.

Dr. and Mrs. Boley left today for Detroit and Montreal, where Mrs. Boley will attend the meeting of minor league baseball presidents.

but always unhurried, and they play with a coordination as close to the ideal as any football team can hope to approach, due largely to efficient teaching. Rockne as coach might have produced a champion football team at Dartmouth this year.

Northwestern Line Sags at End.

Saturday's fight was so hard that the Northwestern line seemed to sag in the latter stages of the game, but Notre Dame still had the stamina to keep going, like Harry Greb, the marvel of his time in the ring, who could start a fight at amazing speed and step up his gait round by round for fifteen rounds. The Army seems unlikely to match this quality, which was the winning resource Saturday. Yale's line, which held the Army to an even fight, wilted abruptly in the final quarter of the game with a Princeton team which was playing way over its head.

Too often credit for brave, victorious football is given to the coaches and withheld from the players themselves, but in the case of Notre Dame the team obviously has the advantage of the best coaching the game has yet produced. Rockne's players know him, and, more than teaching them the mechanics of their jobs, he seems to impart a calm presence of mind to athletes who might otherwise suffer moments of confusion and panic.

Even without Savoldi, Notre Dame was legitimately two touchdowns better than a team which would have been likely to come through an Eastern season without defeat.

DR. WILLIAM A. LAMBETH
LAMBETH FIELD—THE CAROLINA-VIRGINIA THANKSGIVING GAME MARKS THE END OF ITS USE FOR FOOTBALL

Lambeth Field at Virginia Passes Out of Grid Picture

Cavaliers to Play Final Major Game There Thanksgiving, When North Carolina Will Be Met; Field Dedicated in 1902.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 25.—Lambeth Field, dedicated in 1902, 28 years ago, will be used the last time for a major gridiron contest when North Carolina plays here Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Virginia's new stadium will be ready next fall. This is being made possible by a gift of $300,000 from Frederic William Scott, of Richmond, rector of the university. An attempt was made to have it ready for the Thanksgiving game, but the time was too short.

Lambeth Field will continue to be used for baseball and lacrosse games and for track meets. The Cavalier varsity will doubtless use it for practice purposes, but not for games, unless a preliminary contest is staged there before the stadium dedication.

Field Is Named for Dr. W. A. Lambeth.

Lambeth Field was named in honor of Dr. William A. Lambeth, director of physical education and professor of hygiene on the university faculty. Dr. Lambeth was active in building up athletics at the university from 1890, when he matriculated as a student in medicine, until 1921, when he resigned from the executive board of the General Athletic Association.

In 1901 Dr. Lambeth served as treasurer for the fund raised, largely from alumni subscriptions, to provide a new athletic field. This playing space, which later came to be called Lambeth Field, was first used for games in the spring of 1902.

The Lambeth Field Stadium, as it is seen today, was started in 1911, but was not completed until two years later. It was dedicated with a 34-to-0 victory over Vanderbilt in 1913.

Carolina-Virginia football games were not played here regularly until the home-and-home rule was adopted in 1919. Virginia won the first of these contests on this field in 1920, 14 to 0, and also gained victories in 1924 and 1926. The games in 1922 and in 1928 were won by North Carolina.

Dr. Lambeth's influence in athletics has extended far beyond the Old Dominion. He was a member of the football rules committee in 1909 and 1910, and from 1916 through 1921. He was a member of the American Olympic committee for the Stockholm Olympiad in 1912, and he also served on the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The gridiron game was divided into quarters at the suggestion of Dr. Lambeth in March, 1910. In 1909, several players had been killed, among them Archer Christian, Virginia back, who met his death in a game with Georgetown, in Washington. A Nation-wide clamor for revision of rules resulted. At this time seven men were required in the scrimmage line, and the flying tackle was made illegal.

Dr. Lambeth, working with the late Prof. Albert Lefevre, had much to do with the establishment of the Southern Conference. He was chairman of the earlier athletic conference of Southern State universities, from which the conference gradually evolved.

In addition to being an expert on athletics and physical training, Dr. Lambeth is the author of several books on architecture, one of which is a valuable collector's item. He studied biology at the University of Naples and has written a volume on trees.

Is Authority on Landscape Architecture.

In addition to his degree of doctor of medicine, he also has a Ph. D. in geology. For many years he served the university as superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Dr. Lambeth is an authority on landscape architecture. He has traveled extensively, and is a friend of the Italian government, whose special passport admits him to Italy without customs inspection.

G. U. Prep Daffodils Beat Friends Midgets

The Georgetown Prep Daffodils wound up their season yesterday at Garrett Park when they defeated the Friends School Midgets by the score of 6 to 0. It was the fourth consecutive win for the little Prepmen and it embellished their record of holding opponents scoreless.

Tom Keating, clever Daffodil back, put the game on ice early by racing 20 yards around and for a touchdown shortly after the opening whistle.

The Daffodil line, especially Owens, right guard, checked a determined drive on the part of Friends late in the game.

REJECT CHARITY GAME.

Los Angeles, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The offer of St. Marys to play the University of Southern California Football Team in a charity game at San Francisco December 13 was rejected by the General Athletic Commission today. Proposals to invite some other team for a similar game here December 20 were left undecided.

NORTHWESTERNS WIN.

The Northwesterns, 125-pound basket ball team, had little trouble last night at Central Gymnasium in turning back the St. Paul's A. C. courtmen by the score of 22 to 10.

The basket work of Scafide and Cossette proved too much for the Saints.

ARMY GAY IN DRILL FOR CHICAGO GAME

from Sherman, Tex. This quartet of ball toters appears to be the strongest Army has had to offer all fall.

Letzelter Lonesome Figure.

One lonesome figure on the field was Letzeler, the former Carnegie Tech star, who is out in uniform every day doing what he can to help things along. He passed with the centers, worked with the scrubs in the scrimmages, and took a gentle beating along with the rest when the green jerseys were slipped on, the helmets marked "Schwartz," "Brill," "Cariddeo" buckled down, and a taste of the Notre Dame offense was given the varsity. When the big Army linemen hit those imitations of Rockne's stars they were none too gentle about it.

The squad of 38 players will leave West Point for Chicago on a special train at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening. They are due in Chicago at noon Thursday and will make their headquarters at a country club on the outskirts of the city. Final workouts are scheduled here tomorrow and Soldier Field Friday afternoon.

DARTMOUTH EAST'S BEST, SAYS LITTLE

been playing has not been exceptionally impressive. This is a real good football team and it seems a pity they have not had a chance to show their worth. They did not encounter much trouble defeating Georgetown this fall, and this is perhaps the only high light of their schedule.

In the Middle West Notre Dame, Michigan and Marquette have not tasted defeat. Of course, of the three Notre Dame stands out like a beacon light.

Alabama is at present the outstanding team of the South. It has not experienced defeat or a tie game. Perhaps its only rival in the South would be Tulane. It was most unfortunate that Tulane should have faced Northwestern in the early part of the season. The Tulane Team had not been fully developed. The result was that they were beaten. Since that day the Greenies have run roughshod over every one, and their latest feat was to give Georgia real trouncing by about 25 points. Alabama, to finish the year with a clean slate, must turn back Georgia on Thanksgiving Day. They should do this.

LINDSTROM FOR WANER.

Here's another rumor for the book: Third Baseman Freddy Lindstrom, of the Giants, will be traded for Paul Waner, of Pittsburgh. Paul is the current attraction in the rumor record.

ANOTHER MORVICH?

Aged critics say the case of Vander Pool, unbeaten 2-year-old, parallels that of Morvich, which also closed his juvenile campaign in the undefeated class. And Vander Pool, like Morvich, might have been beaten had he been engaged in more of the rich stakes. Morvich won the Kentucky Derby, but never a race afterward. He has been, however, a success in the stud.

Practice for Basket Ball Underway at Georgetown

Capt. Morris, Shea, Dillon Are Last Year's Regulars Available; Home Games in Tech Gymnasium Likely.

BASKET BALL activity at Georgetown University is speeding up with the appearance of three 1929-1930 regulars, including Capt. Walter Morris, forward, in daily practice in Ryan Gymnasium. Morris is supervising the drills in the absence of Coach Johnny Colrick, whose duties with the football squad will not cease until the coming Saturday.

Bill Shea, forward, and Paul Dillon, center, are the other veterans now preparing for the new campaign. They expect to be in the best of condition when the regular call for candidates is issued next Monday.

Others taking part in the daily workouts are Johnny Evers, jr., a guard or forward, and Jack Clancy, center, of last year's reserves; Bud McQuillan, former Gonzaga High School player; Johnny Mann, a senior who is making his first serious bid for a regular position, and Jack Crowley, Lou Kelly, Dick Murphy and Jack McHale, members of the 1929-1930 freshmen quintet.

McHale probably is the leader of the newcomers, as his work with the yearlings last winter was outstanding. It was a last-minute goal by McHale that won the freshmen's feature game last season with the Cubs of George Washington University.

The varsity squad lost four valuable players in Don Dutton, Fred Mesmer, Maurice McCarthy and Hal Meenan, all of whom graduated last June.

Negotiations to secure the use of Tech High School Gymnasium for the varsity's games this season are now under way. The Hilltoppers' home court is considered too small for the accommodation of spectators.

Terry, Cronin Named Most Valuable in Poll

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—William H. Terry, first baseman of the New York Giants, and Joseph Cronin, shortstop of the Washington Nationals in the American and National Leagues, respectively, for the 1930 season, according to the vote of a committee of sport writers in all the major league cities in an annual poll by the Sporting News, of St. Louis. Results of the poll were announced today.

Cronin received 52 points out of a possible 64, and Terry was accorded Cardinals, was a close second behind 47. Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Terry in the National, with 43 points, and Hack Wilson, of the Chicago Cubs, ranked third, with 41. Al Simmons, of the Philadelphia Athletics, who won the Sporting News award in 1929, was second to Cronin in the American League with 46 points. Charley Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, finished third with 31 points.

Neihoff Named Pilot Of Chattanooga Club

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Bert Niehoff, at one time manager of the Atlanta Crackers, will manage the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Baseball Association in 1931, Joe Engel, president of the club, announced today.

In 1929 Niehoff was head coach of the New York Giants, but left the club at the close of the season and remained out of baseball last year.

MERCURYS VS. ALL-STARS.

In one of the feature sandlot grid events of the year the Mercury A. C. will play host to a team of stars picked from the unlimited division of the Capital City League next Sunday at a yet to be named field.

Andy High, 1930 Hero, Released by Cardinals

St. Louis, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Little Andy High, one of Dazy Vance's big problems, is going back to the minors.

The veteran infielder, whose pinch hitting in the final St. Louis-Brooklyn series last fall won two straight games when the Cardinals needed them most, has been sold to Rochester, of the International League, the Cardinal business office announced today. Rochester is a Cardinal "farm."

High has been a colorful major leaguer, chiefly because of his ability to rise to great heights in emergencies and for his ability to hit Brooklyn's famous dazzler.

Andy, now 33 years old, has been in baseball since 1919, when he started with Memphis, and has played with Brooklyn, Boston and St. Louis in the National League.

TURKEY DAY FEATURE.

The Palace-D. G. S. grid team, holders of second place in the Capital City League, will meet the Petworth Pennants tomorrow afternoon on Silver Spring Field at 2:30 o'clock. The game was originally scheduled for December 7.

The Grocerymen will give another of their Sunday night dances this coming Sunday and have issued a blanket invitation to all teams in the Capital City League to attend.

AIR DEFENSE STRESSED AT G. U.

Team Must Overcome Weakness to Beat Detroit Eleven.

IF Georgetown is to finish its season with a victory in the Detroit University game Saturday in Detroit, it must present a much improved defense against forward passes. This is the statement of Head Coach Tommy Mills himself. Virtually nothing but defensive pass drill has occupied the Hilltoppers in practice the past two days, and Mills intends to stress this phase of their preparations during the time remaining before the game.

With the first team arrayed against the reserves on defense yesterday, Mills dolefully recalled that the forward pass has brought about three of Georgetown's four 1930 losses. The lone exception was the defeat at the hands of New York University, wherein the Violet gained the decision on an automatic safety.

Villanova Aerials Beat Hilltoppers.

Georgetown's loss to Villanova last Saturday was caused directly by forward passes—two of them which fleet Wildcat backs received at points near the center of the Hilltop secondary, Mills claims. Georgetown had no excuses.

Western Maryland's victory resulted from a long pass and a potent line attack, but the pass paved the way. This was a 30-yard heave by Half Back Doughty, who faked a punt and threw the ball to Left End Bates, who was allowed to roam almost freely far beyond the line of scrimmage.

The West Virginia game might have resulted in a tie but for a forward pass that sent the Mountaineers deep into Hilltop territory in the third quarter when the score was 7—0. The visitors followed up that pass with a few smashes at the line and scored their second touchdown. Following that, Georgetown scored seven points, but still lacked seven for a tie when the final whistle sounded.

Detroit Boasts Deadly Passing Attack.

According to reports of his scouts, Mills has learned that Detroit boasts a deadly passing attack. With this information Mills has built up a special defense which he believes will stop the Titans' aerials if it is executed properly by Georgetown. Yesterday, however, he was far from satisfied with results of the first team's defense. The reserves completed numerous passes to all sectors.

Bill Macness, left half back, who was badly injured in the New York U. game, reported in uniform yesterday but took no part in the workout except to jog around the field. Whether he will get into the season's final depends greatly on the conditions of his injured hip.

Emile Bozek, whose shoulder was slightly fractured a month ago, appeared to have completely recovered, as he did much of the passing and receiving for the reserves.

LITTLE HAWKS PLAY.

The Mohawk 115-pound grid team will play the Colonials tomorrow on Hawks must report at noon.

Why We Do This

It is a well-known fact that high-grade advertising is the life of business. In advertising, short, catchy phrases and sentences, called slogans, are very valuable. We need them and will gladly pay for them and are taking this method of getting a number of suggestions.

Most slogans which have brought fortunes to business houses were thought of by someone not connected with the house. Gold and credit vouchers will be given to people who least expect them. Only a few minutes' work is all it takes. In case of a tie, full prize will be given each tying contestant.

All prizes are given free.
Successful contestants will be notified by mail.
Credit vouchers are transferable.
More than one honorable mention prize will be issued.
Any one credit good for face value, not to exceed one-half the purchase price on any new current model 8, 70 or 66 Chrysler or used car in stock. Credits expire 9 p. m. December 6, 1930.
No employe of this firm may enter contest.

STOCK MARKET DIPS AFTER EARLY RALLY

Several Shares Reach New Peaks for November During Morning.

WARNER BROTHERS OFF

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Efforts to mark up stock prices met with only temporary success today.

Fortified with a batch of reasonably favorable overnight news items, operations for the advance worked the market higher during the early hours of trading and were able to put a few issues to new highs for the November recovery.

Reactionary tendencies set in during the afternoon and the average net decline for the day was about a point and a half on a turnover of 2,182,930 shares.

Wheat was easy and corn weak. The irregularity of domestic bonds attracted less attention than did the strength of the German 5½s, which made an extreme gain of 2 points. Other German issues were also stronger.

Professional Trend Cited.

The stock market seemed largely in the hands of the professional floor traders, who were satisfied with small, quick profits. The chain store and merchandising shares which had a rapid rise yesterday lost about all of that advantage, thereby emphasizing the recent partiality toward short-lived group rallies. Motion pictures softened, presumably in sympathy with the Supreme Court decision holding that some of the producers had been violating the Sherman act in their methods of film distribution.

Steels enjoyed considerable buoyancy for a time, in response to a belief that the outlook for prices was showing improvement. Even though no immediate increases are expected, the stand already taken by two United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries for minimum quotations is regarded as the forerunner of higher prices in the next quarter.

Commercial loans made by reporting Federal Reserve member banks increased $89,000,000, bringing the total gain in the last three weeks to $139,000,000. Nevertheless the increased employment of funds did not halt the growth of banks' investments in bonds, which rose $37,000,000. Loans on collateral declined $66,000,000, apparently an indication that further liquidation of borrowings has been done in a week of rising stock prices.

Rail Issues Turn Heavy.

Several special dividend actions suggested the approach of the Christmas season, although they had little effect on stock prices. Further reports of railroad incomes for October failed to indicate a change in trend, showing continued improvement over September and losses of something more than 20 per cent in comparison with a year ago. Rail shares turned heavy with the remainder of the market in the late trading, but an upward movement in the railway equipment issues held fairly well.

United States Steel was prominent in the rally and fell only a quarter of a point short of 150, thereby making a new high for the movement. American Telephone at 193¼ and American Can at 120¾ were other prominent shares to penetrate previous resistance points on the upside, but all three reacted rather rapidly from their tops.

The mail order and merchandising issues turned downward briskly when selling got the upper hand. Sears Roebuck, which had risen 3 points on Monday, lost more than 4 net today. Montgomery Ward, Hahn Department Stores, R. H. Macy, Kresge, Woolworth and May Department Stores yielded 1 to 2. In the amusement group, Loew's displayed conspicuous heaviness, despite the extra dividend, and was off 3½, while Fox, General Theaters, Warner Bros. R-K-O and Paramount lost 1 to nearly 3.

Steel Shares Depressed.

Steel stocks closed well below their best prices, which represented advances of a couple of points on the average. Bethlehem, U. S. Steel and Vanadium were down slightly more than a point net. American Can, International Harvester, General Electric, General Motors, Union Carbide, Chrysler, National Biscuit and Westinghouse closed with losses of about the same proportions. Allied Chemical exchanged a 4-point rise for a decline of 2. American Telephone, American & Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas and Electric Power & Light also closed heavy.

Wheat's recessions ranged from ¾ to 1½ cents. A lower Winnipeg market and bearish advices from Nebraska contributed to the tone in Chicago. Corn lost about a cent and a half on larger country offerings and a smaller consumption demand.

Foreign exchanges were quiet and mostly steady. Northern and Central European rates firmed a trifle.

American Multigraph Merger Is Announced

Chicago, Nov 25 (A.P.).—Stockholders of the American Multigraph Co. today approved, at a special meeting, terms of a merger with Addressograph-International Co., which will form a new concern, the Addressograph Multigraph Corporation. More than 25 per cent of American Multigraph stock was voiced in favor of the merger.

Addressograph-International stockholders will meet December 12 to vote on increasing the authorized capital stock to 1,000,000 shares from the authorized 750,000 shares in order to permit consummation of the merger. The consolidated company will have 760,213 shares outstanding.

U. S. GOVERNMENTS RISE AS SALES GAIN

Liberty Fourth 4¼s, Selling at Best Price of Year, Proves Active.

GERMAN BONDS MOVE UP

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Strength of United States Government and the marked improvement in German obligations stood out in an irregular bond market today. The volume of transactions showed a substantial increase over the previous session.

Liberty 3½s advanced ¼ of a point, and the First 4¼s were 2-32 higher, wide movements for these issues. The banks have been very active in purchasing governments, due to the low yield obtainable on time loans since rates have sagged further. The largest turnover was in Liberty Fourth 4¼s at their peak price of the year.

The recent reactionary trend of German bonds was definitely reversed following the improved sentiment created by the 2-point rally of German international 5½s. The Young loan again rose 2 points, but closed 1½ net higher.

Other Germans Advance.

Other issues of that country attracted buying interest. German 7s were more active and ¼ higher. Berlin City 6s, Berlin City Electric 6½s, German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of 1938 and 1960, German Consolidated Agricultural 6½s, Rima Steel 7s, Prussia Free State 6s, Harpen 6s and Rhine Westphalian 6s advanced 1 to 2 points. Australian obligations that had been under pressure staged a vigorous advance. The 5s of 1955 sold 3 points higher, and the 4½s gained nearly 2.

Announcement that Danish Consolidated Municipal Loan 6s, of which $10,000,000 are outstanding, would be redeemed at 107½, had little effect on the price of the bond. On a few sales it gained ¼ and closed at 108¼.

Domestic Issues Unchanged.

Domestic bonds failed to display a notable trend one way or the other. Public utility issues were a little firmer, Federal Light & Traction 6s B advanced 2¾ points, American Telephone 6½s and the 5 per cent debentures, Brooklyn Edison 5s A, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Detroit Edison 6s, Kansas Gas & Electric 4½s and Ohio Public Service 7s B were considerably improved. An exception to the trend was the International Telephone Debenture 5s which reacted 1¾.

While the main body of railroad bonds held within a narrow range, softness appeared in a score of issues. Among those depressed to new 1930 lows were Erie 5s of 1975, Kansas City Southern 5s, Susquehanna & Western 5s, Milwaukee 5s of 1975, St. Paul 4½s C, Florida East Coast 5s and Morris & Essex 4½s.

New offerings tomorrow are expected to include $2,000,000 4½ per cent one-year notes of the New York Water Service Corporation.

INCOMES REPORTED BY GAS LIGHT FIRMS

Washington Company's Net for Ten Months Set at $666,851.10.

$41,904 DROP IS SHOWN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Operating statements of the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light Cos., were filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. Net income of the former company for October was $54,028.41, as compared with $56,194.78 for the month in 1929. For the ten months of the present year, it totals $666,851.10, as contrasted with $708,755.62, for the comparative period last year.

The Georgetown Co.'s net corporate income last month amounted to $4,650.32, as against $12,087.97 for the month a year ago. There is a gain for this company over the ten months, however, net corporate income for the period this year being $137,093.04, as compared with $119,282.50 for the first ten months of 1929.

Presenting data indicating that the construction and automobile industries have played dominant roles in the ups and downs of business during recent years, Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution, and former professor of economics, University of Chicago, in an address before the Bond Club of Washington at the Carlton Hotel yesterday, said the chances for an increase in building activity in the first half of 1931 are fairly good and that the auto industry is likely also to show expansion.

Effect on Other Fields.

"The extent to which improvements in these fields will affect the entire business situation, however, is another story," he reminded, "as it will depend in considerable measure upon whether the agricultural situation shows a turn for the better, and also upon the political and economic stability of other countries with whom we have close commercial relations."

Directors of Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. at their monthly meeting yesterday authorized underground cable extensions in the west central office district, additional switchboard equipment in the Georgia central office and miscellaneous extensions in other sections of the city. The facilities authorized together with other construction already in progress bring the total amount appropriated for extensions in the District so far this year to $3,367,810, officials of the company state.

Baltimore Phone Revenues.

Operating revenues of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., of Baltimore City, for October amounted to $1,214,915, the report of operations just filed with the Maryland Public Service Commission shows. Expenses during the month were $948,110, making net telephone revenues $266,805, which was $8,322 under the net revenues for October last year.

As a means of enabling the small investor to participate in what has heretofore been regarded as a rich man's investment, a group headed by G. M.-P. Murphy & Co. and including Hemphill, Noyes & Co.; W. W. Lanahan & Co., of Baltimore; Vietor, Common & Co., of Buffalo; Tifft Brothers, of Springfield, Mass., and J. H. Brooks & Co., of Scranton, have selected nineteen of the leading New York City banks and trust companies and have formed a fixed trust known as New York Bank Trust shares with the stocks of these banks as the portfolio. Public offerings of the shares of the new trust is being made today in principal cities of the country.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

American Writing Paper Co.

P. F. W.—I have some preferred stock of the American Writing Paper Co., now paying 4 per cent. What is the outlook?

Answer—Company reported for quarter ended September 30, last, net loss of $38,757, a sharp decline from net income of $58,134, or 65 cents a preferred share, in third quarter of 1929, and contrasted with net income of $121,098 and $127,414 in June and March quarters, respectively, of 1930. Earnings for nine months ended September 30, 1930, amounted to $209,755, or $2.35 a preferred share, a decline of 28 per cent from net of $293,314, or $3.29 a preferred share, reported for first nine months of 1929. Showing for October was somewhat better than for September, when company reported net income of $19,234, after all charges and Federal taxes, thus bringing net income for ten months to October 31, last, up to $228,989.

Despite better showing for October, outlook for maintenance of present 4 per cent dividend is none too encouraging, in view of fact that for the nine months only $2.35 a preferred share was earned, whereas the dividend requirement for the period called for $3 a share. This, in all probability, accounts for the existing low price for the shares.

Bigelow-Sanford.

G. T. C.—Please give me some information and an opinion of Bigelow-Sanford Carpet shares.

Answer—It is officially estimated that net earnings for 1930 will approximate $2 per share, which would compare with $6.86 for 1929 and $9.35 for 1928. Dividends on the stock have been omitted. Recovery in earnings is not expected until general business improves. Department store buyers, jobbing houses and furnishing stores appear less inclined than formerly to order six months' supplies at openings or style shows held in December and June.

Instead only nominal amounts of carpets are being bought with fill-in orders placed during the year. This procedure tends to level the peaks and valleys for the manufacturers. The stock is speculative and not suitable for investors.

Louisville & Nashville.

W. B. K.—Please give me some information regarding Louisville & Nashville.

Answer—Estimates are that earnings for 1930 will approximate $6 a share. The $7 dividend, however, appears in no imminent danger because of the large surplus which the company possesses.

Traffic continues in an unfavorable trend, but some improvement may be expected once general business conditions pick up. Louisville & Nashville may be considered a good speculative investment holding.

TOTAL CURB SALES.

Total stock sales today, 489,800 shares; total stock sales year ago, 973,900. Total bond sales today, $2,322,000; total bond sales year ago, $2,495,000.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

FAIRFAX FAIR BODY REELECTS PALMER

Profit Reported for Year; Spring Horse Show in 1931 Planned.

GRANGE PICKS OFFICERS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

At a meeting of stockholders and directors of the Fairfax County Fair Association, held in the offices of its secretary, Robert D. Graham, at Fairfax, Estler M. Palmer was reelected president; J. W. Gaines, of Baileys Cross Roads, vice president, and Robert D. Graham, of Fairfax, secretary. J. V. Turner, of East Falls Church, was elected treasurer, to succeed Lewis B. B. Oliver and Fred Saegmuller, of Vanderwerken, was elected assistant treasurer.

Several changes were made in the board of directors, which now includes H. H. Wakefield, Annandale; O. B. Cambell, of Fairfax; E. S. Whiting, of Fairfax; John W. Gains, Baileys Cross Roads; D. M. Woodard, of Fairfax; John C. Mackall, McLean; C. T. Rice, of Oakton; Edward R. Conner, Manassas; Melvin C. Hazen, of Washington; R. R. Buckley, of Fairfax; Thomas R. Keith, of Fairfax; Franklin Williams, Vienna; Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax; Estler M. Palmer, Barcroft; Robert D. Graham, of Fairfax; John V. Turner, East Falls Church; A. Smith Bowman, of Sunset Hills; D. C. Sands, of Middleburg; Ray H. Norton, of Washington; D. W. Middleton, Floris; Fred Saegmuller, of Vanderwerken, and Bruno H. Wittig, of McLean.

Because of the recent death of the wife of the retiring treasurer, no treasurer's report was presented at the meeting, but Secretary Graham reported that the association had made a profit during this year's fair in spite of the unfavorable weather conditions, and the books showed a balance of between $600 and $700, after all outstanding debts were paid. President Palmer and Treasurer Oliver waived their salaries for the past year. The association decided not to make a payment on the outstanding second trust note this year.

During the past year, for the first time a spring horse show was held in June and during fair week in September horse races were staged. The stockholders decided to return to the former custom of holding the regular horse show in the fall in connection with the September fair.

An attempt will be made to hold a spring horse show next year but if it is undertaken it will be financed by private subscription. The fair association will be given whatever profits are made, but it will not be required to stand any loss that might be sustained in the undertaking.

The members of the Mount Vernon Grange have elected C. Kirk Wilkinson, of Sherwood Hall Farms, as master to succeed T. Bently Mason, who has served for the past two years. Other officers elected are J. W. Cox, of Woodlawn, overseer; Mrs. A. Harmond Roberts, of Newington, lecturer; A. Harmond Roberts, of Newington, steward; Egbert W. Thompson, of Woodbridge, assistant steward; Miss Mary Cox, of Woodlawn, lady assistant steward; the Rev. C. A. Langton, pastor of Pohick Church, chaplain; Mrs. Herbert O. Blunt, of Belle Haven, secretary; George C. Gillingham, of Woodlawn, treasurer; John W. Hughes, of Woodlawn, gatekeeper; Mrs. Helen Ford, of Alexandria, ceres; Miss Frances Nevitt, of Potter Hill, pomona, and Miss Mary Talbott, of Engleside, flora. The new officers will be installed at the January meeting of the grange.

Special Thanksgiving services have been arranged for tomorrow morning in the churches of Fairfax County, with union service at Falls Church, which will be held in the Crossman Methodist Church, with the Rev. U. S. Knox, of the Columbia Baptist Church, as speaker. At McLean the Rev. J. G. Sadler will hold a 10 o'clock service in the St. Mary's Church and one in the St. John's Church at 11 o'clock.

The union services in the town of Fairfax will be held in the Zion P. E. Church at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. The Rev. Herbert Donovan, rector, will preside. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. R. S. Rice, of the Methodist Church, and the Rev. C. Y. Craig, of the Baptist Church, will assist with the service. Special music by a choir made up from all the churches in the community will be a feature of the service. The collection taken up will be for the relief of the drought sufferers of the county.

Churches of Vienna and Oakton will hold a union service in the Presbyterian Church at Vienna at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, with the Rev. Ralph Wott, of Oakton, conducting.

The men's class of the Presbyterian Sunday school at Falls Church will serve a free breakfast to all members of the congregation and their families on Thanksgiving morning at 8 o'clock. The breakfast will be cooked and served by the men.

The Ladies' Aid of the Vienna Presbyterian Church will hold a food sale and bazaar this afternoon in the Sunday school rooms of the church. Mrs. Franklin Williams has been appointed chairman of the fancy work table and Mrs. W. W. Louk will have charge of the food sale.

Stanley Ayres, of Alexandria, who was indicted in the Fairfax County Circuit Court on a charge of felonious assault, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of simple assault before Judge Walter T. McCarthy and was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 945 days in jail. Gordon Williams, of Alexandria, who was arrested Sunday for driving while drunk, pleaded guilty yesterday in the circuit court and was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge McCarthy. The jail sentence was suspended during good behavior. Everett Mock, of Herndon, pleaded guilty to the second offense of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, but for good cause shown the Court sentence was suspended until the first day of the March term of court, 1931.

Judge McCarthy appointed W. E. Johnson, W. H. Collins, J. L. Terry, Everett Terry and Charles B. Hyson as trustees of the First Baptist Church at Merrifield, with all powers and duties as such and subject to all liabilities and responsibilities conferred by law on trustees.

The Madison School Literary Society at Falls Church will give a special Thanksgiving program this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Madison School. There will be group singing and recitations by Robert Ankers, Marvin Davis, Burke Hertz and Mavis Kerns. A playlet will be presented by Horace Coward, Herman Belz, George Hemsley and James McAllister.

A special program will be presented by the pupils of the fourth grade of the Madison School this morning at 9 o'clock during assembly period.

FATAL CRASH ENDS HONEYMOON TOUR

Bridegroom Killed as Autos Collide Just Outside of Hagerstown.

ONE DRIVER BEING HELD

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Cressman's honeymoon ended tragically today near here, when the bridegroom was killed in the collision of the Cressmans' car with a local machine while they were en route to Washington.

The couple, accompanied by Mr. Cressman's brother, Amos, who was driving, and the latter's wife, had arrived from their home in St. Jacobs, Ontario, last night at Maugansville, the Ammenite settlement near here, and started out early today to spend the day sightseeing at the Nation's Capital.

The bridegroom, occupying the left rear seat of the machine, was killed almost instantly when the front of the approaching car swerved and hit that part of the Cressmans' car. E. Hurley Sweeney and Benjamin Edmunds, local youths, were in the machine which collided with the Cressmans' car.

Edmunds and Amos Cressman were injured, but not seriously.

Harvey Bean, sought as the driver of the car which hit the Cressman machine, appeared tonight at the preliminary hearing and testified he was the driver, but denied he had been drinking. Sweeney and Edmunds, however, said they were too intoxicated to remember what happened.

Coroner John H. Bitner, after hearing the testimony, held Bean in $2,000 bail on the charge of manslaughter. No charges were filed against Sweeney or Edmunds.

The jury of inquest found that Mr. Cressman came to his death when his car was struck by the machine owned by Sweeney, which was on the wrong side of the road.

Winchester Christmas Bank Funds Distributed

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 25.—Over 900 local persons received checks aggregating $25,000 today from the savings club of the Commercial & Savings Bank, and other checks are to be mailed to club members this week, it was stated. Two local national banks will mail Christmas club checks to members later in the week. It was said the total distribution would be around $100,000.

Stock of local banks continues in active demand, it was indicated today by a public auction of 24 shares of the capital stock of the Farmers & Merchants National Bank & Trust Co., for which there was spirited bidding. The stock was sold in blocks, and brought from $305 to $317 per share. The original value was $100 per share. The stock was sold in settling an estate.

West Virginia Forest Fire Under Control

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 25.—The mountain fire burning on Sleepy Creek Mountain since last Friday was under control today, according to word brought here by Forest Ranger B. F. Files, through the combined efforts of Morgan and Berkeley County volunteer firefighters.

The blaze licked into Frederick County, Va., before being conquered, toward Shockeysville. Approximately 1,000 acres was burned over. At one time the fighters concentrated their efforts successfully toward saving the sawmill of Curvey & Parkinson, in the path of the flames. The fire was laid to careless hunters or was deliberately started, the warden thought.

Kin of Dead Brakeman Lose Compensation Plea

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 25.—In an unusual fatal accident case, which came before the Circuit Court yesterday on an appeal by the dependents of the late Robert Wills, a railroad brakeman, from the decision of the State Industrial Accident Commission, the court granted a prayer of the defense that the plaintiffs were not entitled to recover under the Maryland compensation act on the ground that Wills at the time was engaged in interstate traffic and the right to recover, if any, laid under the Federal employer's liability act.

Wills, while sitting on the rear of a caboose in Frostburg yard three years ago whittling a brake club gashed his abdomen, when the pocketknife in his hand slipped, the point inflicting a fatal wound. The suit for compensation was brought by William H. Wills as guardian for four minor children.

LADY! LADY!

(Col. T. W. Lawrence, known officially as Aircraftsman Shaw, has just taught Lady Astor the favorite sport of England's flappers—riding on the pillion of a motorcycle.—Dispatch from London.)

I.

LADY ASTOR! Luvva mike!
Riding on a motor bike!
Goodness gracious! And

Of that funny little saddle!

II.

Lady Astor? Can it be?
Roaring up so noisily—
Braving spills without abhorrence
With the daring Col. Lawrence!

III.

There they come! And there they go!
Scaring all the people so;
Cutting corners, jumping ditches,
Bursting buttons, dropping stitches.

IV.

Honk! Beware! Look out there now!
Here they come, my lads, and how!
Through a fence and 'round a tree—
Lady, where's your dignity?

Bye and bye.

THE stock market has been so strong during the past week that there must be a general feeling that reassuring statements are nearly over.

"If they go up another eighth," declared a Wall street broker this morning, there'll be reviving rumors of split-ups."

$10,000,000 DIVIDED FOR VIRGINIA ROADS

Allocation to Cover Bond Retirement and Projects in Eight Districts.

ORIGINAL PLAN ALTERED

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Announcement of final allocations of $10,000,000 of road funds to the eight highway department districts of the State for construction work next year was made today by the State Highway Commission.

The total amount of the allocations is $11,890,463, but $1,000,000 of this sum is to be used for the annual retirement of highway certificates of indebtedness, and $590,463 for overhead, engineering and contingencies, and survey and maps.

The highway commission has made a number of changes from the tentative allocations arrived at two months ago. The tentative allocation of $100,000 for construction on the Waynesboro-Staunton section of Route 39 was cut to $50,000. The $50,000 taken from this route is transferred to Route 33 and will be used in construction work north of Staunton.

Another tentative allocation of $219,000 for improvement of the James River road, Route 10, from Manakin East, is cut to $119,000 and $100,000 is transferred to the section of Route 10 between Blackstone and Crewe, a project strongly urged by Southside Virginia citizens at the recent session of the highway commission in Richmond.

ARLINGTON NEARING GOAL OF RED CROSS

APPEALS FOR AID MANY

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the close of the annual Red Cross roll call by the Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross, set for tomorrow, incomplete returns last night from the various community chairmen show that the chapter is nearing its goal, according to an announcement by the county chairman, George A. Collier. While the general reports show that quite a number of new members are being enrolled there are some sections showing a smaller enrollment than last year, Chairman Collier stated.

Numerous calls for help have already been received by the local chapter and lack of employment will likely force many families to seek assistance during the winter, directors of the drive believe. Only a record enrollment will supply the needed funds and Arlington County citizens, a large percentage of whom are employed by the Federal Government at good salaries, should share through the Red Cross with the less fortunate, declared Mr. Collier.

Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., held its annual ladies night at the Masonic Temple at Clarendon last night with the temple filled to its capacity.

The address of welcome was delivered by Past Master Harry K. Green, grand senior warden of the grand lodge of Masons in Virginia, who was introduced by Freeland F. Chew, master of the lodge.

The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Z. B. Phillips, chaplain of the United States Senate.

The musical program included solos by Mrs. B. D. Shreve, accompanied by Mrs. J. F. Couch; William Raymond, accompanied by Robert Thomas; Mrs. C. S. Parks, accompanied by Edward Balinger, and Fred East, who was accompanied by Robert Thomas. The program included a reading by Miss Lillian Swecker and stories and songs by Arthur B. Pierce.

Plans are nearing completion for the annual service sale card party, to be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary Unit No 139, Arlington Post American Legion, December 3 in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon.

The committee has announced that the prizes offered will be articles which have been purchased from the Hampton Hospital, in Virginia, and the Walter Reed Hospital, in Washington. The purchase price went to the wounded veterans from whom articles were purchased.

Last year the auxiliary purchased $115 worth of articles. It is expected that the figure this year will exceed $200.

In addition to prizes offered with a value of about $100, additional articles will be sold.

The county health department has certified the following pupils from the Thomas Nelson Page Schol at Ballston as five-point health children:

Annual union Thanksgiving services tomorrow will be held in the Clarendon Presbyterian church, Aurora Heights at 10:30 o'clock. The sermon will be by the Rev. Charles F. Linger, pastor of the Community Methodist Church, Aurora Heights.

Because of the union services tomorrow, the Rev. John H. Pearson, pastor of the Clarendon Methodist Church announces there will be no midweek services at the church tonight.

Arlington unit of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal churches will meet at Falls Church Friday night at 8 o'clock. H. R. Beall, of the Mount Vernon Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Washington, is announced as the speaker.

Meeting in the office of the County Clerk William H. Duncan, at the courthouse last night, the secretaries of the various fire departments affiliated with the Arlington-Fairfax Counties Valunteer Firemen's Association certified to a copy of the active members of their respective departments. This was done in accordance with the State law which requires that the county clerk shall have in his office a certified copy of all active firemen so, in case of an accident, they will be entitled to aid from the county.

A resolution offered by H. B. Hartung, opposing the proposed schedule of rates of the Rosslyn Gas Co., as filed with the Virginia State Corporation Commission, was endorsed by the Lyon Park Citizens Association at its meeting held in the Community House last night.

The resolution stes forth that the rates which the company proposes for Arlington County are based upon the unfair and unreasonable rate which it is charging itself for gas suppited in wholesale quantities, to the subsidiary company by the parent company, as a result of which the rates proposed to be established for the consumers of Arlington County are, inevitably, excessive, unfair, and unreasonable.

It further points out that the Rosslyn Gas Co. is a subsidiary of the Washington Gas Light Co.

Pollard and her fiance, Herbert Lee Boatwright, at the dedication of the new Woodberry-Forest Prep School Stadium near Orange, Va. YORKTOWN SOCIETY MAY ALTER CHARTER

Sesquicentennial Association Trustees Will Meet in Richmond.

TWO AMENDMENTS UP

Yorktown, Va., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Several changes in the charter of the Yorktown Sesquicentennial Association, Inc., are to be considered at a meeting of the organization trustees to be held at the Commonwealth Club in Richmond.

The meeting was called by Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, of Williamsburg, to act on a resolution proposing two amendments to the charter, adopted at the last meeting of the trustees held in Yorktown, November 3. One of the principal changes proposed is an increase in the maximum number of trustees.

Under the original charter a minimum of five and a maximum of 50 trustees was provided. The amendment proposed would retain the minimum of five, and increase the maximum to 300. These trustees, under the proposed amendment, will manage the corporation's affairs, and will have power to fill vacancies occurring in the body. The trustees will exercise all the authority and voting power of the association under the proposed amendment.

The second amendment to the charter to be considered at the Richmond meeting would permit the amendment of the by-laws from time to time so as to increase the number of trustees, but that this number shall never be less than five, nor more than 300. It provides that the by-laws may prescribe the terms of office of the trustees, and classify them with regard to the time for which they hold office.

Amendments to the by-laws also will be offered for consideration relative to organization of committees and classes of membership in the association.

Occoquan Man Injures Self in Leap for Train

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 25.—Attempting to swing aboard a swiftly moving northbound freight train at Cool Spring, 2 miles north of here, on the R. F. & P. R. R., Willie Williams, 32-year-old Negro, failed to clutch the iron ladder and fell beneath the wheels, sustaining hurts which necessitated the amputation of the left foot.

Unable to move or call for assistance, the man lay beside the tracks for more than an hour before motorists passing along the Leeland road, which parallels the railroad tracks, saw him and removed him to the hospital here. Williams lives at Occoquan, and formerly worked for the R. F. & P. He was jobless and trying to get back to his home.

State Poultry Group To Convene at Orange

Orange, Va., Nov. 25.—More than 500 poultry producers, representing every section of the State, are expected to attend the annual convention of the Virginia State Poultry Federation to be held at Orange on December 11 and 12.

M. C. Kilpatrick, executive secretary of the federation, reports that unusual interest is being shown in the convention, due to the fact that poultry has suffered less than any other class of live stock under drought conditions, and on many farms has been the only profitable farm enterprise.

VIRGINIA REBUKED FOR "ILLITERATES"

Editor Declares Situation Is Skeleton in Closet, Calmly Ignored.

WANTS SOMETHING DONE

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—"The Skeleton in Virginia's Closet," an editorial in the Virginia Journal of Education, written by Cornelius J. Heatwole, its editor, has attracted the attention of the national authorities fighting illiteracy.

The fact that the number of Virginia illiterates in 1920 exceeded the combined totals of Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Washington, South Dakota and Wyoming is the skeleton in Virginia's closet, the editorial said. The editor asserted it is high time for those responsible to see to it that it be dragged out and exposed to the view of every one, so something can be done about it.

Miss Cora Wilson Stewart, of the National Association Against Illiteracy, under the United States Department of the Interior, has requested Mr. Heatwole to have hundreds of copies of the editorial reprinted for her use.

Should Face Facts.

The editorial said, in part: "With all blatant boasts of a superior culture, traditions, historic shrines, a modern highway system, and even the boast we sometimes hear made of our great public school system, Virginians should be brought face to face with the facts about the menacing extent of illiteracy that has been permitted to grow up, apparently unnoticed, among her adult population."

The following startling facts ought to shock the pride and silence of the boastful spirit of some of our leaders until some organized State-wide effort is put forth to remove the stigma of illiteracy, especially among our native-born Caucasian population.

"In 1920, just a decade ago, only eight States of the Union had a greater percentage of illiteracy and only seven States had a higher percentage of native illiterates among their white population than Virginia. The total number of illiterates in this State at that time was 195,000, of whom 70,000 were Virginia-born Caucasians, most of them descendants of people who have been in Virginia for many generations.

One-Fourth Illiterate.

"In one Virginia county, one-fourth of the population was illiterate. There were 162,736 illiterates of voting age in Virginia, and 106,000 of the total illiterates in the State in 1920 were people under 44 years of age.

"They tell us that illiteracy is a rural problem, but there are 7,931 illiterates in the city of Richmond and 458 in Charlottesville, under the very shadow of the University of Virginia.

"The total number of illiterates in Virginia in 1920 was more than the combined illiteracy of the States of Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Washington, South Dakota and Wyoming."

The editorial continued with the statement that doubtless some progress has been made in reducing illiteracy in the State since 1920, and the census taken the present year will reflect a little better state of affairs.

Progress Only Small.

"But," the editorial went on, "the progress in the past ten years can not be great for the reason that the only organized effort in the State has been the public school system, backed by a feebly executed compulsory attendance law, and, too, this effort can only affect that part of the population between the ages of 10 and 20.

"Up to this time, practically nothing has been done in an organized systematic way to reduce the high percentage of adult illiteracy in Virginia. Nobody seems to look upon illiteracy tables for adults with any degree of concern. The facts have often been presented to our citizens, especially to those leaders who are responsible for making our laws and providing the means for the State's progress and general welfare, but they have brushed the facts aside with indifferent consideration or offering excuses that do not characterize the thinking of broad-minded patriotic citizens."

Robinson, 62, who died at the home of a sister at Reliance, following some weeks' illness. He was for many years engaged in artesian well drilling in Virginia and West Virginia. Surviving are a widow, one daughter, three sons, one brother and five sisters.

$10,000 SUIT FILED IN PRINCE GEORGES

Man, 70, Claims Couple Injured Him Permanently in Alleged Attack.

ZONE HEARING IS CALLED

Asking $10,000 damages for injuries allegedly received in a fight, Augustus F. Eskite, 70-year-old Spanish War veteran, yesterday filed suit in the Prince Georges County Circuit Court against John Leinhart and his wife, Mary.

Through his attorney, John C. White, Eskite charges that the pair attacked him in East Riverdale last July. Since then his hearing has been permanently impaired and he has not been able to do a day's work, he says.

The Board of County Commissioners yesterday ordered that persons who opposed the change in zoning of the property at 26 Maple street, Hyattsville, should show cause for their opposition before January 8. The change will allow the use of the property for religious or educational purposes.

Irvin Owings, owner of the tract, presented the petition asking the change. This is one of the first cases to be considered under the new law, which does away with a formal hearing unless opposition is shown.

A petition signed by residents of Branchville, opposing the proposed removal of the watchman at the Baltimore & Ohio grade crossing in that town, also was presented, bearing several hundred names. The railroad wants to replace the watchman with automatic signal lights.

Hearing on a habeas corpus proceeding which is designed to release Fred Young from the Maryland House of Correction was continued for one week yesterday by Judge Joseph C. Mattingly, with the consent of all the parties. A decision that the commitment of Young is illegal, which his attorneys claim, will have the effect of nullifying all the commitment papers made out in the past several months, legal authorities say.

J. Wilson Ryon and Albert Hassall, young lawyers, allege that the commitment is faulty because it is signed by the deputy clerk of the Police Court, James W. Lauderdale; Justices of the peace are required to sign their own commitments, it is said, and Judge J. Chew Sheriff, of the Police Court, holds his appointment as justice of the peace at large. It is generally considered, however, it is claimed, that the Police Court is a court of record, and clerks of these courts are allowed to sign such papers. Whether or not a deputy has the same power will be decided by Judge Mattingly.

Young was sentenced to the House of Correction about six months ago. He was to serve two years on an assault and battery charge.

Following a liquor raid in which eight half-gallon jars of alleged rum were seized, Peter Euell, colored, of Bladensburg, was arrested and charged with possession. He posted bond of $500 for his appearance in Police Court today.

Judge Mattingly will return to Marlboro December 3 to hear motions, demurrers and cases which are to be tried before the court without a jury. It is expected that this will take several days, after which the circuit court jury will be recalled to decide cases which could not be reached during the regular term of court.

The expected visit of an engineer from the Fire Underwriters Association to Mount Rainier is hoped to be a first step in a reduction of fire insurance rates in that town. The engineer's visit was announced yesterday by B. E. Sager, clerk of the corporation.

Improved types of buildings recently erected, and the purchase of additional equipment for the fire department, will be the reason for such a reduction, it is thought.

Warrants were issued yesterday for Lena Lewis, 13 years old, and her sister Bertie, 16, both of Camp Springs, Md., charging them with incorrigibility. The papers were issued by James W. Lauderdale, deputy clerk of the police court, at the instigation of Miss Agnes Duvall, welfare worker for Prince Georges County. The two girls ran away from their home several days ago, leaving a note saying that they were coming to Washington to get married.

Discord Is Avoided On Drought Relief

Conferees Are Convinced No Advantage Is Taken of Freight Cut.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 25.—A flare-up between Department of Agriculture officials and the Rockingham County drought relief committee was believed to have been avoided tonight when, at a conference between the committee and State Drought Relief Chairman Harry F. Byrd, it was asserted that no undeserving farmers of Rockingham County are receiving the benefit of the reduced railroad rates on shipments of feed supplies.

Trouble arose over the complaint of A. Lane Cricher, traffic coordinator of the Department of Agriculture, that Rockingham farmers able to pay the full freight charges are receiving shipments under the reduced rate.

State Chairman Byrd, County Agent H. M. Cox and members of the Rockingham County drought committee declared that Government and railroad regulations are being complied with. The farmers benefiting under the reduced freight rates, it was asserted, are those whose main income comes from the farm and whose ability to pay has been greatly lessened by the drought.

Carnegie Award Asked For Youth at Albemarle

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 25.—The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, of Pittsburgh, has been asked by A. L. Bennett, superintendent of Albemarle County public schools, to give consideration in its next awards to an Albemarle youth who, last summer, risked his life twice in one afternoon to save his sister and three brothers from drowning.

The 17-year-old boy, Robert Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wood, of Earlysville, is reported to have plunged into a current and saved his sister from a whirlpool, and two hours later to have carried two of his brothers from the same stream and made it possible for a child to reach the bank.
